18.9% NEW CARS FAIL THE TEST

Almost one out of every five new cars purchased in B.C. is unsafe, according to figures released today by the provincial government.

A sampling of 348 new vehicles tested at motor vechicle branch inspection stations around the province showed 66 or 18.9 per cent were rejected on their first inspection.

The major causes of rejection were brakes, steering, and headlight defects.

Transport Minister Bob Strachan warned all new car buyers to have safety checks made as soon as possible after taking delivery.

"Some defects are such that they can suddenly change a four-wheeled car into a four-wheeled coffin," said the minister.

In two of the cases surveyed, the new cars were missing brake shoes entirely and in cars with double brake systems, often only one system was operating.

In other instances, there were mismatched brake linings, holes admitting brake fluid to the system had not been drilled, and calipers which move the brake shoes against the brake drums had not been installed.

Inspectors found some new cars with cracked frames and said steering defects included cases where power steering units were not bolted to the frame.

Strachan said flaws in brakes and steering systems can result in cars going out of control and are a danger not only to the driver but to every other car on the highway.
way.

The sampling shows the need for expanded inspection facilities throughout B.C., said the minister.

No Hikes In Home Gas Cost

The new federal-provincial agreement on natural gas taxation will not result in any price increases for domestic users of gas, Premier Barrett said Monday.

Industrial consumers of gas in B.C. can expect price increases in the future, said Barrett, but the province has no intention of increasing the price to homeowners.

But the premier hinted that gas companies in B.C. may receive a higher price from the government-owned B.C. Petroleum Corporation which buys and markets all gas produced in the province.

Included in the agreement is a recognition by Ottawa that the export price of natural gas will be increased this year and Barrett said gas companies "may or may not get a compensating increase" in the price they are originally paid for the gas by the BCPC.

There will be no "substantial" increase to producers, he said, but the precedent has been established in the past when the export price rose, the price to producers was voluntarily increased by the

13 Montrealers Die In Gangland Massacre

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirteen persons, including three women, died early today in a fire-charred, padlocked night-club closet in what police speculated was a gangland rub-out although most of the victims apparently were innocent bystanders.

One police officer described the killings as the worst "premeditated" mass murder in the history of Montreal, and it was generally regarded as one of the worst crimes of its kind in Canadian history.

Police speculated the victims were herded into the six-by-eight-foot beer-storage closet and the fire set with the aim of eliminating witnesses to an Oct. 30 double murder at the same nightclub in the city's north-east district.

But Constable Jean Gauthier, 25, the first police officer at the scene, said it appeared most of the victims had simply dropped into the club for a drink.

Asked whether there was something "in common" among the victims, Constable Gauthier replied:

"I think two or three of them have had something in common but the rest were bypassers."

Asked whether the others were innocent bystanders, Gauthier replied.

"Most definitely. One of the victims was a father of four who had stopped in for a beer after his shift."

Police listed Rejean Fortin, 44, manager of the night-club, which features top-less dancers among the victims. They said Fortin was the only victim shot — he had been shot in the back.

A picture emerged of the victims dying from asphyxiation as smoke seeped around the padlocked door into the small closet where the bodies were found piled on top of one another.

The fire started at 12:27 a.m. and firemen said it took them three hours to get it under control. Shortly afterwards they found the bodies in the locked storage closet, used to store cases of beer. A juke box had been pulled across in front of the door.

Besides the club manager, police identified nine other victims. They gave their names as Pierre Lamarche, Augustin Carbonneau, Pierre Lesiege, Gaetan Caron, Michel Viscardi, Denis Lauze, Ghislain Briere, Jacques Lamarche and Yves Pigeon.

A police spokesman said. "We have no doubt that some of the victims were merely patrons of the club. At this time we have not yet established whether or not any of the victims had any criminal records."

9 HOMELESS IN BLAZE

Only Samuel Mack, his wife, and two children Effie, 23, and Jessie, 5, were at home at the time. The other children were in school.

Mack said he smelled smoke at about 11:45 a.m. and went upstairs to investigate. He opened the door to one bedroom and smoke billowed out. He said he shut the door and went to the next room where he roused Effie who was sleeping.

Effie said shortly before she lay down she had seen Jessie playing with a candle and an electric heater in the bedroom.

Barrett Won't Interfere

Premier Barrett said Monday he has no intention of interfering in the dismissal of education department research director Dr. Stanley Knight.

"It's a public service commission matter and there's no way I'll interfere in a public service matter," he said.

"I have full confidence in the minister and she has full confidence in her staff and the matter ends there."

Knight has written the premier a letter asking him to intervene in the case and has also filed an official grievance with the public service commission.

Knight was left without a job last week when deputy education minister Jack Fleming recommended his dismissal at the end of his standard six-month probationary period.

He was hired last July to head up a new 12-member research and development division of the education department assigned to draw up a blueprint for educational change in the province, based on Education Minister Eileen Dailly's white paper on education.

Knight said he decided to appeal to the premier for support because his educational philosophy "happens to follow the white paper and the NDP's educational policy."

"I support the government and their educational policy and the bureaucracy of the department of education is not supportive of the government," he said.

U.S. Inflation Easing Off

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — U.S. prices rose in 1974 at the highest rate since wage and price controls were lifted after the Second World War but the increase in the last three months of the year showed an easing of inflation, the government said today.

The December increase in the consumer price index of 0.7 per cent was the lowest in five months.

In a development aimed at attacking recession, the federal reserve board Monday pumped $1.1 billion into the economy to permit more and easier credit for business expansion, and to ease unemployment.

The bureau of labor statistics said the inflation rate for 1974 was 12.2 per cent higher than 1973. It is the highest rate of price growth since 1946 when prices rose 18.1 per cent and the second highest since the index skyrocketed 20.5 per cent in 1918 following the First World War.

Based on 1967 prices, the increase means goods and service that cost $100 then cost $155.40 last month.

At the same time, the bureau of labor statistics said the purchasing power of workers increased for the first time in six months.

Meanwhile, in Congress, Speaker Carl Albert attacked Monday night the $12 billion anti-recession tax rebate proposed last week by President Ford, saying 43 per cent of the money would go to "the richest 17 per cent of the population."

By contrast, Albert said in a Democratic response to the president's State of the Union message, "the Democratic leadership has asked the House to pass a substantial tax reduction bill for middle and lower-income persons only by the end of March."

The speaker also attacked the president's complicated proposals to cut back fuel consumption, which he said would have "an astounding inflationary impact" and would end up taking more away from the average family than it would return.

President Ford today again rejected gasoline rationing to end the energy crisis, saying it would have to be in effect at least five years to work and would limit every motorist to fewer than nine gallons per week.

NEWS BRIEFS

Pickets Arrested

HULL, Que. (CP) — Three union members were arrested today as striking mint workers demonstrated in front of the Hull numismatic division of the Royal Canadian Mint. The three members of the Public Service Alliance, which represents the 550 workers, were arrested because they blocked entry of trucks and cars to the building, police said. (See Picture on Page 2)

Woman Shot

VANCOUVER (CP) — A woman clerk was shot Monday in an attempted hold-up at a restaurant. Police said two men, armed with a handgun, shot the woman and fled without any money in the hold-up attempt. The woman was in satisfactory condition after being taken to hospital.

Bank of Alberta?

OTTAWA (CP) — A lawyer for a proposed Bank of Alberta has filed notice in the Canada Gazette, an official government publication, that application will be made to Parliament for a charter.

Dollar at New Low

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar fell sharply in European money markets today and touched a 14-month low in Paris.

In Paris, the dollar opened at 4.3475 French francs down from 4.3675 francs late Monday. In Zurich, the dollar traded at 2.508 Swiss francs, down from 2.5300 Swiss francs late Monday.

EEC in Sugar Deal

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — The European Common Market was to formally decide today to buy up to 361,000 tons of sugar from world markets to sell to consumers mainly in Britain and Italy at about one-third its cost price.

OIL-LADEN TANKER EXPLODES, 2 DIE

MIAMI (UPI) — Two crewmen were killed and three injured early today when the 550-foot Cypriot tanker "Lucky Era" ran aground on a Bahamian reef, exploded and burst into flames. The tanker was laden with oil.

The U.S. Coast Guard in Miami said the Russian merchant ship Aleksandr Kollontay rushed to the stricken tanker's aid, lowered small boats and removed 34 of the Cypriot ship's 37 crewmen.

"The master of the Cypriot ship refuses to abandon the vessel," the coast guard said.

Threat of Strike Could Stall Mall

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Cancellation or postponement of Victoria's Government Street Mall project became a possibility today, as city aldermen learned that a lengthy strike by municipal employees could add up to $301,000 — or more than 30 per cent — to the total costs.

Ald. Sam Bawlf, responsible for mall planning, told the Central Area development committee today it would be "unwise" for the city to award the contract and let the work start until the current negotiations with city employees are successfully concluded and a strike averted.

"Obviously this places the project in some jeopardy," he added.

His comments followed an explanation from city manager Jim Bramley that $301,261 of the total estimated cost of the work, $902,426, could be recovered by the city as "labor forgiveness" costs under Ottawa's winter capital projects fund.

But Bramley said the federal program only covers the period from Dec. 31, 1974, to May 31, 1975. And then, with a series of "ifs" Bramley outlined the risks to the city:

—If the contract is awarded and the work starts soon, as it was scheduled to do;

—If the threatened strike of city employees then takes place within a few days;

—And if the strike last three or four months . . .

Then, said Bramley, the city would have passed the time limit set for the federal program, lost the $301,000 for labor costs and run into a whole series of other problems — including traffic control and difficulties for merchants if the work has to be undertaken during the summer months.

Bramley stressed he was not implying that a strike would necessarily take place, but merely outlining the repercussions on financing the project if that did happen.

Ald. Mike Young said in any case he had been viewing "with singular skepticism" the city's ability to meet even its basic costs commitment, and he was loath to see council commit itself still further under current labor uncertainties.

City engineer John Sansom told aldermen that assuming there is no strike of city employees, and therefore no stoppage of the work on the mall, the contractor should be able to complete the job comfortably by May 31.

The committee had been due to consider today five tenders submitted last week, and to recommend the contractor for the job.

But no decision was reached because the committee felt the implications were such that the matter should be referred to the regular meeting of council's caucus this afternoon.

Hijackers Give Up in Iraq

Times News Services

BAGHDAD — Three Arab guerrillas who terrorized Paris's Orly airport last weekend surrendered to a reluctant Iraqi government in Baghdad today and a volunteer Air France crew flew back to France aboard the jet liner that had taken them and the terrorists on a daylong Middle East odyssey.

Iraq immediately denounced the three and said they had been placed under arrest.

A statement issued by the Iraqui Embassy in Paris said the French jetliner that flew them out of France in exchange for the hostages' lives had been permitted to land in Baghdad only because it was low on fuel and the crew was exhausted by more than 17 hours of flying.

In Cairo, the three Egyptian government-run dailies — Al Ahram, Al Akhbar and Al Gomhouriya — also condemned the Orly siege and called for unified Arab action to prevent such incidents from recurring.

In Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization said it would demand extradition of the gunmen and put them on trial "for their crimes."

Liquor Tops Hard Drugs in Schools—Survey

VANCOUVER (CP) — A survey of Vancouver high school students shows they are steering somewhat away from harder drugs but turning more and more to liquor.

The survey, made by John Russell and Marcus Hollander of the Narcotic Addiction Foundation of British Columbia, was presented Monday to the Vancouver School Board.

Trustees will meet later with medical officials and others working with drugs and alcohol.

"Millions of dollars have been spent on drug education all over North America and not a single program has been successful," Russell said.

The two researchers selected about 40 per cent of the students at random and are satisfied their findings apply to the 28,000 secondary students here.

The survey shows that 71 per cent of students now are using alcohol compared with 61 per cent in 1970.

The use of tobacco is also up to 61 per cent of the students in 1974 from 42 per cent in 1970.

The use of cannabis, which includes both marijuana and hashish, does not appear to have changed appreciably, according to the researchers. They found 39 per cent of the students had used it in 1970 and 42 per cent in 1974.

Use of LSD is down to 15 from 22 per cent. Fourteen per cent of the students said they used MDA in 1974 but were not questioned about this hallucinogen in 1970.

In 1974, 19 per cent of the students had used LSD, MDA or both and the researchers say the use of hallucinogens appears to have declined slightly.

The sniffing of glue and other solvents has not changed with nine per cent use in both surveys.

The non-prescription use of tranquillizers was up to nine from eight per cent but the use of non-prescription barbiturates was down to five from 10 per cent.

The survey shows the use of heroin is down to 1.5 from two per cent but the researchers say this estimate may be unreliable because the proportion of users is so small.

The 1974 survey shows there is little difference in general in the use of drugs by sex. Males used more alcohol, tobacco, cannabis, LSD and MDA while females used more amphetamines and barbiturates.

The use of most drugs increases as the students get older while the use of solvents, amphetamines, barbiturates, tranquilizers and heroin appears to peak in the 15-to-16 age group.

Tobacco, alcohol and cannabis are the only drugs being used at least once a week by a sizable proportion of the students.

The majority of those who had used LSD, MDA, solvents, amphetamines, barbiturates, tranquillizers and heroin had done so less than five times in the six months preceding the survey.

Clinic Couldn't Handle Donors

Blood donors "overwhelmed" a clinic in Victoria Monday, producing line-ups so long some people could not wait and giving a whopping 265 units, better than twice the average turnout.

Red Cross spokesman Jerry Savage said today he hopes for the same kind of response at today's clinic, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 this evening at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort St.

The UVic Rugby Club and the Oak Bay Sports Club had a hand in producing Monday's results but there was also a big response from local citizens to the recent blood shortage, he said.

The UVic athletes conducted a "bloodathon" and challenged other clubs to match their donors. The clinic couldn't handle the turnout and that competition is continuing.

Savage said the target for Monday's clinic was a minimum 125 donors. Average turnout at local clinics has been about 115.

"I've never seen a clinic like this one."

He paid tribute to the crowd, which was "good-natured" despite delays.

Israel 'Will Take War To Arab Heartlands'

United Press International

Israeli Defence Minister Shimon Peres said in remarks published today that Israel could carry a future Middle East war into the Arab heartland to repel the threat to its frontiers.

In an interview in "Shehakim," newsletter of the Israeli aircraft industries, Peres indicated Israel would not let Arab nations "bring all this might to the borders of Israel to threaten us while their lands, their oil, their cities and airfields remain secure."

He said any nation threatening Israel "will be subject to threat. Those who wish to concentrate their armies against us will be forced to deploy their armies in their own countries to defend their own."

Peres said the armies in question include those of "Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Libya and others."

Meanwhile Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said in an interview today in the Paris newspaper Le Monde he was ready to sign a peace treaty with Israel and that a new Middle East was involving the threat of a U.S.-Soviet confrontation would erupt if Israel refused to negotiate an over-all settlement.

"I am ready to conclude a peace accord with Israel and respect the undertakings arising from such an agreement," he said. In answer to a question he said it was too early to say whether such a peace accord would lead to prompt diplomatic relations.

Nanaimo Schools Closed

NANAIMO — Public schools here were closed today as teachers refused to cross picket lines set up by locked-out members of Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 606, according to early reports.

A Nanaimo School District official said most teachers appeared to be honoring the picket lines, and those students who turned up for school were being sent home.

Teachers will be holding study sessions, he said.

CUPE Local 606 members, non-teaching staff of the school district, were locked out this morning after a week of rotating strikes.

SAANICH SWITCHES DUPLEX POLICY

Saanich is going to review its policy on duplexes and the guidelines recommending a duplex not be allowed if there is another within 600 feet.

On the suggestion of Mayor Ed Lum, the council agreed Monday the lands, planning and housing committee should review the situation.

The council, however, rejected Ald. Joe Bourque's suggestion that the committee also study the possibility of allowing rezoning for duplexes without holding a public hearing.

Ald. Sandy Noel, saying he could not support this, added it was good policy to have each application judged on its own merits.

Ald. Fred Severson and Ald. Bill Campbell agreed, Severson saying the policy had resulted in a healthy flexibility.

The council agreed to hold public hearings on two applications received Monday, one for a duplex at 490 Marigold and the other for a duplex at 994 Violet.

No Home Gas Price Hike

BCPC. Barrett said the conclusion of an agreement in principle with the federal government on taxation will mean about 70 per cent of the winter drilling originally planned for B.C. will go ahead.

Gas companies delayed drilling this winter when the dispute between Ottawa and Victoria left them uncertain of the tax share they would be forced to pay.

The federal government's tax proposal was to tax oil companies on a "fair market value" for natural gas rather than on the price they were necessarily paid under B.C.'s marketing scheme.

Barrett contended that the price now paid to producers, an average of 22 cents per thousand cubic feet, was the fair price and that the price BCPC sells it for, an average of 82 cents per thousand cubic feet, should not be considered as the fair price.

The premier said he would not increase the price paid to producers in order to accommodate the budget proposal because companies would use tax loopholes to avoid the full burden of new taxation and increase their profits.

Under the agreement announced Monday, gas companies will be taxed on a value higher than that paid them by the BCPC but the B.C. government will pay that additional tax share in the form of a direct tax rebate to Ottawa.

It means the B.C. government will be allowed to study the tax returns of companies to determine the amount of the rebates due to Ottawa.

Barrett said the agreement will likely mean B.C. handing over $12 million of the $92 million estimated profit of BCPC this year.

But it was obvious from the premier's comments, the details of the rebate arrangement have not yet been worked out between the two levels of government.

The figure most commonly mentioned for the "fair market value" of gas is 57 cents, a price equivalent to the price paid the BCPC minus transportation and other costs, but Barrett said the price is still up for negotiation.

Barrett said he likes to call that price the "tax rebate price" since B.C.'s position all along has been that the 22 cents paid producers is the fair market price.

Ottawa's agreement that export prices should rise will likely mean an increase to U.S. customers by mid-year.

B.C. has proposed the export price rise from $1 per thousand cubic feet to $1.35 almost immediately and to $1.93 by the end of the year.

Ottawa has assured they will not place an export tax on natural gas going south of the border but a finance department official said the "fair market price" or "tax rebate price" will nevertheless increase, giving Ottawa higher tax rebates, when the export price is increased.

Barrett said the agreement was a compromise which is "a tremendous step forward for B.C."

The original proposal made by B.C. as an alternative to the federal budget proposal would see the federal, provincial and municipal governments sharing equally in any additional revenues earned by an increase in the export price of gas.

An increase to $1.93 would earn an additional $180 million in revenues, he said, giving each level of government $60 million.

Asked if there was anything in the compromise for B.C.'s municipalities, Barrett said he had no statement to make yet but his people are figuring out new revenue figures and some revenue sharing scheme may be announced later.

In Washington, U.S. Senator Warren Magnuson said Monday he is pleased that the export price of Canadian natural gas to American consumers in the Pacific Northwest will not be raised immediately.

He said the natural gas taxation agreement between B.C. and Ottawa will remove the major roadblock to increased natural gas flows into the U.S. He said the problem has been an internal dispute between the two levels of Canadian government over natural resource taxation.

The senator said in a news release he hopes that in the next two or three months there will be a restoration of all the natural gas exports recently curtailed by B.C.

Washington State Democratic senators Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson had sent a telegram Jan. 11, to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, urging him to review with Canadian officials proposed price increases of natural gas exported to the U.S. from Canada.

"The Canadians have stated the whole issue of natural gas pricing will be reviewed again by Canadian federal and provincial officials during meetings in March or April," Magnuson said Monday.

CANDY CAPER ENDS SWEETLY

Walter Der, of Capital Freightways Ltd., phoned police to report three cartons of candy were dropped from one of the company trucks on Friday. He wanted police assistance to get back the $150 worth of sweess.

Later Der phoned the police to report receiving a phone call from an unidentified man who offered the goods back "for a price."

Police investigation turned up the culprit during the weekend.

A 45-year-old man staying at a local hotel had seen the cartons drop from the truck, scooped them up and carried them off.

Some $145 worth of the candy was returned to Der, minus only two small boxes. No charges were laid.

Det. Fred Mills and Sgt. Ken Horseman ended their police botter report crisply:

"Thus endeth the Great Candy Caper."

the club as a known hangout for underworld characters.

The fire was in the Gargantua Club in the city's northeast end, near the intersection of beaubien St. and Metropolitan Blvd. It was a second-floor club, located above a dry-cleaning establishment.

These were not the first deaths at the club.

Last Oct. 30 two men were gunned down by two other men as they sat at a table in the club.

Police speculate that today's killings may have been an effort to eliminate possible witnesses to the October slayings.

Police named Richard Blass and Roger Roussel as suspects in that slaying.

Blass, Roussel and three other men had escaped from the maximum security wing of the St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary a week earlier.

Roussel was recaptured abouf six weeks ago and found criminally responsible for a slaying in the Old Chum bar a week before his cap-

At the inquest, he was not questioned about the Gargantua Club shootings. Blass still is at large.

Police and firemen today barred entry to the club as some of their colleagues carried debris from the interior. From a distance, the interior appeared to be charred and wrecked.

Police said no arrests have been made although a search was on for anyone who might have been in the club late last night.

The Montreal killings recall the most notorious gangland execution of all — the St. Valentine's Day massacre at Chicago in the 1929 Prohibition days.

Gunmen of Al Capone's gang posing as policemen lined up seven members of the rival Bugs Moran gang against a garage wall and mowed them down with submachine guns. No one was ever brought to book for the massacre.

Canada has had a string of multiple deaths in recent years, the two most massive happening in Quebec province and blamed on arson.

Forty persons were killed in fire at a home for the aged in Notre-Dame-du-Lac near Riviere du Loup Dec. 2, 1969. A part-time handyman was convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Thirty-seven persons died in a fire in the Blue Bird Club in Montreal July 31, 1973, it had been deliberately set gy three men who were refused entry to the club.

At West Creston, B.C., eight persons in two homes were shot, stabbed or beaten to death during a killing spree by a man Sept. 9, 1970.

An axe-slayer ran amok in the remote northwestern Saskatchewan community of Buffalo Narrows and killed seven persons including four children Jan. 30, 1969.

Six persons were killed by a gunman on Aug. 8, 1972, at several places in and around Oliver, in the B.C. interior.

When you get a B.C. Tel Pocket Pager you're connected directly with the B.C. Telephone System. That's unique.

Because with our system you're given a special phone number. And when someone dials that number your Pager beeps in seconds. (Unless of course you have switched it to "Mem-O-Lert" which stores the signal until you're ready for it.)

The B.C. Tel Pager is available in Greater Vancouver, Victoria, Kamloops and Prince George.

PENNY-PINCH DEVELOPS ACROSS THE COUNTRY

While Canadians keep feeding coins into vending machines, parking meters, pay telephones and cookie jars in their kitchen cupboards, a severe coin shortage is beginning to develop.

Most provinces have not yet felt the pinch but British Columbia and Quebec report increasing shortages.

Victoria storekeepers report no immediate problem because of a high influx of U.S. coins into the city but were concerned that a shortage could develop.

The Vancouver area, however, has been hard hit.

D. J. Kloepper, assistant general manager of a Royal Bank branch in Vancouver, says the shortage has worsened, mainly because of the mint strike.

"Prior to the mint strike the coin situation in B.C. had been bad because of the fact that pre-1967 coins have been taken out of circulation.

"Now that there's nothing coming through the Bank of Canada, the situation is becoming critical," he said.

"Supplies are running dangerously low and if it continues for the next couple of weeks, we're going to be faced with a very severe rationing which is beginning already."

Beth Larkin, a cash office official at T. Eaton Co. Ltd., in Vancouver, said Eaton stores "don't have any nickels or dimes at all.

"We haven't got any from the bank in the last four or five days," she said.

All 4 Mayors Have Final Lockout Say

Mayors of all four Greater Victoria core municipalities now have power to vote for or against locking out municipal employees without referral to council.

Mayor Art Young of Esquimalt, Mayor Brian Smith of Oak Bay and Mayor Ed Lum of Saanich were given authority Monday to vote at their own discretion at meetings of the Regional Bargaining Group.

The group represents the municipalities of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Sidney, the Capital Regional District board and the Greater Victoria School Board in wage negotiations dealing with more than 1,750 employees.

Mayor Peter Pollen of Victoria received the same authority as the other mayors on Thursday.

Pollen's power was given on the same day the seven municipal employers announced they would counter with a complete lockout if any single strike action is taken.

In Esquimalt, Ald. C. C. Lundgren was the sole dissenter against giving Young voting powers.

Lundgren said he couldn't support a move that would lockout Esquimalt employees simply because employees of another municipality had voted to strike.

Flier Killed

EDMONTON (CP) — A 21-year-old Edmonton man was killed Monday night when the Cessna 150 he was piloting crashed in a field just west of the city.

City police said the body of Thomas Russell Gormley was found 40 feet from the wreckage by officers who used a borrowed snowmobile to reach the crash site.

$500,000 BILK WAS IN THE CARDS

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — A group of blackjack players using marked cards may have fleeced one of Nevada's largest casinos of $500,000.

Allegations that new decks of marked cards may have been slipped into play by placing them on the tables of unsuspecting dealers was reportedly being investigated by the Douglas County grand jury.

District Attorney Howard McKibben refused comment on the report, saying no arrests have been made.

Mark Curtis, a spokesman for Harrah's Tahoe Casino, where the cheating allegedly occurred over a period of time, declined to go into details.

"We're well aware of it, but I can't comment further because it's in the hands of investigators," Curtis said.

'Watergate' Probe Urged on CIA, FBI

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats voted overwhelmingly to create a Watergate-style special committee to probe the CIA and FBI.

Brushing aside impassioned objections from Sen. John C. Stennis, (Dem.—Miss.), perhaps the one member of congress who has received most information about the CIA and whose armed services committee has already begun its own investigation, the Senate Democratic caucus voted 45-7 to create the select committee, with power to subpoena witnesses and compel testimony, and asked for a report by Sept. 1.

Congressional sources said the Senate may vote on the proposal today. Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said Monday the committee could be operating by week's end.

Vice-president Nelson Rockefeller says his investigation has yet to find evidence of widespread domestic spying by the CIA.

But at the end of the second day-long meeting of his presidentially appointed panel, Rockefeller acknowledged for the first time that the commission will probably recommend tightening the CIA's charter, which already bans domestic spying.

Meanwhile two former FBI officials have confirmed that the U.S. agency collected and filed information about members of Congress during and after the regime of the late director, J. Edgar Hoover.

Representative Don Edwards (Dem.—Calif.), chairman of a House of Representatives judiciary subcommittee responsible for overseeing FBI operations, was preparing to announce today details of subcommittee hearings examining the FBI practice of keeping files on congressmen.

Deputy Attorney-General Laurence Silberman will testify before the subcommittee Jan. 30. The FBI has agreed to comply with Silberman's request for "all the material" in its files on at least 10 members of Congress.

FBI director Clarence Kelley said the charges that the FBI is improperly soliciting information about Congressmen of misusing information in FBI files concerning them are "erroneous and without any basis in fact."

"Congressmen are treated substantially the same as any other citizen concerning whom the FBI may receive information," Kelley said.

However, he said FBI does retain unsolicited information about members of Congress in case such information should prove useful should the congressman in question be considered for appointment to a position in the executive or judicial branches of government.

But, Kelley said, such information "is never used to influence the judgment or actions of any member of Congress."

Beer, Drugs Before Death

An inquest was told Monday night that an accident victim "had taken three beers, two Valiums and a sleeping pill" before the Jan. 14 accident.

This was the testimony of Mrs. George Brebber, of 1160 Esquimalt, the victim's wife. Brebber, 57, died of pneumonia resulting from rib fractures, pathologist Dr. Garth Walther said.

Brebber, died after being struck by a cab in front of his apartment 16 days earlier. The cab was driven by Blair Birch, 26, of 889 Cloverdale.

Sixteen-year-old David Hamilton, 828 Walker Heights, said he "squealed" his car to a stop, swerving to miss the man seconds before Brebber was hit by Birch's vehicle.

"Brebber didn't even look at me when I squealed and swerved," stated Hamilton.

Another cab driver who witnessed the accident said Brebber appeared "pretty drunk" when walking across the street; but according to two other witnesses, Brebber seemed to be walking normally.

The inquest will resume Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Victoria Law Courts with Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre presiding.

'Personal Care' Plan Set for Manor

Oak Bay council approved introduction of "personal care" nursing service at Oak Bay Manor following a public hearing which filled the council chamber Monday night.

Aldermen also indicated they are kindly disposed towards a proposal to locate at the manor a "reorientation program" for business people recovering from dependency on alcohol or pills such as tranquillizers.

That proposal will be subject of another public hearing in about a month before council decides to approve it or not. But aldermen did decide to have a draft bylaw allowing it prepared for study.

About 50 people, manor residents and neighbors, were on hand to hear details of both proposals explained by manor manager Ian Else. Dr. Charles Aharan, a clinical psychologist currently director of research and planning with the provincial Alcohol and Drug Commission, explained the "reorientation program" which he and two physicians want to start.

The 250-suite manor, at 2251 Cadboro Bay Rd., is a $5.5 million retirement home for people of above-average means. After two years of operation it is still about half-empty and Else has been frank in saying both proposals are aimed at making it a more viable financial operation.

The "personal care" service which has been approved will make minimal nursing service available for elderly residents who find they need assistance with such things as bathing, dressing or taking medication.

That service will be confined to an area on two floors of one wing with a maximum of 89 beds.

Some residents have expressed concern that adding the service was shifting the manor towards a hospital operation but Else denied this. He did concede he has been providing some nursing assistance already to those who need it "because I want to take care of my people."

But residents at the manor and neighbors appeared more concerned about the "re-orientation program" proposal and most seemed to have fears allayed by Aharan's explanlayed by Aharna's explana-

That program would have up to 20 people in residnece at the manor for 28 days with a heavy regiment of activities designed to change their lifestyle.

They would be productive people from business who had developed a dependency on alcohol or other drugs such as tranquillizers or sleeping pills in order to cope with pressure, Aharan said.

Only people who were now sober or off their dependency would be accepted on the program, which would use lectures, films, exercise, counselling, group discussions and a controlled diet to help them to a new sense of personal responsibility.

Aharan said the vast majority of rehabilitation facilities are pre-occupied with the skid-road type of alcohol victim while in fact most people with this affliction are middle class who reject using such rehab programs.

There is great need for a program in a setting acceptable to the middle class group and he believes the manor would provide such a setting.

It is "not a program of detoxification but of recovery," he said. And it would not include people outside the middle-class group or anyone who had been using illicit drugs because they would not mix successfully.

Symphony's Future in Balance

The board of directors of the Victoria Symphony Society will hold their regular monthly meeting on January 28. The proceedings will be fraught with significance for the future of the society and the orchestra. Some stern decisions must be taken by a group which has so far not established a reputation for firmness of purpose.

A simmering row within the board boiled over last November with the resignation of two directors who expressed dissatisfaction with the conduct of the society's affairs. Since then many Victorians have taken sides in the dispute, some of them without fully understanding its causes.

It all seems so simple. Either you are for the talented musical director Laszlo Gati who has brought the orchestra to its present peak and against a penny-pinching board which would put him in an artistic strait-jacket, or you are against an obstreperous Gati and for a board conscientiously striving to balance its budget by controlling expenses and eliminating extravagance.

It is no simple tug-of-war. Cloaks rustle and daggers gleam. Rumors of a vicious nature are being circulated. Lawyers have been brought into the dispute. Sufficient members' signatures have been obtained to call an emergency general meeting of the society as prescribed by its constitution. What an emotional donnybrook that would be! It would give Victoria something to gossip about for months — but it wouldn't necessarily cure the society's ailments.

That can best be done by the present board buckling down to some unpleasant work. The roots of the problem lie far deeper than a power struggle between personalities. Two mature and respected members of the community, experienced in the ways of the world, would not have resigned from the board for that childish reason. Yet incomprehensible as it may seem, neither one of them has ever been approached by any remaining member of the board and asked to explain what upset them about the handling of the society's affairs. It's almost as if they don't want to know.

The present crisis is unlikely to be resolved until all the facts have been examined and related. The best group to do this is the present board, if it only will. If the courage and intelligence of its individual members are not applied collectively, then outside intervention is inevitable.

Wish them well at their meeting. They are under a spotlight which none of them sought. And heave a sigh of gratitude for an orchestra which, through all the storm and stress, continues to play like angels.

Credit Where It's Due

An over-inflated sense of self-importance seems to go with the job of politician. It appears to be an occupational disability, and one could formulate a mathematical law about the seriousness of an individual case — it gets worse the farther away from the last election and the closer the next one comes.

A case in point is the memorandum Public Works Minister Bill Hartley circulated earlier this month to all school districts and community colleges, and apparently to hospital administrators and other local officials. It asks that Hartley be notified of the imminent opening of any structure financed with provincial monies, so the appropriate provincial politician can be on hand and suitable hoopla arranged for the ribbon-cutting.

According to the leaked memo, these "services" are being offered "in the interests of providing due recognition to the provincial government for the expenditures that it makes in various fields and for the purpose of increasing public interest in these official openings." You bet.

The current provincial administration is no better or worse in the matter of attention-grabbing where credit is due, and sometimes where none is due. For example, outside the Eric Martin Institute at Royal Jubilee Hospital (erected in 1969 under Social Credit) is an imposing sign identifying the building. It also carries at the bottom the additional wording: "Provided for the People of Vancouver Island by the Government of the Province of B.C." As if it was their own money they were spending!

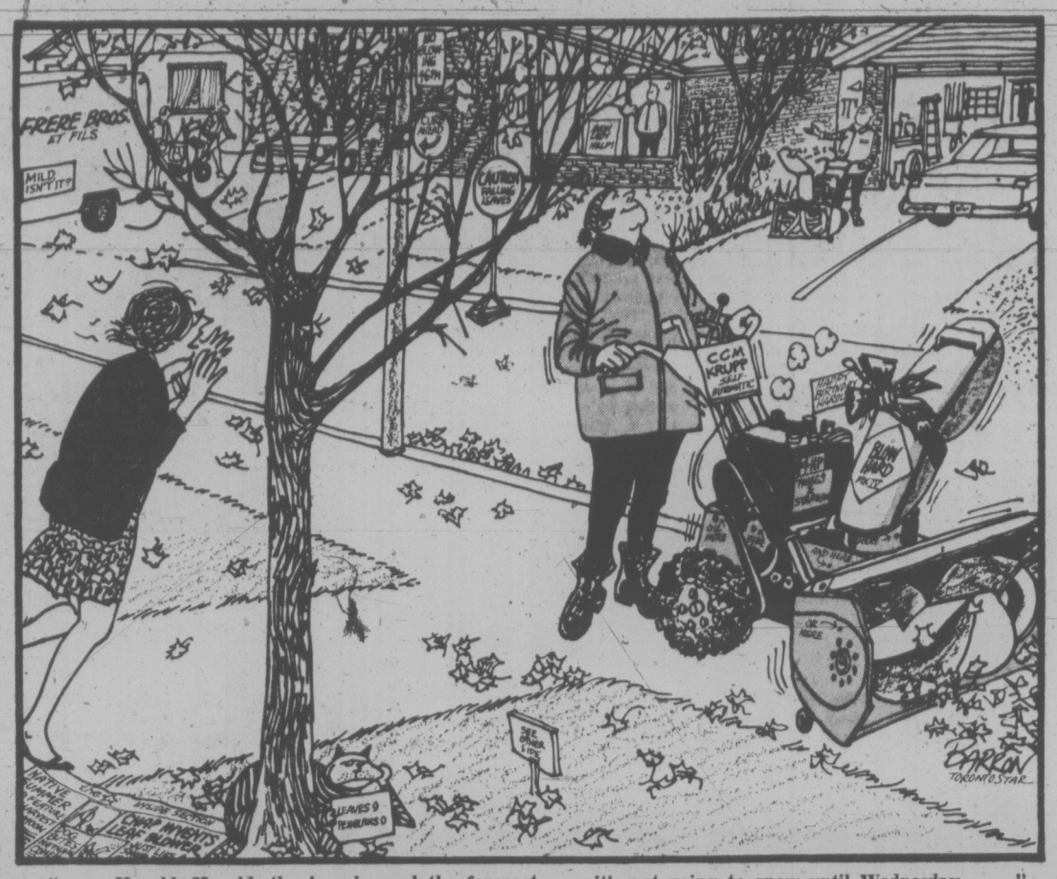
How about some credit where credit is really due? Put an average taxpayer up on the platform and let him wield the scissors next time a new provincial courthouse building or a school or hospital wing is to be opened.

Attitude, Not Gimmicks

It's international women's year, as if we needed reminding after the large ads the federal government is inserting in newspapers around the country, taking a page directly from the notebooks of two successive Canadian governments.

With this in mind it's sad to see this year of emphasis on women's new roles getting off to such a sick start. On the local scene the Victoria Rotary Club laughed at suggestions that a women's place might not be in the home when B.C. human rights director Kathleen Ruff addressed Rotarians on Thursday. Resigned women expect this sort of thing from a service club luncheon, but when the federal government adopts the same hayseed attitude it's time to worry. In large type the government ads say, "International Women's Year. It's not a slogan, it's an attitude." Gosh, that's impressive, along with the "why not" button and posters you can receive free of charge from the enlightened crew in Ottawa.

Impressive, but phoney too. If the government is really going to do something about the problem, it should not spend taxpayer's money on the kind of junk that comes in cereal boxes. Rather it should get down to legislating equal pay for equal work throughout the country, looking to its ambiguous abortion laws and opening up every job sector to women. As for the Rotarians, maybe they should order some posters, at least it might help them grow up.



" . . . Harold, Harold, they've changed the forecast . . . it's not going to snow until Wednesday . . . "

Wage Ballots

The politicians' attitude towards their purpose in parliament has been eroded from one of a sense of duty, sacrifice and responsibility to its electorate, to one of "how much do we get or rather how much shall we take."

There is no other job in the country where a man decides his own hours and wages. As I recall the MPs' last pay raise of 44 per cent in 1972 (more than ample) has covered the consumer price index rise of some 20 odd per cent over the same period. In other words, they are still at the end of 1974, 24 per cent ahead of the cost of living. With a 50 per cent pay-hike by the end of 1975 they'll be some 55 per cent to 60 per cent ahead of what they earned in 1972 before the pay hike. In other words, a profit of some 60 per cent. Yet there is no better calibre of politician today than in 1972.

Why can't we set up a system where upon every election there would be a second column on the ballot where a voter would vote for the percentage increase in wage he wishes the politician to get or he could vote no increase at all?

Another way: salary increases should be voted on just before an election so that the electorate can decide if their candidate deserves the new wage. — Toby Nilsson, 405-703 Esquimalt Road.

Lang's Integrity

In the Jan. 11 Times, Dr. Bette Stephenson, president of the Canadian Medical Association, said that federal Justice Minister Otto Lang should be removed from office for allowing his personal bias to interfere with his department's stand on abortion and that she found it impossible to use the title honorable because of his stand against abortion. Without a doubt there are thousands of Canadians who support Lang for his integrity.

In the United States and other parts of the world, we have a grim picture of crime. All because men in high places have ignored the laws of God, and man. Hitler decided who was to live and who was to die, millions were herded into the gas chambers at his command.

Now Dr. Bette Stephenson and other men in the medical profession, who at one time made a vow to save life at all costs, have followed in the steps of that evil monster Herr Hitler. Every right-minded Canadian doctor should vote against people like Dr. Stephenson, being elected to such an important position in the medical field.

One is thankful to know that there is one man in the medical profession who has the courage to stand up to men and women who have no regard for God's law. "Thou shalt do no murder." — J. Borradaile, 1127 Colville Road.

Control Incomes

Until recently, unions have asked for pay raises without any thought for their retirement other than indexing, but now some of them have a clause which causes their retired brothers to receive a raise with each raise the working members get in any new contract. That is all fair and equitable for those involved but for most retired workers, each pay raise means less for him. How many retired electricians or laborers can afford to hire their erstwhile brothers? Not many, I'd say. So in effect you union members still working are, as I was, just thinking about your pay. Of course, more pay, more pension, but it's not enough in recent times. Another thing, when one trade gets more than another they are either getting all they can, period, or they are saying to other tradesmen, we are worth more than you. This results in a see-saw which is now becoming obviously out of hand.

Are we to admit that the communists were right when they said democracy doesn't work? We in this country know their system doesn't work.

The solution? Controls just as we had in war-time. This is not any party's policy as I see it but if fairly applied it could help. As things stand I for one with a whole lifetime of work am going into a limbo where I cannot even go bankrupt as businessmen do but will "quietly" get ripped-off by a system for which I risked my life in a war and will continue to support out of sheer desperation. — H. F. L. Leggett, 948 Lyall Street.

Never Yes or No

I refer to your To The Point (editor's notebook) Jan. 11 with the sub-title: "Our men on the hill talk about pay raises."

Our local MPs Don Munro and Allan McKinnon will not answer your question about their individual stand on the pay raise with a simple "yes" or "no" answer. How amusing, and the true mark of a politician!

I recall it was the great John W. Dafoe, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press (years ago) or H. L. Mencken who had this to say about "politicians" and "diplomats:" "They never answer yes, they never answer no, and then they can never be wrong and held accountable".

I am one of the retired people McKinnon is grumbling about.

This month effective Jan. 1, we get our pensions raised 10.1 per cent. I am a retired (invalided out) federal employee (RCMP). I am not sure, but I think one must be over 60 years to get this raise. I am 56 years. So I have nine years to go to OAP.

The MPs voted themselves a fat pension some time ago, but in fairness to Munro and McKinnon, they were not MPs at the time. — W. R. Morgan, 105 Island Highway.

Violence Is Defeat

When will we ever learn—violence begets violence? The violence employed by the murderer, rapist and dope dealer stems from the same sources—greed, fear and hate, that motivate the violence advocated by the enraged citizen demanding a return to the gallows and flogging. (Will the good burghers regress as far back as burning at the stake and crucifixion?)

When a people wants its laws to incorporate the right to do violence to a certain category of its members, something terrible happens to that society. The dignity and divinity they deny their "fallen" brothers is lost to themselves as well. The violence they employ against the deviate few, infects the moral fibre of everyone in the society, good and bad. The tragedy is not that the good guys lost and the bad guys won, but that the good guys have joined the bad guys, the sickness of the few—violence—has infected the whole. The use of violence is an admission of defeat. — H. Hagbarth Sorensen, 10-99 Gorge Road West.

Icy Response

The irresponsible and immature reporting on the recent bomb scare in Victoria is precisely the kind of reporting which earns the press the accusation of sensationalism and encourages me to seriously question the retention of the much-vaunted freedom of the press, i.e. freedom without responsibility, and to think in terms of some kind of control.

"City Panic" your headline reads. I suppose reporter Kit Collins was referring to all of the, say 1-200th of the population who may have had any inkling of what was happening. Judging from the lavish photograph it seems to me that the word stupid better describes the actions of those who were close by, rather than panic.

"Icy silence," she says. What an imagination, and why, if the police had proper control of the "panic stricken city," was it necessary to put our two major hospitals on a stand-by alert?

Frankly, it read like something out of the funnies and I can only hope that friend Collins is not turned loose to report on any serious major incident that may occur in Victoria otherwise panic there certainly will be. — A. J. Broome, 2275 Dunlevy Street.

Lack of Truth

The younger generation has blessed us with a phrase that goes: "Telling it like it is." This to me is reminiscent of the old Dragnet television series where all that was required was "the facts, ma'am, just the facts."

No matter which version, the old or the new, it means the same, tell the truth — the plain unadulterated truth — and if the world's leaders at all levels, politicians, unionists, management, manufacturers, advertisers, the media, and what have you would mutually agree to adopt either one of the above "slogans," I feel sure many of the troubles we are experiencing in this age could be solved.

Meanwhile, we must continue, I imagine, to be subjected to parochialism, half-truths (never lies), partial facts, embellishments, misrepresentations, one-sided stories with the desired slant, big and small print, etc., all presented to the general public by "responsible" persons for the singular purpose of making their particular case, cause or product appear just that much better.

I have no particular axe to grind, other than the fact that politicians, unionists, business management and advertisers seem to look upon us, the general public, as a bunch of imbeciles. This is obvious by the so-called news and general propaganda we hear, see and read daily. Thank God we are all, in the majority, blessed with an average amount of grey matter, that permits us to understand and reason things out, despite an apparent belief to the contrary.

Like Alice's looking glass world, everything is becoming distorted and out of focus, full of Mad Hatters and cardboard people, with complete lack of control.

Like Alice, we must start thinking for ourselves, because it is the only way we are going to retain our sanity and get back into the world of reality.

Failing this, I see no other future for mankind other than a continual decline in morality and principles to the point where we will become history.—W. Burton, 521-1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

It's Madam Ambassador Now

NICE, France—One little-noticed revolution in American bureaucratic life has been the swift emergence of the U.S. female diplomat. Within the brief period 1971-1974, the number of women foreign officers enrolled in the state department and the U.S. Information Agency has tripled, rising from 4.9 per cent to 15 per cent.

This may not seem a sensational figure. Yet it must be remembered there is no overwhelming pressure by women to enlist in such work. Also, there are potential detractions as well as attractions involved, especially in terms of normal family life with husband and children. Foreign service careers demand continually shifting posts.

No Advantages

The significance hidden behind the figures is more important than the statistics themselves. To begin with, as an indication of the sudden importance of women to American diplomacy, the present head of the foreign service is Ambassador Carol Laise who has held high State Department positions at home and abroad and is also the happy wife of Ellsworth Bunker, one of the great public figures of this generation of U.S. envoys.

An unusually attractive example of the new type of American diplomat is Eleanor Hicks, black, beautiful, young, intelligent (a composer and singer who is now engaged in writing a book) and head of the United States consulate in Nice (also accredited to the independent state of Monaco).

Apart from good looks and brains, Ms. Hicks had no advantage in life, coming from a poor family in Columbus, Georgia. Her father moved to Cincinnati, Ohio, after the Second World War and worked his way into the local black bourgeoisie. Eleanor studied at Johns Hopkins, first planning to become a U.N. interpreter (French, German, Italian) but ultimately joining the Foreign Service in 1966. She served previously in Hamburg and Bangkok.

She believes that within four years, radical state department reforms have improved the position of both women and racial minorities, reflecting changes in human rights already brought about in American society as a whole. This makes it far easier for a woman (or a black) to do a more effective job of representing the U.S. government abroad.

ELLSWORTH BUNKER
. . . wife heads U.S. diplomats

"What impresses me most," she says, "is to see the change in recruiting of candidates. Women, minorities, and people from every level of society are sought out. The foreign service is becoming a body that is completely typical of our country. At a gathering of foreign service officers, it is wonderful to see how wide a representation of American society is mirrored. In this respect, our diplomacy now differs from that of all other countries."

Ms. Hicks feels her biggest disadvantage when first entering the service was in being a woman, not in being a black. The gulf of bigotry had already largely been crossed. But the changed status of women diplomats occurred more recently.

Now she feels there is nothing in the way of her undisguised ambition to go all the way up the ladder and run her own embassy someday (while writing music and books en route). Marriage doesn't present a problem in the more flexible foreign service. She points out there are more and more couples with both husband and wife working for a state department that seeks to send them to the same post abroad whenever possible.

Eat It Too

"If I do marry," she mused, with a glint in her almond-shaped eyes, "it will have to be someone who just isn't tied down to one place. Like an artist or a writer. Someone who can move around.

"And I suppose a husband has to be within a reasonable distance of you—but not necessarily on exactly the same scene. I'll say this, the government now tries to make it easy for women to accommodate marriage to the needs of the foreign service. That's a big change."

Ms. Hicks is the best-known U.S. consul Nice has ever had and is much admired by the gallants of the Mediterranean littoral. She readily concedes that "today a woman in the foreign service gets just as good a break as a man." Indeed, she acknowledges with a grin, she can both have her cake and eat it.

"I don't buy all of women's lib," she said, "because I like being treated as a woman. It's more natural, isn't it? Yet, I have a double advantage. I get listened to with respect. And then people get up and open the door for me."

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of January 21, 1915

With more than the customary ceremony, the opening of the legislature of British Columbia took place this afternoon at three o'clock. Hon. Frank S. Barnard, who assumed the office of lieutenant-governor of the province on Dec. 17, made his first official appearance in that capacity. There was a large naval and military staff in attendance on his honor. In the speech from the throne, it was stated that although the timber industry was suffering a depression, the industrial activities of the province have been well-maintained in the intervening year. In fishing, 1914 was a banner year with $15 million in output.

He Is Not a Man Of Snap Decisions

By HENRY MITCHELL

HASTINGS - ON - HUDSON, N.Y. — The Japanese lieutenant who required 30 years to achieve surrender and stop fighting World War II in the Philippines took one look at the lox and bagel on his plate and indicated to his honorable hostess here in suburban New York that he was not all that hungry.

In his self-appointed guerrilla years, Hiroo Onoda lived decades without a square meal, without a sound sleep, without a good bath. He almost fainted from joy when the Japanese youth who finally got to him in his island hideout gave him a can of beans.

"For the first time in 30 years," he said afterward, "I was eating something fit for human consumption."

But lox and bagel—well. There are limits.

You might assume from his 30-year war that Onoda is not the most flexible or adaptable fellow in the world. He may smile at strangers, especially if it's his duty (as author making a tour for his book sales) to do so, and he will even gaze at the Super Bowl on television, though it can hardly mean anything to him, his first day of a brief trip through America.

But Onoda is a man of great caution—he lasted 30 years in enemy territory without getting shot—and not a man of snap decisions.

His book is called "No Surrender," though he did, in fact, surrender last February. But something like "NEVER" is central to his character, and whether this quality has ever made him happy or ever will is something he does not discuss in the book.

He was terribly surprised that Japan surrendered. He had supposed the Japanese would die to the last man before that happened.

When he himself surrendered, they gave him back his sword, as a nice gesture of respect for his 30 years of faithfulness to duty as he saw it.

He said that when he saw that respect for what he had believed in, he felt for a second "the pride of the samurai."

The facts are plain enough, at least from Onoda's version of them, and it's hard to understand any human without beginning with the facts as he sees them.

First, he was an intelligence officer, not an infantryman. He was isolated on a small sparsely populated island of no consequence and when it was said the war was over, he had no reason to believe it. The enemy was always telling lies to demoralize you. He was left with two companions, both of them later shot by natives hostile, because Onoda and his buddies kept stealing rice and burning barns and killing cows and occasionally killing the men, because they thought of themselves as still being at war.

Well, it is true that in those 30 years Onoda did think the war was going on awfully long, and he did, of course, hear rumors of peace. The Japanese government spent a fortune trying to get the message to him, dropping leaflets from planes, sending special missions to fetch him back.

Twice, members of Onoda's family were sent to the island and he heard them at a distance, on their loudspeakers, begging him to return because the war was over.

But if a man doesn't want to believe something (and no samurai wishes to believe his nation has been defeated), then it is almost impossible to produce evidence he will find convincing. No matter what anybody did or said, Onoda found some reason to believe otherwise. He thought the newspapers had been censored just to entrap him, and he thought the radio broadcasts (which indicated peace had returned to Japan) were merely propaganda to make him betray his mission.

What happens to a man whose whole world has crumbled, whose sufferings of 30 years appear to have been useless or ludicrous or wasted? What happens when a faith that the nation would die, rather than surrender, proves false? What happens when you tear yourself to pieces in order to achieve the discipline that allows you to continue your guerrilla mission for 30 years giving up home and sex and luxury and comfort only to wonder if it was worth it, and only to see some people grin?

"I can look at any jungle and tell you if it's a good jungle . . . but I can't do the same with a woman," says former Japanese army lieutenant Hiroo Onoda, who spent 29 years hiding out in the Phillippines jungles after the end of the Second World War. He's doing the samba here with a nightclub dancer in Sao Paolo, Brazil, where he is intending to settle. Right now he's publishing a book about his experiences.

What does a man do, who fought a mortal enemy for 30 years, only to find himself presented with lox and bagels in the very citadel of the enemy nation in a room full of photographers and reporters lookinug as if they thought maybe you were some sort of rare specimen, if not a certified psychotic jackass?

And what happens to a man who after so many years goes back home to a popular hero's welcome, and then feels lost, and feels increasingly that his own people — for whom he suffered all those years — have become materialistic, grubby, cynical, a bit blind to honor, a bit indifferent to sacrifice?

In Onoda's case, he took one look at Japan and headed off to Brazil for a new life as a farmer and cattle raiser. His favorite brother moved to Brazil after the war, so they'll be there together. But Brazil can never be home, as Japan was.

One thing you can do — one thing people have always done — is tell your story. Hence the book. It is published, interestingly enough, by Kodansha, the one publishing house that seems to have figured out that Onoda was still fighting the war because his superiors never ordered him to stop.

Other publishers are said to have offered him more money but, if you've spent most of your life on a cause, you like to believe that even a publisher can understand that.

Onoda got through the brunch attended by affluent suburban folk interested one way or another in Japan, and friends of the American representative of the Kodansha publishers (who lives in this suburban village an hour out of New York). He seemed to be enjoying it and chatted with reporters through his interpreter, Charles S. Terry, who translated his book into English (it will be published the end of this month).

It occurs to you that you are not going to find out, in four hours or so, whether Onoda is a hero. If you ask him about that ring on his finger, he says an American gave it to him when he surrendered, and sure enough it says "United States Air Force" in gold around its oval stone.

Suddenly it dawns on you that it's not your business whether Onoda is a hero. His story is fascinating, his survival is incredible, his book is absorbing, but it's more than that that keeps you looking at him:

If he is a samurai, a man of noble and decent sacrifice, then why did not samurai angels save him, or at least grant him a samurai's death in battle, instead of leaving him alone and at loose ends at 52 in a world that half fears what may be his nobility, and half recoils from what may be his sickness?

It's not that you want to judge. It's that your want to know what is real.

And Onoda must be asking the same thing, also: What is reality? Is there any such thing as allegiance, or duty, or is it all just a farce, or a myth, that a man must be faithful all the way to death?

Do orders mean anything, or can a soldier make up his own? Can he break his orders the first night of his watch, or the third, or the 50th, or can he break them after a year, or 10 years or 30 years?

Onoda says—and it is easier than any other explanation to believe, incredible though it is—he thought his orders were forever, unless and until those orders were changed by new orders from his qualified superior.

Does this amount to allegiance of a high sort, or does it amount to stupidity? To what extent does a man rightly believe in the law (military orders in his case), and how often or how soon or on what grounds may he break the law and still have respect for himself?

You do not read Onoda's book or talk to him at all without thinking of Quixote, the Spanish gentleman of quite moderate means who perceived windmills to be evil giants, and who damned near killed himself in fighting them. And they were only windmills, after all.

Is duty, is an oath of allegiance, a windmill, too? Is suffering nonsense? Something any sane man avoids?

Onoda is bent on a new life in Brazil. The past is done. Right or wrong. If it leaves him a little baffled, well, reality has a way of doing that.

His friends—if he had any left after 30 years in a forest—could possibly explain to him that his disillusionment is all his fault. He should have done this, should have known that, should have believed the other. One way or another, he brought all those years on himself. That's what friends are for, to show you you're in a jam for your own faults.

There was another baffled fellow, once, whose world was all screwy and he was invited to admit it was all his fault, and invited to spit at every faith he had ever believed in and he was tempted to, but (according to an excellent translator of some centuries ago) he sort of held on.

"Though he slays me," he said of his faith, "yet will I trust in him. With mine own eyes shall I see god."

Somewhere between the wasted years and the vision that makes it all worthwhile is where Onoda appears to be now.

Choices More Complex Than to Grow or Die

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

When Aristotle Onassis was trying to build an oil port and refinery on the New Hampshire coast last year, much of the local resistance centered on the beautiful little town of Durham. At one point the Onassis agent on the scene, Constantine Gratsos, wrote to a woman in Durham:

"My family background, academic education and personal inclinations would all make me the last person on earth who would like to desecrate a beautiful landscape . . . unfortunately, the evolution of the world . . . will inevitably result in the elimination of all that you and I and many other people cherish. Humanity has reached the point (where) we shall have to choose between existence and beauty . . ."

Gratsos put a familiar argument in particularly chilling form—the argument of necessity. It failed in New Hampshire: Durham and the coast remain as they were. Elsewhere it has worked. Bantry Bay, Ireland, was once a wonder of the world, green and lovely, rich with the creatures of the sea. Now, after an "accident" in unloading a supertanker, Bantry Bay reeks of oil and death.

Beauty was a value at risk in Durham. But Gratsos, for all his tone of brutal candor, was not really accurate in stating the issue.

As Bantry Bay shows, and as Singapore now knows, those who succumb to the argument of necessity may lose more than beauty and transquility; they may lose sustaining elements of life.

In a thousand ways, the industrialized world now faces basic decisions about its future course of development. And the crucial choice is not between existence and beauty. It is between two views of existence: the short-term and the long-term.

One of the great difficulties in our society today is that we do not have adequate mechanisms for weighing long-term interests against the immediate.

Immediate Gain

Our system grew on the principle of the market, the belief that millions of individual decisions produce the greatest benefit for the whole.

The market ideal has given us wealth and much freedom. But its emphasis is necessarily on immediate gain. How can a power company be expected to weigh its desire for cheap coal today against the country's need for grain 20 or 50 years from now?

There was a Gothic example the other day. A U.S. congressional committee heard scientific testimony that the gases used in aerosol cans, fluorocarbons, may be reducing the ozone layer some 15 miles above the earth, with potentially devastating effects on life. Ozone filters the sun's ultraviolet rays, which would otherwise cause skin cancer and worse.

A spokesman for manufacturers of the gas argued against the ban, which he said would "cause tremendous economic dislocation, particularly in the short-run." He asked for time to do more research on the ozone danger.

That is fair enough except that the effects of fluorocarbons on the atmosphere would go on for at least 10 years after a ban. If they turn out to have the feared result and are not banned until the year 1998, they would reduce the ozone layer by a third — perhaps enough to destroy all life on earth.

We look to governments to weigh the immediate against the distant, but governments are desperately short of people with the training and the vision to make such judgments. President Ford, for example, does not even have a scientific adviser on his staff. But the problem goes deeper than that.

The institutions of Washington, D.C., are almost entirely committed to the idea of growth of industrial and commercial expansion as the answer to society's ills.

It is an article of faith that the U.S. must go on with the post-war pattern of growth based on the intensive use of cheap energy.

Dubious Benefits

But the statement of that proposition is its own refutation. For energy is no longer cheap and will not be.

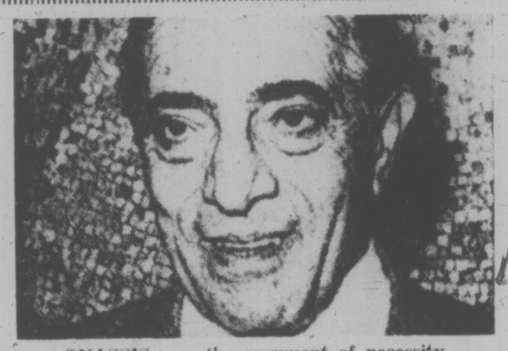
To go on expanding would require putting most future investments into new energy sources, with dubious economic benefits and devasting damage to the biosphere.

The curious thing is that people outside government, many of them, sense that we are entering a new time, with choices more complicated than to grow or die.

Ralf Dahrendorf, the former European Common Market official who now heads the London School of Economics, said recently that a "dominant theme" of Western society "appears to be spent." That is the theme of linear growth as progress, of consumption and quantitative expansion as ultimate goods.

"Growth must become a question of better than rather more," Dahrendorf said. That is easily said but not so easily arranged.

How do we assure employment in this new world, and individual motivation, and political leadership, and liberty? Those are the questions ahead.



ONASSIS . . . the argument of necessity

Who's for Sacrifice?

By DIAN COHEN
Toronto Star

The Queen, the Governor-General and the Prime Minister all told us the same thing this New Year: We must learn to share more with others.

A noble sentiment, but one more easily said than done.

"Sharing" in Canada has always meant widespread agreement that poorer Canadians deserve to improve their position more than richer Canadians. That's what progressive income tax and unemployment insurance and social assistance are all about — all these schemes redistribute income from people who have it to those who don't.

"Sharing" has also meant sending a slice of our economic pie overseas to developing countries.

Until now, the solution to the problem of people demanding more was simply to bake a larger pie. By expanding the output of goods and services, lower- and middle-income earners could have more, but upper-income earners didn't have to give up more.

For example, in 1973, the government found itself with a billion dollars it hadn't anticipated. Instead of giving the money back to the people who had contributed it to the tax coffers, the government used it to finance a new family allowance scheme.

The $20 a month each child in the country gets is now taxable. But because of our progressive tax system, families in lower-income tax brackets keep more of the "baby bonus" than families in upper brackets. Everyone gets something extra, but lower- and middle-income groups improve their relative positions in terms of sharing the pie.

In 1974, the pie or the economic wealth of the country — was worth about $140 billion. Compared with 1973's $120 billion pie, that looks like a much bigger pie. In fact, three-quarters of the 16 per cent increase was eaten by inflation, leaving us to share a real gain of only about 4 per cent.

For the past nine months, the pie hasn't grown at all. All indications are that the solution of expanding production rapidly is out — for the next few years, if not forever. Even the finance minister is convinced, or so he said in his November budget speech, that we must reach a consensus on who's going to get what.

Under these circumstances, continued improvement in the positions of lower- and middle-income earning Canadians can be met only by freezing or even diminishing the absolute incomes of the upper group.

In this connection, we are not talking about merely dismantling a few vast fortunes, although one can imagine how politically difficult that would be.

One enters the upper 20 per cent of income earners in Canada with an income of about $15,000 a year. These 20 per cent enjoy about 45 per cent of the national wealth.

To eliminate the advantage these people have over the "average" Canadian, the "rich" would have to give up a quarter or a third of their incomes. Just to narrow the gap between the rich and the poor, the rich would have to give up a sizeable chunk. That in itself would create enormous political strains.

What makes it even more difficult is the present world environment, in which incomes and resources are being redistributed among nations. Canada's per person national wealth is some 40 times greater than India's or Malawi's. To narrow the gap between their income and ours, rich and poor Canadians alike would have to give up income.

If it turns out that, for humanitarian or other less altruistic reasons, more resources are transferred to the developing countries, then affluent countries like Canada, which are expanding slowly or not at all, may find themselves for a period of time with declining physical output per person.

Up to now, sharing has meant dividing up an increasing number of cars and homes and TV sets. Now it means trying to divide up the same number of cars and homes and TV sets. For the immediate future it may mean dividing up a shrinking number of them.

The Canadian economic system works on the principle of competitive self-interest. It seems likely that each of us will struggle to maintain our relative shares. In doing so, we will build in more inflation as we bid up the prices of what's available.

A government serious in its redistribution goal will then have to impose more controls than it has ever contemplated. The question we will then have to answer is whether the government will still be democratic, and whether the economy will still be capitalist.

This is not to say that the sharing desired by the Queen and Prime Minister cannot be achieved. It is to suggest that the only circumstance in which citizens of a democratic capitalist state have voluntarily curtailed their acquisitive instincts has been in war or natural disaster.

There is to date no obvious consensus among Canadians that they will voluntarily give up anything, and no evidence that they can agree they are facing a common enemy.

Gov't Blamed in Bird Decline

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

The federal environment department is not pulling its weight to halt the decline of Vancouver's Island's largest natural migratory bird refuge, says Ed Mankelow of Chemainus, president of the B.C. Wildife Federation.

He was referring to southern Clayoquot Sound, north of Pacific Rim National Park at Long Beach.

The sound, with its tidal mud flats, is a resting and feeding area for hundreds of thousands of waterfowl and shore birds nesting in northern B.C., Yukon, Alaska and Siberia.

Residents, like Ken Gibson, former mayor of Tofino, recall that 40 years ago the "roar of wings was deafening like thunder and the sky was black with geese."

As many as 30,000 geese would alight on one of the tidal flats at one time.

But use of the area by migratory birds has been steadily declining due to hunting and past logging practices, they say.

Mankelow noted under the International Migratory Bird Act, the federal government is partly responsible for the protection of waterfowl.

"But so far it has done little to provide funds to the Canadian Wildlife Service to rehabilitate impaired feeding areas," he said. "We hope the enviroment departmnet under the new minister, Mrs. Jean Sauve, will correct the situation."

Mankelow said it was to the credit of the provincial government that it did not wait for Ottawa to do something to preserve the bird refuge.

"In the last three years, the department of conservation and recreation, has reserved all the tidal flats over 10 acres for waterfowl, turned over 1,000 acres of crown land to the wildlife branch, and bought upland property to protect the feeding areas from pollution," he said.

"But more funds are needed for purchase of land and for rehabilitation projects," he added.

The man who drew attention to the decline of the large bird feeding area was David F. Halter, a former federal biologist, who conducted a study of the area for the Canadian Wildlife Service.

He is now with B.C. Fish and Wildlife Service.

He was so awed by some of the still large flocks of waterfowl resting there in fall or wintering in the area that he recommended that measures be taken to preserve the water birds in Clayoquot Sound for "all future generations to enjoy."

In his report, he urges the government to think of the birds first before hunters.

Some of the reasons he found for the decline was the practice during the 1960s of using motor boats and planes to herd the flocks of ducks and geese in the direction of hunters.

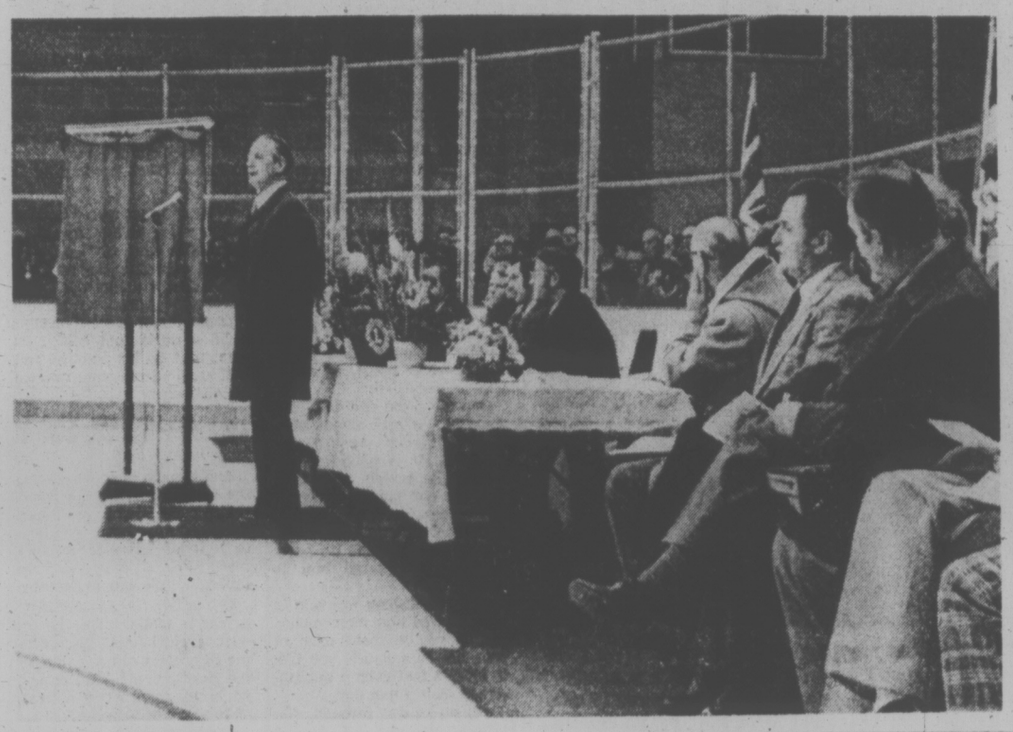
He also says the opening of the road to Long Beach didn't help the birds. It brought more people to the area, many with boats. Some shot the birds from their fast moving crafts or harassed them just for fun.

Silt from erosion of logged over areas may have covered marine plant life in some bays, he adds.

(Logging practices have much improved in the area since Resource Minister Robert Williams in 1972 laid down guidelines to minimize damage to forest lands, according to residents.)

Halter is not opposed to hunting in the area, but he does recommend that certain tidal flats be established as sanctuaries.

One bay is already a sanctuary because it is within the national park.



A FULL SCHEDULE of activities is under way this week in the $1.5 million Mill Bay-Shawnigan Lake Recreation Centre after opening ceremonies Sunday saw more than 700 turn out. Pictured at the microphone is Minister of Transport Robert Strachan (NDP - Cowichan - Malahat) who unveiled the plaque. There is public skating sessions Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday with a teen jamboree session Fridays from 8 to 10 p.m. Curling will not start until sometime early February.

PUBLISHERS SEEK B.C. BOOK SALE AID

British Columbia publishers have asked three provincial cabinet ministers for assistance in promoting local books, B.C. Publishers Group vice-chairman David Hancock said Monday.

He said the cabinet ministers expressed interest and would contact the group after the three had discussed the various proposals.

Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk was asked to set up a plan, similar to one in Ontario, where publishers can have loans from banks guaranteed by the government and based on 75 per cent of inventory and 75 per cent of accounts receivable. At present most B.C. publishers borrow on personal holdings.

An optinonal extra suggested by the publishers would be to have the provincial government pick up the tab for half the interest charges, which would cost the government about $50,000 a year. This is in the Ontario plan.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall has been asked to establish a provincial version of the Canada Council book grants to specifically aid B.C. writers on B.C. topics. This is identical to the Ontario plan about $57,000 a year and would produce 57 books, Hancock said.

The books would be mainly those that are worth publishing but are not likely to show a profit, such as books of poetry, plays and cultural themes.

In addition, Hall's department would be encouraged to do more of its public library buying through B.C. bookstores. Most buying is done from the U.S., United Kingdom and Ontario.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly has been urged to follow a similar approach for buying books for school libraries.

Hancock said the three cabinet ministers have indicated they will discuss the proposals at a joint meeting and reply to the publishers by the middle of February.

NAILS ON ROADWAY DEFLATE CAR RALLY

BURZET, France (AP) Spectators who threw thousands of nails on the road disorganized the Monte Carlo rally today.

The big nails were scattered over the Burzet Plateau roads in south - central France where the competitors were due to run their second race against the clock this morning.

The race was delayed for minutes as police and spectators' cars had dozens of punctures repaired and teams with brooms tried to sweep the road clear.

DEAN PARK SUBJECT OF AREA MEETING

The Dean Park development consisting of 113 homes and its effect on the community will be discussed at a "town hall" meeting Wednesday night by residents of the Dean Park area in North Saanich.

The meeting is for residents south of the airport and will be held in Sansbury school auditorium.

A. G. Gilmore, president of the Dean Park Property Owners Association, says the municipality has gone a long way to see that interests of the community have been protected.

The meeting is to get residents' views.

Sewers, water and streets will be the responsibility of the developer, says Gilmore.

City Hall Leaders Drop Resignations

The president and vice-president of the City Hall Employees Association withdrew their resignations at an executive meeting Monday.

Doug Casey, president, and Dennis Burke, vice-president, offered to resign because, said Casey, "we felt we'd gone the whole route short of a strike vote" in current negotiations.

Members of the association, which is Local 388 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, have twice turned down contract settlements recommended by the leadership. After the second rejection, however, they gave them a vote of confidence.

Casey said the executive Monday requested he and Burke not resign because it was not a good time to put a new bargaining team in and a vote of confidence was given.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Old Coins: Don't Get Taken

LEVINE
. . . urges caution

This is the advice of Peter Levine, manager of one of Victoria's coin shops.

Levine said the rising prices of gold and silver have skyrocketed the price of most coins.

He emphasized he was not suggesting people deal only with him — he's manager of Monarch International's Victoria store — but he did recommend people cross-check prices with his and other stores.

"People who are left coins really have no knowledge of the coin market," he warned. "It's important to compare prices before they sell. An established shop has its reputation to consider and will tend to pay a better price."

He compared the prices offered for coins in an advertisement inserted locally by a Vancouver coin collector to prices offered for the same coins in an advertisement appearing in the Coin Stamp Antique News.

The Coin Stamp Antique News is the only paper on coins in Canada, publishing every two weeks and available on some city newstands.

"People who get interested in coins should subscribe to it," he advised. "It always contains a Canadian price guide and market values."

Stressing the price given on coins varied, depending on the condition of the coins and other factors, Levine compared prices offered in the two advertisements for Canadian silver dollars.

They were:

Local Advertisement	Coins Stamp Antique News
1935-1936 and 1937—$5	$11 to $34
1938—$12	$20 to $100
1939—$3	$5 to $15
1945—$50	$120 to $200
1946—$15	$18 to $60
1947 BL—$30	$55 to $105
1947 ML. PTD—$75	$125 to $240
1948—$250	$375 to $600
1949—$8	$10 to $23
1950, 1951 and 1952—$4	$4.50 to $75
1953—$2.50	$3 to $5
1954, 1955 and 1956—$4	$5.50 to $113
1957 and 1958—$3	$3 to $18
1956 through to 1967—$2.15	$2.50 to $19

Levine said he cited these examples only to accent the importance of getting as much advice as possible before selling coins that could bring much more than expected.

VANCOUVER FIRM WINS SCHOOL BOARD JOB

The new media centre for Greater Victoria school board will be built by McGinnis Construction Ltd. of Vancouver.

The board Monday awarded McGinnis the contract for building the two-storey structural steel building at a cost of $555,458, including electrical work.

The new building, which will house $800,000 worth of audio-visual equipment and teaching aids, will be behind school district offices on Foul Bay Rd.

Only Trustee Janet Baird voted against approval of the contract, saying the board shouldn't erect new buildings at a time of growing recession.

"Public institutions right now should try very hard to curb their spending," Baird said.

Phil Perry, who last week spoke against the media centre, voted for the project. After reviewing the pros and cons, he said he is convinced the building is needed.

No mention was made by trustees of the contruction proposal for $487,607 by Wheaton Construction of Victoria. The wood building proposed by Wheaton was rejected.

However, school board administrators gave five reasons why the Wheaton bid was unacceptable, including loss of flexibility and long-term maintenance costs of the proposed wood building.

Wheaton spokesmen have been publicly protesting loss of the contract to McGinnis.

Money for the new building will come entirely out of local taxes, because the provincial government won't share in the cost.

The board hopes to have construction completed by July 1, the deadline for the media centre to vacate its present quarters in Camosun College's Ewing Building.

Board Scuttles School Brochures

Greater Victoria school board Monday scuttled plans to publish brochures describing every school in the district.

Trustees approved what Dr. Hal Knight called a "nice compromise" — each school will prepare a statement on its program and organization, which students and parents can see on request.

The pamphlets idea had been approved by the 1974 school board at its last meet-

The board also:

Ratified an agreement with Local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees settling a long dispute over janitor workloads. CUPE has already ratified the agreement.

Agreed to put a motion before the annual meeting of the B.C. School Thustees Association saying that the BCSTA should not hire or do financial business with former trustees or companies wholly or partly owned by former trustees until a year after their term as trustee ends.

Warehouse Zoning

In spite of opposition by two aldermen, Saanich council Monday rezoned property on Whittier to allow the building of a wholesale grocery warehouse.

Before it went to the vote, Ald. Mel Couvelier, who had opposed the rezoning at a December public hearing, said he had checked and found that 12 acres in the the area west of Douglas were already zoned industrial.

He repeated his assertion, made Dec. 16, that land already zoned industrial should be used before single-family lots were rezoned for commereial enterprises.

Gorge Freeze Wrong: Young

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young criticized council's planning committee Monday for "overstepping its authority" in a decision he felt could jeopardize waterfront land acquisition along the Gorge.

The mayor said he "feels very strongly" the planning committee should reverse a decision to freeze negotiations for a land-use contract on a 30-unit townhouse development in the 800-block Selkirk.

"For the benefit of the two new aldermen" (elected in December), he reiterated council's principle of trying to acquire the whole waterfront along the Gorge.

"Council has a moral obligation to try to come to grips with the land-use contract with Concord Credits Ltd.," he said.

"They're using some of our guidelines and we should be trying to come up with an acceptable decision.

"To table the motion for 60 days we're just fooling ourselves."

Planning committee chairman Ald. Conrad Lundgren indicated the decision would be reversed and negotiations with Concord would resume at the next committee meeting.

One of the land-use contract guidelines accepted by council was that the developer considering building in the 800 and 900-block Selkirk deed not less than 25 feet of waterfront land to the municipality.

Young said if negotiations were frozen "there is nothing to stop" the developer from building under current zoning, in which case he wouldn't have to deed waterfront land to council.

Lundgren said the committee had been placed in an "awkward" spot.

"I don't think we're trying to put the screws to anybody, we were just trying to give an honest look at the situation."

COUNCIL SUPPORTS ALD. McCREADIE

Esquimalt council Monday gave strong support for Ald. George McCreadie's right to be an absentee alderman.

A motion by freshman alderman Larry Mann, which would have petitioned for changes to the Municipal Act prohibiting non-residents from holding municipal office, was defeated.

Mann said he thought McCreadie might have felt some moral responsibility when he moved to Campbell River to resign before last November's municipal election.

"I put it forward because the question of why he was still an alderman was asked many times during my campaign.

"A person who runs as an absentee resident and is elected on that basis — well that's fine, but that's not the case here."

Mayor Art Young, however, said "I don't believe we should have the right to tell people who they may or may not vote for. This is a question of principle, not personalities".

Ald. Jim McEvay agreed, saying the motion could serve no useful purpose.

"An absentee alderman would not be elected unless he had outstanding qualities."

Only Mann supported the motion when it came to a vote.

McCreadie said after the meeting that he is considering moving back to Esquimalt and his Campbell River home is for sale.

MURDER BID CHARGE HEARD

A Jordan River hotel operator was committed to a higher court for trial on a charge of attempted murder following a one-day preliminary hearing Monday in Victoria provincial court.

Jeffery William Graham, 53, operator of the Jordan River Hotel, faces the charge of trying to murder his wife Daisy, 36.

Graham was charged after a shooting Oct. 4 in a hotel lobby.

Don't Panic: Nimsick

Canadian Press

Leo Nimsick, British Columbia minister of mines and petroleum resources, said Monday the province's mining problems will soon disappear "as long as non of us panic."

The minister made the statement in a press release in which he criticized the mining industry for trying "to make you believe that we are draining the industry of all its lifeblood."

Nimsick, who said he couldn't say too much about the industy problems because he was "one of the persons named in the writ suing the government concerning the constitutional validity of the Minteal Act, the Mineral Land Tax Act, and the Mineral Royalties Act" said he also felt he could formulate some defence of government policies.

He etimated the government's revenue from royalties this year would be about $13 million.

"In view of the fact that the industry had a self-professed net profit of $230 million in 1973, and with every indication of a healthy profit in 1974, I do not understand what they are crying about," he said.

He also challenged the industry's claim that mines are shutting down because of government legislation.

"On going back over history, I find that two mines shut down in 1970 involving 309 employees," Nimsick said. "Seven closed their doors in 1971 involving 873 employees, three closed down in 1972 involving 454 employees, two closed in 1973 involving 187 employees, and four in 1974 involving 680 employees.

"In every case the reason given for the shutdown was 'uneconomic.' I see no reason why they should zero in on the new legislation to play politics," he said.

The minister said he understood the hesitation of the industry "when you attempt to make changes that attack their citadel." But he said "as long as none of us panic, I am sure that all the problems will soon disappear."

Trafficker Given 3 Years

County court Judge M. L. T. Drake Monday sent convicted heroin trafficker Calvin Anthony Tremblay to penitentiary for three years following a trial at the Law Courts here last month.

Tremblay, 22, of Sidney, pleaded guilty to possession of heroin March 22, 1974, and a jury found him guilty of trafficking.

Arab Dollars Lure Many With Low Interest Rates

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The latest catchword among Canadian businessmen is: There's a Faisal in your future.

The king of Saudi Arabia has become the symbol for Arab oil money that is expected to flow in large amounts into this country, with a large portion coming to British Columbia.

Already announced are:

—$100 million in Arab oil money being borrowed by B.C. Hydro.

—A large portion of $300 million being borrowed by B.C. credit unions over the next three years.

—A possible $1 billion loan by the federal urban affairs department for mortgage funds.

And it's just a start.

On the one hand, a large number of B.C. lawyers and others are being signed up by the Arabs to act as agents to distribute money at high commission rates.

On the other hand, a large number of B.C. businesses want the money, because it enables them to consolidate their borrowings at low interest rates.

Rumors of millions of dollars available at 8 per cent or 9 per cent are attractive to executives faced with borrowing interim funds at current interest rates of 14 or 15 per cent.

The list of B.C. companies interested is almost endless, particularly in view of the fact the Arabs want to maintain a low profile and are not seeking directorships or other control to guard their interests.

The low profile by the Arabs is producing overnight fortunes for those lucky enough to be signed up as agents for them.

These agents, all non-Arab and mainly local lawyers, are getting as much as 1 per cent commission, which could turn an overnight $1 million for an agent arranging a $100 million loan.

Some businessmen report they have been phoned or visited by four agents in a single day.

The great Arab money boom, however, is expected to taper off.

Not that the supply of Arab cash will dwindle. It is expected to grow at an ever-increasing rate.

But companies can only borrow so much. And there is evidence that funds are becoming available once again from conventional sources.

Banks are finding themselves with a growing supply of funds as the recession spreads. The number of loans to buy cars, for example, is down sharply.

And local interest rates are becoming more competitive with the Arab funds. Some rather spectacular drops in the interest rates are expected during the year, unless the economy takes a dramatic upswing.

However, during the early part of 1975, the loan field belongs to Faisal.

Shell Canada

Shell Canada will decide before the end of this year whether it will proceed with a $250 million expansion of its refinery facilities at Corunna.

Company president William Daniel made the announcement at a news conference, adding that economic conditions in the next few months will play a major role in the decision.

Bushnell

Bushnell Communications Ltd. reports consolidated net earnings of $1,079,080 or 62.8 cents a share for the year ended Aug. 31, 1974, compared with $1,154,937 or 67.2 cents a share a year earlier.

The statement by Bushnell, which owns Ottawa Station CJOH-TV and repeater stations near Kingston, Ont., and at Cornwall, Ont., includes a write-off of $97,000 for programs produced for the Global Television network and provision for $24,000 in retroactively-imposed federal tax.

Gross operating revenues for 1974 were $13,386,624 compared with $11,918,606 for 1973.

Westmills

Westmills Carpets Ltd. of Kelowna reports profits plummeted in the three-month period ended November 22, 1974.

Profits declined to $20,000 or 1.7 cents a share, from $271,000 or 22.6 cents a share in the corresponding period a year earlier, the company said.

Company president H. Higson said the decline is attributed to a softer and more competitive market, to a $140,000 startup cost for a new Calgary plant and to $150,000 in increased interest costs.

He said he expected the added startup expenses would continue and that interest costs could be reduced by lowered rates and by sale of assets of the company's Meaford, Ont., cloth plant that was closed in 1974.

Saigon Exile Relates His 14 Months of Torture

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Vo Nhu Lanh is an exile from his homeland because he is a pacifist student leader.

He is a released political prisoner who for 14 months was beaten and generally mistreated because he refused to break for his tormentors. He bears lasting scars of his ordeal.

But he remains a 27-year-old idealist surprisingly free of bitterness and sensitive to the reactions of those to whom he tells his story.

He was in Victoria Sunday and Monday to do that and to urge Canadian support for a non-military Vietnamese government.

"I have been in Canada since Dec. 23 (1974) and I am moved by the number of people who have come out to hear me tell my story," Lahn said through an interpreter Monday.

"Many people have become so emotional, they have cried and come up to me afterward to hug me after telling of my experiences," he said.

Lanh is not a Communist and denies there were Communists in the National Union of South Vietnamese Students, of which he was acting president when arrested in May 1972 following a university demonstration against compulsory military training.

At the time he also was chairman of the student association at his own school, Van Hanh Buddhist University and was active in the student peace movement in Saigon.

The movement was demanding an end to military training of students during summer months; freedom of student activity in the universities, and a lowering of student fees.

Students also wanted an end to U.S. military presence in Viet Nam, and enforcement of the Paris peace.

There were fasts, demonstrations and non-violent action.

Students were not an armed force and fought back with sticks and stones only in their own defence, when attacked by police, Lahn said. He has been in prison twice and was never tried.

Tortures and abuse were an almost daily fact of life and continue to be for the estimated 200,000 still behind prison walls for their political beliefs in South Vietnam.

The first aim of police when he was jailed was to discourage his pacifism and role as a student leader, Lahn said. Secondly, he was mistreated to try to get him to reveal names of others in the movement so they also could be arrested. Finally, he was to confess that all student peace activities were instigated by the Communists.

Lanh was beaten by "professional" interrogators at five different prisons. His body was struck repeatedly in the most sensitive places by individuals and by groups of "professionals" tossing him between them.

His stomach was distended by huge quantities of water forced down his throat, and one of his tormentors would then sit on his swollen belly.

He would be suspended by his wrists, pulled behind his back and roped to the ceiling, while a heavy elastic band constricted the blood in his head.

Between sessions he would be confined to a dark, insect-infested cell in which he could scarcely move and was forbidden to read, write, sing or have contact with other prisoners or outsiders.

Like the others, he needed medical care and got none, but for six months after his release July 23, 1973, when he was deported against his will, to the Provisional Revolutionary Government zone, he was a hospital patient.

Now he makes a temporary home in Paris, where he undergoes treatment for heart and lung ailments, Lanh tires easily and complains his memory is not as good as it was before his internment.

He is trying to get permission to return to Saigon and meanwhile considers himself a political refugee.

With Nguyen Long, a 66-year-old lawyer who was in prison more than six years, and musician-teacher Ton That Lap, who was arrested three times, Lanh is sponsored on his Canadian speaking tour by Amnesty International and the International Committee to Free South Vietnamese Political Prisoners from Detention, Torture and Death.

They urge individual and organized action to press Canada and the U.S. stop their support for the Saigon government; they urge Canada, as a signatory of the peace agreement, to press for its implementation, and to recognize the PRG; they ask for letters to South Vietnam seeking the release of prisoners.

Lanh said the trio, besides speaking engagements, wants to talk to as many government representatives in Canada as possible to urge support of their aims.

Bureaucracy Blamed For High Home Costs

VANCOUVER (CP) — A report on housing in the Vancouver area blames municipal bureaucracies for their role in the accelerating increase in the cost of new homes and house lots in the area.

The report, commissioned by the United Way of Greater Vancouver's standing committee on housing, was released Monday.

Larry Schultz, who spent nine months working on the report, said part of the problem is that "everyone wants to get the veto power" so that new developments can be turned down.

Developers have to wait months or years to get approval to create subdivisons and planners, building inspectors, school committees, aldermen and citizens groups all want a voice in the process, he said.

The amount of land speculation in the greater Vancouver area, he added, is "phenomenal." The reason this speculation can exist is because restrictive policies by councils have created an "almost artificial shortage" of land.

If developers are encouraged speculation will be stopped, he claimed.

"The farmland freeze and the Land Commission Act did not cause a shortage in the supply of land for development," said Schultz, but there was still enough room in the Lower Mainland to allow for a tripled population "without touching agricultural land."

He said the leak of information prior to the farmland freeze created a "picnic" in the land market and prices jumped overnight.

Housing costs in Burnaby by 1974 had increased to about $38,500 from the 1963 cost of $12,700 for the average home, he said.

Eight percent of the increase was due to higher taxes, 13 per cent higher interest charges, 26 per cent higher construction costs, and 53 per cent higher land costs, he claimed.

The report criticized the use of "land use contracts" by municipalities. The device allows municiaplities to set aside some zoning bylaws to allow innovative developments.

"Unhappily, it has increased the complexity and uncertainty for the developer, and has often been used by municipalities to restrict growth without appearing to do so," said the report.

The report recommends that municipalities appoint a housing "expediter" to speed the process; that developers be able to appeal to the provincial government if they encounter unreasonable delay; that municipalities prepare master plans to guide developers; that the per capita grant to municipalities be increased; and that the provincial government make serviced land available to small builders with some control over the builder's profit.

Jack Gilmore, president of the United Way housing committee, said an early draft of the report was sent to provincial minister of housing, Lorne Nicolson, and the report will be sent to local aldermen and MLAs.

Gilmore said the councils "are aware that the people with clout in the community oppose growth" and they consequently delay development. He said the provincial government should rewrite the municipal act, which has not been revised since the 1950s, to streamline the development process.

REVELSTOKE (CP) — Tony Nunes, 41, of Revelstoke, was killed Monday when his snow dump truck accidentally slipped into a river while he was backing it up to a dumpsite. An inquest will be held.

GRAVEDIGGERS AGAIN PICK UP SHOVELS

VANCOUVER (CP) — The gravediggers dispute, which has halted burials in the British Columbia lower mainland since Oct. 7, was settled Monday. Work will resume at once at the two cemetaries where the men have been on strike. The 25 gravediggers accepted an increase of $1.85 an hour in stages during one year, retroactive to Oct. 1, 1974. Base rate for the workers was $3.98 an hour. Burials will begin with bodies stored since the strike began. Other burials will be deferred for the next week or so.

Stockbroker Wins Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Terming the evidence offered in a British government application "flimsy," Judge Larry Eckardt Monday dismissed the application to extradite former stockbroker John Henry.

Henry, 34, who now lives in Vancouver, is charged in England with 17 violations of the United Kingdom Theft Act. He was accused of falsifying certain records of clients of London stockbrokers A. J. Pryor and Co. from 1970 to 1973 when he was their employee.

Under the Fugitive Offenders Act of Canada, provincial judges can rule on extradition hearings when it pertains to commonwealth countries.

Judge Eckardt said the depositions presented to the court did not go far enough.

"The evidence does not raise a strong or probably presumption that the fugitive committed the offences mentioned in the various counts contained in the warrant."

HEARING BEGINS

NANAIMO (CP) — A preliminary hearing into charges against three men accused of escaping lawful custody Nov. 27 began today despite an attempt Monday by a defence counsel to adjourn the hearing.

Judge Stan Wardill denied an application for adjournment after it was filed by a representative of a Vancouver law office representing Ricky Dale Beeman, 23.

Beeman, Robert Moyse, 25, and Claire Wilson, 19, are charged jointly with three counts of attempted murder, escaping custody, unlawful seizure and assault causing bodily harm.

Women Teachers Hit School Sexism

VANCOUVER (CP) — A group of women school teachers presented a brief to the Vancouver School Board Monday, calling it "our first steps to eradicate sexism from the school system."

Board Chairman Dr. Katharine Mirhady welcomed the group as a suitable delegation to start out the International Year of Women.

Al Patterson, president of the Vancouver Elementary School Teachers Association, said the delegation headed by Nora Groves and Maureen Pollard, was more concerned with the status of people.

The brief was critical of the board for not hiring women for administrative positions.

There are only six women principals in the city and four of them are in elementary schools.

Among the recommendations in the brief:

—A program of co-educational sex education from kindergarten up;

—A more equitable male-female teacher ratio in secondary elementary schools;

—Workshops and training to equip women for top positions.

—Appointment of women to administrative posts in preference to men until balance is reached.

—That the board make use of the title Ms.

—More extensive use of part-time teachers.

—A women's studies course for Grades 11 and 12.

—Integration of all physical education classes.

FATE OF B.C. KILLERS WATCHED IN MARITIMES

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — The fate of a pair of convicted killers of two policemen in British Columbia is being watched closely by prison officials who will meet in Moncton, N.B., next month, a top city police officer said Monday.

"The decision on whether to hang these men will set a precedent for us to work with," Inspector Ken MacKenzie, president of Local 101, Police Association of Nova Scotia, said in an interview.

The Moncton meeting Feb. 8, just 12 days after the scheduled execution of the two Jan. 27, will act as a platform for Atlantic provinces' policemen to voice their opinions on capital punishment laws and the handling of them by governments, he said.

The meeting was planned after the killing of two Moncton policemen last month. Two men face capital murder charges in the slayings.

"The government should either enforce this law or take it off the books," Insp. MacKenzie said.

"I think we, as policemen, just want to know what the law is and what protection we have."

Distractions Make Cairns Cougar's Hidden Treasure

Some of the shrewd hockey scouts play their game like hunters of antiques.

Like everyone else, they quickly spot the obvious treasures so they concentrate on the out-of-way shops with a hope they may find the great bargain that has been missed by fellow experts.

Victoria Cougars no longer are overlooked. When it comes to scrutiny, the team is in the high-rent district because of this season's success.

Consols: With Aces Out Island Berths a Bonus

Zone Consols curling results on the mainland being what they are, there does seem an excellent opportunity for an Island rink to make it somewhere in the Pacific Coast Curling Association playdowns this year. And this suggestion is made before the Island reps are decided in the Island final at Duncan this weekend.

The reasoning is extraordinarily simple. Because primarily defending B.C. champion Jim Armstrong is already on the sidelines; so is his rinkmate, the perennial rep Bernie Sparkes; so is Glen Pierce, so is Brent Giles, so is Lec Hebert and so, seemingly are all the other big names.

Matter of fact, the only 1974 returnee to date to the PCAA finals at Arbutus, Jan. 31-Feb. 2, will be the Monte Olson rink, skipped by Jack Block, who won his Consols berth by placing second in the "A" of the Totem and defeating Ray Benwell of Victoria in a playoff.

The other Totem qualifier is Victoria's Jack Trueman, who just sat, watched and scouted here at the weekend; and enjoyed every minute of it.

The others who are in — there are still two Island berths open — are Gary Sigurdson of Cloverdale, who is well known here; Larry McLaughlin of Richmond, who isn't; Gene Krause of Vancouver, who competed in the 1973 Consols at Nanaimo and played in the Playland cash, and Vic Wood, who replaced an ailing Ron Braunstein and thrashed Giles 8-1 in the final of Vancouver's "A" side.

By Different Routes

If there really isn't a standout in the field — Sigurdson and Krause loom the toughest at this moment — what about the South Island group?

The over-all curling in the South playdowns may have not been that hot, but the two rinks who performed the best were skipped by veteran Glen Harper and 19-year-old Steve Skillings both of whom qualified last year as well. Harper may have had the tougher road — he had to get by clubmate Fred Duncan and also Neil Dickson of Playland in the final — but he had the clutch shots when he needed them and wasn't missing many either.

The Skillings rink, on the other hand, was only behind once in winning four games, and really ever had to udergo severe pressure in the final ends. Rather, they always took command early and kept the heat on the other rink in their first year together.

Bobby Gallaugher was stunned with a first-day loss to Jim Dangerfield, who had taken over on the tee-head of his rink on an experimental basis this year, and barely missed in the final outcome. But he came back in typical Gallaugher fashion with a clutch deuce on the final end against Dickson to get a second straight crack at an Island PCCA berth.

For Clarke, it was a return to the form he showed as a schoolboy curler when he and Skillings used to wage some great battles; and if Dangerfield did miss a draw behind cover on his final rock to lose his chance against Clarke, Clarke nonetheless was at his best of this season in the weekend action. His only loss was to Harper.

Two Last Rocks Too Many

If there had to be two tough-luck losers, one certainly was Gord Carmichael. Against Dickson he had shot rock in the four-foot buried, but Dickson made a cold in-turn draw to the pot on last rock to snatch the win. Against Clarke, it was almost the same story, Clarke making a great first shot to spill two Carmichael stones, and then drawing for two and a win on last rock.

The other was Dickson, a loser in two finals. You can't get much closer.

At Duncan, things will be much stickier, naturally, because this is a select and competitive field. And if there must be a favorite, the early pick might be Harper who will be playing on his own ice.

Still, the others are extremely capable, and the reps from the North will likely have much to say about the final outcome too. And from this distance probably the best of the North standard-bearers are Ralph Boyd of Campbell River and Norm Thiessen of Nanaimo, both of whom have been there before.

Still, the big item in the minds of all curlers must be that because of the rash of upsets on the mainland, whoever comes off the Island may have their best chance in recent years of gaining first, a B.C. final berth, and then, hopefully, the Brier trip.

Sure, it's the ultimate, but right now that B.C. Brier grab-bag looks wide open and ripe for the plucking. By the Island. It's about that time again.

Doug Cairns.

The 19-year-old winger scored twice and assisted on a third goal Monday as the Cougars clouted Winnipeg Clubs 10-3 in the Manitoba capital. He played like a good bargain.

The six-foot-one, 190-pounder played his position, skated strongly and body-checked effectively. The two goals boosted his season's total to 24, 16 short of the 40-goal mark that Ginnell figures would make Cairns "a great bargain" in the draft.

Yet not all noticed. The game's all-star selector chose three defencemen — Rick LaPointe and Gord Roberts of Victoria and Winnipeg's Kevin McCarthy — as the standouts.

There were other "distractions." Cougar centre Mel Bridgman, with two assists, became the first WCHL player this season to reach the 100-point plateau in scoring; linemate Dan Lucas continued a hot run with his 33rd and 34th goals, and the other winger on Victoria's top unit, Peter Morris, broke out of a brief slump with two goals and two assists.

In addition, brawling punctuated the affair. Referee Joe Cassidy handed out 42 penalties, including eight game misconducts and 19 majors.

Bridgman appeared to be the centrepiece. Defenceman Gerald Pion, recalled by the Clubs from St. James of the Manitoba Junior League, first jumped Bridgman from behind to touch off a second-period brawl.

There was greater violence in the third when Winnipeg's Jerry Rollins, the league's most penalized player, challenged Bridgman. Six players were banished from the game as a result of that brawl.

The win extended Victoria's unbeaten streak to nine games. It also gives Cougars an 11-1-1, won-lost-tied record over Manitoba teams in WCHL play this season.

The Cougars play in Brandon tonight.

In Monday's only other action, Brad Maxwell's goal early in the third period gave New Westminster Bruins a 3-3 tie with the Bombers in Flin Flon.

Tonight's NHL All-Star Game No 'Hit' Show

MONTREAL (CP) — You may be disappointed if you expect to see hard hitting in tonight's 28th annual National Hockey League all-star game.

Fred Shero of Philadelphia Flyers, coach of the Clarence Campbell Conference club, said:

"You will see a lot of great stickhandling, shooting and passing but you won't see much hitting."

Shero has goaltenders Bernie Parent of the Flyers and Gary Smith of Vancouver Canucks while Bep Guidolin has Rogatien Vachon of Los Angeles Kings and Ken Dryden of Montreal on the Prince of Wales Conference team.

Shero also has sophomore centre Tom Lysiak of Atlanta Flames on a line with team-mate Curt Bennett and Dennis Hextall of Minnesota North Stars.

Philadelphia's Jimmy Watson and Ed Van Impe form one defensive pair with Tracy Pratt of Vancouver Canucks and Chicago's Doug Jarrett on another. Denis Potvin of the Islanders and Brad Park of the Rangers will be the other defensive duo and Shero said he probably will use them on the points during power plays.

On defence Guidolin has Terry Harper and Bob Murdoch of the Kings, Carol Vadnais and Bobby Orr of the Bruins, Guy Lapointe of Montreal and Jerry Korab of Buffalo Sabres.

Phil Esposito of the Bruins, Marcel Dionne of Detroit Red Wings, Syl Apps of Pittsburgh Penguins and Buffalo's Don Luce will be the centres with Rene Robert of Buffalo, Denis Dupere of Washington Capitals, Montreal's Guy Lafleur, Terry O'Reilly of Boston and Jean Pronovost of Pittsburgh as the right wings.

The left wingers will be Darryl Sittler of Toronto Maple Leafs, Rick Martin of Buffalo and Joey Johnston of California Seals. Dupere also can play left wing.

The league announced that next year's all-star game will be Jan. 20 in Philadelphia while the 1977 game will be played in Vancouver Jan. 25. The 1978 classic is scheduled for Buffalo.

Tonight's game will be televised on the full CBC network at 5 p.m.

GROCER HAS A KNACK FOR PROFIT AT TRACK

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — Carlos Escandon, 53, a wholesale grocer from Ensenada, considers himself a long-shot player when it comes to horse racing.

Sunday, he picked the winners in six straight races at Caliente race track here, only one of them a favorite, and walked away with $90,750.

Escandon won the 5-10 handicap by picking the winners in all the races from the fifth through the 10th. A track spokesman said Escandon bought his multiple ticket for the handicap for $144.

The spokesman said that Escandon has been playing the 5-10 handicap since 1951. He has won it three times before and twice won major amounts—$61,000 in 1966 and $46,000 in 1969.

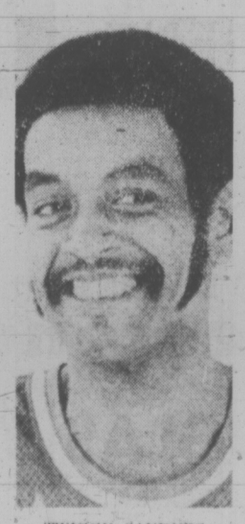
Tennis Star On Sidelines

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (UPI) — Australian tennis champion Evonne Goolagong's immediate tennis future is in doubt. Suffering from a torn cartilege under the wrist knuckle of her right hand, she has been ordered not to play for at least three months.



TWIGGY SANDERS

There's Fun for Trotters With Twiggy on the Team

Harlem Globetrotters, who have spread enjoyment around to millions of fans, have their own fun with Jimmy (Twiggy) Sanders.

Sanders is being groomed for a starring role with the Trotters, the internationally-acclaimed basketball tourists who are slated to visit Memorial Arena on Friday.

In the meantime, the Trotters have their own fun with Twiggy.

The team's publicist says Sanders' temperament creates an impression that he is naive . . . so naive he wonders if he should study for his blood test."

Teammates have more fun with his build, which prompted his nickname. He's six-foot-eight and "built like a dart." And "not enough beef to anchor himself in a gentle breeze."

But all agree that there's nothing funny about the rookie's ability on the basketball court. The graduate of Johnson C. Smith University in North Carolina is all athlete when it counts.

The Trotters, of course, have that happy knack of coming up with crowd-pleasing performers such as Sanders.

Friday's game, scheduled to start at 8 p.m., will mark the Trotters' only 1975 appearance on Vancouver Island.

As usual, fans can expect half-time entertainment, highlighted this season by an exhibition between pro table tennis players Robert Ashley and Steve Dodgen.

NFC Pride Salvaged By Black QB Castoff

MIAMI (AP) — It was restoration of tarnished pride for the abused National Football Conference all-stars, but it was a personal triumph for James Harris, the black quarterback castoff who some said would never be able to cut it.

"I wasn't trying to prove anything," the 6-foot-4, 215-pound signal-caller for Los Angeles Rams said, reflecting on the NFC's 17-10 victory over the American Conference in the Pro Bowl game Monday night.

"I just prayed I would play my best. I knew if I could play my best, with the best guys in the league supporting me, we were capable of doing the job."

Harris, a late replacement on the NFC squad for Minnesota's sore-armed Fran Tarkenton, was voted the most valuable player after taking over late in the second quarter for the injured Jim Hart of St. Louis Cardinals and passing for two quick fourth-quarter touchdowns that won the game.

The first, an eight-yard throw to Mel Gray of the Cardinals, was set up by a 57-yard bomb to Gray. The other, just 1½ minutes later following a fumble by Pittsburgh's Franco Harris, was another eightyarder to Charley Taylor of Washington Redskins. Both scoring passes came on third-down plays.

The AFC built a 10-3 lead in the third quarter on a 32-yard pass from Miami's Bob Griese to Dolphin team-mate Paul Warfield and Roy Gerela's 33-yard field goal. Green Bay's Chester Marcol kicked a 33-yard field goal for the NFC in the second quarter.

Harris is not prone to boastfulness, often speaking so low it is difficult to understand him.

"I got so disgusted at one stage I thought I would just toss it in," he said. "I felt that people thought a black quarterback could never make the grade. I really got the impression there was something racist in my early failures to make the grade."

Harris joined Buffalo Bills in 1969 and was cut in 1972, joining the Rams' taxi squad. He didn't start for the Rams until the sixth game of the 1974 season after John Hadl was traded, yet finished as the No. 2 passer in the NFC, completing 106 of 198 for 1,544 yards and 11 touchdowns.

He was thrust into another pressure role, Monday night when Hart went out in the second quarter with a bloody gash over his right eye that needed six stitches. Harris completed seven of 13 passes for 119 yards in directing the NFC's successful rally.

It was the first NFC triumph over the AFC in four years in the Pro Bowl and eased some of the pain suffered in losing six of the last seven Super Bowls.

Canadians Blast Bucks

James Bay Athletic Association Canadians hammered Ingraham Buckaroos 7-1 Monday night in a South Island Big Six Hockey League game at Memorial Arena.

John Williams scored for the Bucks.

GOALIE DEMURS ALL-STAR HONOR

EDMONTON (CP) — At least one surprise developed Monday night in the make-up of the eastern team in the World Hockey Association all-star game tonight.

Eastern coach Ron Ryan said Al Smith, goaltender for his New England Whalers, likely won't be in the nets for the sold-out game in the new Edmonton Coliseum.

Ryan said Smith doesn't think he's having as good a year as he should, and doesn't think he deserves to be here for the third annual all-star contest which will not be seen on national television.

The Whalers coach said he will start Gerry Cheevers of Cleveland Crusaders and then put in Andy Brown of Indianapolis Racers for the final 30 minutes.

However, Ryan wasn't ruling out the possibility that Smith could change his mind and fly in today with teammates Tom Webster and Rick Ley, all of whom had not arrived by late Monday.

Brad Selwood and Larry Pleau of the Whalers were on hand, however, for the all-star dinner.

Mike Walton of Minnesota Fighting Saints is missing from the west team because of a groin muscle pulled in a game Sunday night, and he has been replaced by teammate Fran Huck.

Bill Dineen, coach of the west team, said he will keep one of his Houston Aeros lines together while Gordie Howe and son Mark will play on another line. Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets will be on a third line with team-mate Ulf Nillson. Defensive pairs will be from Edmonton Oilers and Aeros, Dineen said.

The east team will feature a line from Quebec Nordiques and Toronto Toros, while J. C. Tremblay, Pat Stapleton, Brad Selwood and Jim Dorey are expected to be seen in defensive positions.

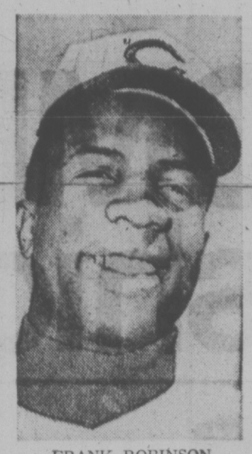
Robbie Wants Indians To 'Feel Comfortable'



FRANK ROBINSON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Six weeks before starting work as baseball's first black manager, Frank Robinson says that in many spots his Cleveland Indians will be "on their own" until they prove they can't handle a situation.

"In base running, for example, I don't think other managers would let as many players be on their own," Robinson said in an interview this week after returning home from managing Santurce, Puerto Rico, in the baseball winter league.

"Usually I would let anyone with decent speed be on their own until they proved to have bad judgment," Robinson said.

The man who is fourth in career home runs, who will be a player-manager with the American League Indians, says he also hopes his players will analyse the game constantly.

Credited with a thoughtful approach and with many suggestions which helped his winter league players, Robinson says thinking about the game contributed to his success.

"People always said things came easy for me. It hasn't come easy. I analysed my situation and improved it all the time. But because of that a lot of people thought it was easy," he said.

He says he does not believee reports that he was hired primarily to coax greatness out of George Hendrick, an outfielder with reported superstar potential, who Robinson managed successfully in the winter leagues.

"George played for me last winter and he did an outstanding job, and I had no problems with him," Robinson said. "We have a good relationship. Whether that will make him a better player I don't know.

"I'm a firm believer in letting players do what they feel comfortable doing until they prove otherwise," Robinson explained. "I feel it's much easier to steal a base if a player can pick the pitch or the count he wants to run on.

"Each play that you make, each inning that you play, you should learn something from it," Robinson said. "You can really make yourself a lot better player by thinking about the game and learning."

"You can't measure how much it helps in terms of percentages," he adds. "I think I'm very fortunate to have good natural ability. But I haven't let it go at that. I worked hard to develop."

Campbell Predicts More Jobless Hockey Players

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Monday that several member clubs want their player lists enlarged in order to consolidate their major and minor league operations.

It was one of several topics discussed Monday at a meeting of the board of governors held in conjunction with the all-star break.

"Player development is not as pressing now as before," Campbell said. "There was a time when there was much more emphasis. Today, there are 85 rookies in the NHL and that's about 20 per cent or maybe even closer to 25 per cent of the total."

There have been reports that there are about 140 unemployed professional hockey players and Campbell said this was bound to increase.

"There isn't any doubt there are a lot of unemployed hockey players and there are going to be more.

"The market for their service is bound to decline.

"The economics of operation is terribly different than it was in 1967, 1970 or 1972. I think that salaries have hit their peaks although Mr. (Alan) Eagleson says they are going to be even higher next year. I hope he is wrong.

"We obviously have to honor existing contracts and pay they out. As time goes on, I am sure we will not be entering into long-term deals.

"The salaries are 250 per cent more than they were in 1971-72."

Campbell also said he expected ticket prices had hit their peak as well.

He said there had been a small reduction in average attendance for the league's first 298 games in comparison with last year.

"That's not bad considering the economic condition. It is quite remarkable our attendance has held up.

The league president also said the NHL plans to go ahead with the expansion to Seattle and Denver for the 1976-77 season.

"But there is no further consideration being given at this time for further expansion," Campbell added, citing the economic crunch.

The league is still looking for owners for the California Seals franchise and has received some applications which now are being studied.

Campbell also said the NHL would not play any exhibition games with the WHA next season. The NHL found the games were "economic disasters."

"It cost us betweeen $500,000 and $700,000 to get our players to play the games.

Veteran Oregon Driver Joins Team of Speakers

Hershel McGriff, the veteran Oregon driver who last Saturday came within two car lengths of winning his fourth Permatex 200 at Riverside, Calif., today became the second guest speaker to confirm an appearance at this year's Victoria Sports Celebrity Dinner.

Accepting an invitation earlier was Bill Hunter, general manager of the World Hockey Association's Edmonton Oilers and the man who was manager of Team Canada 74 in last autumn's hockey series against Russia.

Scheduled at the Empress Hotel on Monday, March 10, the eighth annual Celebrity Dinner will include appearances by at least three other speakers and presentations to the Victoria area's male and female athletes - of - the-Year and the top eam of the past year.

Also to be presented are the Sportsman-of-the Year Award and the Distinguished Service Award.

The 47-year-old McGriff was running close to the leaders in Sunday's Winston Western 500 at Riverside when an oil-pump failure sent him out of the race.

Since he started driving stock cars more than 20 years ago, the Oregon lumberman has made his mark on more tracks for more years than has any other Pacific Northwest throttle-stomper.

One of his more successful seasons came last year when he followed his Permatex win with 13 victories in 25 NASCAR events.

Capping Hershel's 1974 campaign was a triumph in the Canada 200 at Western Speedway on Sept. 7, when he broke the string of 14 main-event victories chalked up by Victoria driver Gary Kershaw and also cracked Kershaw's four-year-old track record.

Holder of records at more than 20 ovals, McGriff has compiled a remarkable record over the past five years. In 1973 he won 12 of the 24 races he entered, in 1972 the success ratio was 12 in 30 and Hershel's total tally for the 1970 and 1971 campaigns was 39 victories in 60 Northwest starts.

Lotte Wins Her Owner A Load of Silverware

ED HAINES

Ed Haines' Lotte won him more silverware than he could handle at the squadron's prizegiving.

Lotte was awarded the Fred Douglas Trophy for outstanding performance in the cruising class competition. She was top boat in both the A and B series and also captured the Albatross and Gillard Trophies for two long-distance races.

Built in Denmark about 1939, her first owner, Jorgen Baess of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, chalked up many wins before selling her to Haines in 1971.

The Haines family was also awarded the Prosser Trophy for outstanding performance as a unit and Haines, trying his hand at Sailerettes, also won the Sailerettes' round-robin series, edging Dennis Reilley.

Reilley's Green Teal came second to Lotte in the Cruising Class A series, followed by Doc Beaudry's Red Start. In the B series, second and third-place winners were Paul Jensen's Diana and Doug Bond's Gwaihir.

Diana followed Lotte in two long-distance races with Green Teal placing third in one. Another long-distance race was won by Fred Douglas' Vertu.

Winners of other Sailerette competition were:

A Series — 1, Red Start; B Series — Reilley and Beaudry in Green Teal, followed by Jim Cummings' Black Hawk. Long distance No. 2—Gordie Churchill's White Swan; long-distance No. 3, Reilley's Green Teal; long-distance No. 4, Beaudry's Green Teal, followed by Bill Jackson and Fred Neveaux in Blue Goose.

Other Cruising class winners were:

Cock of the Walk Award, Mike Weir's Filey Brig; Ladies' Skippers Race, Jaffe Bond's Gwaihir; Roche Harbor Long-Distance, John Ellis' Isis of RVYC, followed by Diana and Doug Turnham's Barracutta; Gear-Buster Classic, Filey Brig, Gwaihir, Blue Goose.

The husband-and-wife team of Dennis and Bobbie Carlow cleaned up in Fireball competition, winning A, B and C series, the club championship and aggregate trophy.

Grant Davis and Pete McKinnon won the D series, followed by the Carlows, then Rich and Pat Lloyd. The Lloyds placed second in the A and B series, followed by Morris and Lynn Robinson. In the C series it was the Lloyds in second place again, edging David and McKinnon.

The first two placers in the Laser C series were Pat Davidson and Martin Thomas. Davidson, who was aggregate winner, placed second in D series which was won by Robin Spear.

Spear and George Kirkwood are tied for first spot in the Laser championships, still to be completed.

Police Try Schmockey

Lawmen, two dozen strong, will be on the scene, but don't be surprised if they are among the main transgressors as rules are bent and broken when Schmockey Night festivities return to Victoria.

City police will be battling men from the RCMP in a broom-ball contest on ice during the fifth annual Kinsmen Schmockey Night program, scheduled for Memorial Arena on Jan. 27 with the emphasis once again on fun.

Other events slated include a basketball game on ice between University of Victoria Vikings and Victoria Scorpions, a hockey game between media representatives and MLAs, and figure-skating demonstrations by Greater Victoria skaters.

Schmockey Night, a two-hour show, will again launch in this area the Mothers' March for the disabled, an annual fund drive directed by the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C.

Nancy Greene Raine is honorary chairman of the "mock hockey" show, proceeds from which will go to the Mothers' March.

Deadline Suggested For Olympic Verdict

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Olympic Association has recommended that the organizing committee for the 1976 Summer Olympics make a decision by Feb. 15 as to whether the Games will be held as scheduled in Montreal.

The COA, the Canadian arm of the International Olympic Committee, said in a letter to COJO that should it be deemed impossible to hold the 1976 Olympics on schedule, then the International Olympic Committee (IOC) should be advised that an alternative solution will be necessary.

Some 1200 iron workers, on strike since Nov. 27, 1974, tied up construction on provincial work sites including the eastend camp of the 1976 Games, causing officials to speculate as to whether Olympic facilities, such as the main stadium, can be finished by July 15, 1976.

Winning Boxers Step on the Gas

London Boxing Club started slowly but accelerated to a 48-41 lead at half time and went on to post an 81-74 decision over Hotel Douglas in one of two Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League games Monday at Royal Oak Junior High School.

Victory boosted Boxers six points ahead of the runner-up Hotelmen, who led 21-8 early in the game.

In the other encounter, James Bay Athletic Association recorded its third straight win, a 66-59 triumph over Stevens Interiors.

Duff McCaghey paced Boxers with 18 points, one more than clubmate Rich Connolly. Corky Jossul led Hotelmen with 21 points.

Vikettes Trim Regina

University of Victoria Vikettes reeled off their seventh straight women's basketball victory Monday by downing University of Regina 59-42 in an exhibition game at the McKinnon Building.

Vikettes, preparing to meet University of Alberta Pandas in a Canada West University Athletic Association double-header Friday and Saturday at McKinnon, got 13 points from Marg Mainwaring in Monday's win. Janis Turner added eight points and Lorna McHattie seven for the winners.

Diana Stober with 13 points led Regina, who trailed 32-22 at half time.

The Aim Is Fun In Minor Hockey

"Make Hockey Fun For Them!"

With this simple theme, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has declared this week as Minor Hockey Week in Canada.

As a part of their deemphasis of parent participation and winning at any cost, the CAHA has come up with this new slogan to remind everyone connected with minor hockey that the sport exists for the enjoyment and benefit of the youngsters who play it.

"It's fine to foster a competitive attitude, but surely that's not the paramount objective. Much better that a youngster learn to play the game properly, to contribute to a group effort, to appreciate the satisfaction of fulfilling his potential," says the CAHA.

Tide Wins a Pair

The Tide, Victoria's representative side, hammered Portland Reps 49-0 Saturday in Portland and Sunday defeated Washington Reps 18-3 in Seattle.

A Certain Tweedie Look To Women's Tartan Show

Linda Tweedie is one of those names expected to be quite familiar to British Columbia's curlers.

The University of British Columbia student is one with the potential to dominate women's curling in the province. They like her style.

Thursday's opening two draws are for local rinks. Out-of-towners, including Tweedie, start play Friday at 2:30 p.m.

Official opening ceremonies are scheduled for 8:45 p.m. Thursday.

Safe Water 'Not Enough'

FORT MCMURRAY (CP) — An announcement last week that tap water now is safe to drink is not good enough and there still should be a public inquiry into arsenic pollution at Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories, says Paul Yewchuk, MP for Athabasca.

Yewchuk, the Conservative Party's health critic, said in an interview that the problem at Yellowknife "goes farther than water pollution."

"There is also the possibility of air pollution—arsenic compounds in the air."

A federal health survey completed six years ago linked arsenic pollution to health problems in Yellowknife. The survey, made public recently, noted that as far back as 1954 more than 12,000 pounds of arsenic waste was being released daily into Yellowknife's atmosphere from gold mines in the area. This had fallen to 894 pounds a year in 1969, the report added.

Now Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde indicates he wants an immediate medical study and Yewchuk questioned why the first report was shelved in the first place.

"If it's serious enough to warrant a health study now, why wasn't it serious enough then? If (then health minister John) Munro knew about it, why did he shelve it, and if he did not know about it that raises questions about who is really running that department," Yewchuk said.

LUGGAGE LABELLED 'HIT MAN'

CALGARY (CP) — A 51-year-old Lebanese businessman now living in Calgary was jailed for nine months Monday after an Alberta Supreme Court judge said he tried to carry the tools of a "hit man" aboard a Pacific Western Arilines jetliner.

Reda Zeid Karame, operator of a Revelstoke restaurant, was arrested at the airport after a routine security check found a loaded revolver in his briefcase.

Karame denied knowledge of the gun but Mr. Justice Frank Quigley rejected the claim, saying it was "obvious that this man knew he had the gun and other items of a hit man in his briefcase."

In addition to the gun and ammunition, Karame was carrying rope, a hunting knife, steel tape, and five neckties in a brown paper bag. He carried no other items of personal wearing apparel.

Sniping Charged

CALGARY (CP) — A 16-year-old youth charged in connection with a two hour sniping incident in downtown Calgary early Sunday morning was remanded Monday until Wednesday for a bail hearing.

Kevin Drew Nicholson of no fixed address, is charged with dangerous use of a firearm, breaking and entry and arson after a gunman broke into the main Hudson Bay Company department store, stole a rifle and ammunition, and fired about 20 shots at police.

Tax Refund

EDMONTON (CP) — The provincial government will refund a total of $677,000 to 21 Alberta municipalities with supplementary assessment bylaws, Municipal Affairs Minister D. J. Russell announced Monday.

Russell said Calgary will receive the largest refund — $361,218—while Edmonton will be refunded $196,915. St. Albert will receive $66,154 and Lethbridge $24,914, while the remaining municipalities will be awarded varying amounts according to the assessed value of the new properties taxed under their by-laws.

Change Denied

WINNIPEG (CP) — A change of venue has been denied for a man charged with attempted murder in connection with a bomb blast last September at the Law Courts Building.

In a decision made Monday, Chief Justice A. S. Dewar rejected the defence premise that publicity surrounding the incident would prevent John Joseph Rogers from receiving a fair trial.

Rogers, 51, of Vancouver, has been charged with the attempted murder of Charles Gilraine, chief clerk of the county court, and James Symons, a clerk in the small claims court.

town talk

Second edition of British Columbia Government News, the "information" sheet started by the Socreds and last month resurrected by the NDP, makes it clear that no one is going to forget the names and faces of B.C. cabinet ministers if the editors can help it.

No fewer than eight of them get their mugs attached to "news" stories in the January issue of BCGN — "news" being announcements of the wonderful things the government is doing for us, items that were printed in the daily press weeks ago.

The lucky eight are Lorimer of municipal affairs, Williams of resources, Nicolson of housing, Nunweller of northern affairs, Radford of conservation, Cocke of health, Stupich of agriculture and Strachan . . . of everything. But not a genuine news story in the lot.

BCGN is, however, enlivened by a B.C. Crossword Puzzle, for heaven's sakes. And it's a tough one too.

Jim Hilborn, the Victoria surfer who survived a night in the frigid waters off Jordan River, says sorry folks but the television people switched times on him.

Jim was flown to Toronto to be interviewed for the Front Page Challenge show and says he was told he would appear on tonight's program. Jim told a teacher of his at Camosun College, Dickson Falconer, and Dickson, thinking Victorians would be interested in watching, informed the Times Monday.

But Jim phoned the TV people to check and was told he will now appear in the show at 9:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 28.

HILBORN
. . . sorry about that

Town Talk called Channel 2 in Vancouver but, as Front Page Challenge is a quiz show, the spokeswoman there wouldn't say anything. And, she says, phoning Toronto "won't get you anywhere, either" as they would only tell the contestants themselves when they are to appear.

And does the panel guess the front-page news story surrounding our courageous surfer Jim? Well now, we couldn't tell you that could we? That would only be spoiling things.

If, as a Vancouver columnist suggests, Mayor Peter Pollen is destined for the board of the B.C. Telephone Company, to represent the share-owning B.C. government, he'll have at least something in common with two other directors.

Businessmen sat down to salad at 12:05 p.m. and began the main course at 12:15 p.m. They finished at 12:30 and Poyen launched into his speech. Then, just as the crowd was getting up to leave at 1:30 p.m., the waitresses began serving the dessert.

It seems Poyen was such a fascinating speaker they didn't want to disturb him. The result: lunch ended at 1:40, a one-hour-and-35-minute event. Usual eating time is under 45 minutes.

Memories of the day Victorians panicked when they thought enemy submarines were entering the Inner Harbor during the First World War were revived recently when Cmdr. Burrard Archibald Smith RN (Rtd.) died at Long Beach near Nelson. He was 99.

Smith joined the Royal Navy in 1889 when he was 14 and was on loan to the Royal Canadian Navy during the First World War, serving in ships guarding this coast.

In those days the west coast had two submarines under its command.

Built in the United States, the submarines CC1 and CC2 were slated for the Chilean navy but an astute Canadian defence department snapped them up.

Apparently, news of the purchase hadn't reached the general populace on this coast because old newspaper reports relate general consternation when the two submarines entered harbor Aug. 5, 1914. Citizens had to be assured they were friendly!

The strength of lobbying groups is accelerating as the clout of the Canadian armed forces is whittled down, says Ltd.-Cmdr. Alan Heater, president of the Naval Officers Association of Vancouver Island.

His group had a 100 per cent increase in members in 1974, he said.

NOA member Ltd.-Cmdr. Jack Koyl said:

"The organization nearly went under following Hellyer's unification of the navy, army and air force," he said, "but now we have a navy, things have changed. People are becoming concerned and we expect even more rapid growth this year."

It had to happen.

When Ask The Times was asked last week how many letters the longest word in modern usage has, our answer was 94 and the word was —

"sparvagsnaktiebolagsskensmutsskjutarefackforensperngspersonalbeklarefackforenitsfdgotbslpstrnzisonalbekladnadsmagasinsmagasinsinsinsforradsforvaltaren."

It means, in Sweden, "the manager of the depot for the supply of uniforms to the personnel of the track cleaners' union of the street railway company."

Now, Mrs. R. Norlund of 1198 Munro St. has written to say — you guessed it — we mispelled it.

She says it should be — "sparvagnsaktiebolagsskensmutsskjutarefackforeningspersonalbekladnadsmagasinsforrardsforvaltaren."

Who are we to argue?

Before anyone else takes issue with this spelling, we should tell you that the men and women who set these words in type are patient and kindly people — but they do have their limits.

CUPE Set to Charge Oak Bay

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

The Canadian Union of Public Employees will lay charges before the B.C. Labor Relations Board this week accusing Oak Bay municipality of interfering in the administration of a trade union, a CUPE spokesman said Monday night.

Union staff representative Tom Smith said the B.C. Division of CUPE, with which Oak Bay CUPE Local 511 is affiliated, has decided to lay charges "against Oak Bay municipality, management and council, over what we feel is interference with the administration of a trade union and a number of violations of the Labor Code."

Smith said the charges will involve the "contacting of members individually and inducing them to accept an agreement already rejected by the members."

He said he engaged a lawyer Monday and the charges will be laid "sometime this week and we will seek a ruling from the board that the employer cease and desist."

Smith said Local 511 holds two certifications and two contracts, one for inside employees and one for outside employees. But, he said, the entire local was made a wage offer of 15.75 per cent increase for 1975 and this was rejected at a membership meeting last month.

"There is a group of inside staff attempting to reach a collective agreement outside the authority of the union," he said.

"Some employees must have had some dialogue with management and management is inducing and influencing them to do this."

Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith commented today that the inside employees, who he said are outnumbered 45 to 24 by the outside employees, are being prevented from making a separate agreement with the municipality to accept last month's offer.

He said the union spokesman has "got to be kidding" if it is alleged that talking directly to employees to inform them of a wage offer and that if there is a strike there won't be any wages constitute interference with a trade union.

The mayor said there has been no coercion by the municipality but rather the municipality received a petition from 20 of the 24 inside employees "which we didn't circulate" saying they wanted to bargain separately from the outside employees "and they were prepared to accept the offer made."

He said "that seemed entirely proper to me" and was permitted under the union's constitution.

"We then prepared a contract and forwarded it to the inside people . . . but the officers of the local refused to sign because it is the over-all local that decides these things," he said.

"The union leadership has made every attempt to prevent a separate agreement and won't sign any agreement. The right to bargain separately in the union constition is either being violated or is meaningless.

"The union has a duty of fair representation of the people in the unit under the law. I haven't been going around and the (municipal) officials have not been going around twisting arms but this petition came to us. It is the inside people who are being prevented from signing."

FOR YOUR THOUGHTS — that became one of the last remaining uses for the penny in downtown Victoria Monday, as city crews began installing 1,600 new parking meters which will double on-street parking rates and banish the penny. The new-look meter (shown inset) will give motorists 15 minutes' parking for a nickel, 30 minutes for a dime and one hour for 20 cents. If you have no nickels it will give an hour's parking for a quarter — but no five cents change. The new rates become effective as the meters are installed by city employees like Alan Dand and Tom Rose.

Visitors' Centre Hogging Cash, Lane Charges

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau chairman Sam Lane today charged that the Visitors Information Centre has violated an informal agreement to support the bureau with financial grants.

Lane said the Vancouver Island bureau has held back from soliciting funds from local merchants on the understanding it would receive a grant from the local information centre, which does solicit funds in the community.

The Visitors Information Centre was formed last March. Its predecessor, the Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau, made a grant of $12,000, Lane said.

"If no grant is forthcoming, we will have to solicit funds from local merchants. We have not wanted to do this because it overlaps the fund drive by the Visitors Information Centre."

In reply, Visitors Information Centre president Terry Farmer said there was no way his group could make a grant to the Vancouver Island body.

"If they wish to solicit funds in the community they are welcome to do so," Farmer said.

The Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau handles promotion to bring tourists to the Island and the Visitors Information Centre provides services after the tourists arrive.

The tourist debate began Jan. 14 when Ed Norman, provincial director of travel information services, charged that Victoria was going to lose out on tourists this year because of a fat-cat attitude and a decline in the amount spent on promoting Victoria in other provinces and countries.

On Jan .15, Farmer replied that money was being spent but it was being directed at serving tourists once they got here. In addition, about $450,000 was being spent by directors of the information centre on a private basis to promote Victoria.

Today, Lane said if that kind of money is being spent on external advertising, some of it should be channelled into the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau where matching government grants are available.

Lane said it was shortsighted for local mercants to spend all their funds individually when government grants were available in a joint effort.

The provincial government offers $67,000 per year to publicize Vancouver Island on a 60-40 basis. This means the Island bureau has to raise $44,667 to get the maximum grant.

In the current fiscal year the Island bureau faces a shortfall of $18,000 in local funds and therefore will miss out on $27,000 in provincial government grants.

"This is where the problem is," Lane said. "Victoria is the only area of the Island where businesses are not contributing to the bureau either through direct grants or through chambers of commerce."

The only funds generated locally, he said, is a $10,000 grant from local municipalities. Elsewhere on the Island, funds come from merchants, chambers of commerce and municipal governments.

Lane said he agreed 100 per cent with Norman who said Victoria was not spending enough on external publicity. The problem, however, was lack of support from the local Visitors Information Centre, Lane said.

A grant from the local tourist organization would avoid the necessity of overlapping fund drives for tourist promotion, he said.

Elected Camosun Urged

An elected council of nine members should govern Camosun College and other community colleges, Greater Victoria school board agreed Monday.

The board will write to Education Minister recommending an elected college council, and opposing the largely government - appointed council recommended in the provincial task force report on colleges.

The task force, which submitted its report last fall, recommends a 15-member council, with 10 members appointed by the provincial government and five elected by college students and staff.

Five of the 10 appointed members would be chosen upon the recommendation of a nominating committee on which school boards would be represented.

The school board wants direct election of councillors by local voters, with terms lasting two years.

Camosun College council, a nine-member body with four appointed members and five school trustees, has recommended a partly-appointed, partly-elected council with a majority of councillors directly elected.

The school board also agreed to oppose a recommendation by the task force that colleges assume responsibility for adult and continuing education.

Community schools as well as colleges should play a part in this field, they said.

The trustees will ask Dailly to defer action on a task force recommendation that colleges play a central role in distribution of educational media in their areas.

The Victoria board has ambitions itself in the media field, and plans this spring to build a two-storey media centre which it hopes will serve smaller school districts around Vancouver Island, as well as possibly Camosun College.

The board rejected a recommendation by Trustee Hal Knight, who is chairman of Camosun College council, that would ask Dailly to maintain a small local tax base in the financing of colleges.

The task force recommends 100 per cent of college operating costs be paid by the provincial government.

Having a local tax base could make college councillors more responsive to the local people, Knight argued.

Other trustees were unconvinced, and all voted against it.

However, they agreed to write Dailly protesting the present system by which college councils must compile their budgets.

Councils must submit their final operating budgets in December without knowing how much money the provincial government has available for colleges.

As a result, Camosun council submitted a 1975 budget 58 per cent higher than last year's without cutting a cent out of it.

30 ON HAND—ALL SILENT

About 30 people turned out Monday night for a public hearing on a North Saanich bylaw to restrict marina construction — but nobody said a word.

In accordance with rules for a public hearing, council called once, twice and then a final time for comments from the public, but all was quiet.

Council then went into regular session and adopted the bylaw which restricts construction of floats, wharves, docks and boat sheds to within 10 feet of the water lease boundaries of marinas in the municipality.

Municipal clerk Ted Fairs said today he figures each of the 30 people must have come to the public hearing to hear what "comments the other guy had."

Gov't 'Ignores' Evicted Elderly

Relocation problems for Chinese tenants being evicted from a Pandora Avenue block demonstrate a housing problem being largely ignored by the provincial government, Victoria developer Sam Bawlf said Monday.

The tenants were given a month's notice to vacate by Dec. 31 so the courtyard behind the Government St. liquor store could be renovated.

About 12 elderly men and one large family still cling to their homes. None wants to move from Chinatown, say people involved in their relocation, but no empty apartments exist in the area.

Bawlf said his development company has spent about $10,000 in attempts to find them housing.

"Money isn't material to the situation," he said.

But relocating ousted tenants, simply isn't the job of a developer.

The provincial government must concentrate more effort on providing housing in the city core by both renovation and new construction, he said.

"The provincial government has to do something about the downtown core. The housing in city centres is the problem."

Many of Victoria's Chinatown buildings are owned by organizations such as the Chinese Benevolent Association, and Bawlf has offered to help fix up space that might be suitable for apartments.

"We said we would provide the manpower and expertise at no profit," he said.

Empty space does exist in some Chinatown buildings, says Victoria child care worker Becky Allen who lives in the 500-block Fisgard.

She said the land-owning associations can receive low-interest money for renovation from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation even if they refuse Bawlf's offer.

The associations "are the ones that are holding back," she said, adding they're not known for swift action in any matters.

"We're already talked it over," said a spokesman for the benevolent association.

He declined to say whether any conclusions had been drawn from discussion but said a meeting may be called within a week.

"But you've got to look beyond renovating a few offices," said Bawlf.

The province should be out "hustling" for the tenants, finding them accommodation and ensuring the city core has adequate housing in the future, he said.

Meanwhile, in a letter to the tenants in Cantonese, "we said we demand possession of the premises," said Bawlf.

He wants to retain his eviction right but still allow them additional time to find homes. No more rent will be asked.

Legal action may be taken at some point since the eviction notice was unquestionably legal, he said, but he hopes all will have new accommodation within 30 days.

Assisting the tenants are both the company and members of the human resources department's downtown-Blanshard advisory group.

Chop, Chop, Chop!

Saanich representatives will be ready with axes raised at the next meeting on the Capital Regional District's proposed budget.

As Ald. John McDonald said at Monday's council meeting:

"It will be chop, chop, chop."

Council agreed with Mayor Ed. Lum that the CRD board's proposed 68 per cent increase in Saanich's contribution is far too high.

He said he was concerned because there was relatively little opposition when the budget was presented.

Ald. William Campbell wanted rejection of the proposed budget.

"I feel if we approve this budget our members (Saanich representatives on the CRD board) will stand no chance," he said.

Most council members agreed with him but Campbell withdrew his motion to reject the budget after municipal clerk Gordon Hayward pointed out council has no power over the regional budget.

Aldermen May Cut Own Pay

"The total amount in really minimal," Mayor Jean Butler said today. "It's more the principle of the thing."

At Monday's meeting, Ald. Don MacLaurin served notice that he will introduce a motion at the next meeting Feb. 3 to cut council salaries by five per cent.

Aldermen now receive $1,700 per year remuneration and the mayor receives $4,000. A five per cent cut would mean a saving of $710 for the municipality.

"I think what Ald. MacLaurin wanted to do is stop the escalation of the remuneration," Butler said.

Meet One Member of A Famous Clan Who Shuns Publicity

Patsy's the Shy Berton

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-one-year-old Patsy Berton shuns publicity. But, as the daughter of author and broadcaster Pierre Berton, it sometimes is hard to avoid.

Patsy also has risked attracting detested limelight by illustrating the second edition of her father's children's book, The Secret World of Og.

Now she is back in London, attending classes at Camberwell College of Art and glad to escape potential charges of nepotism.

"People might say I got to illustrate the book because of my father — and I wouldn't blame them," said Patsy.

"So I made my father promise that I wouldn't have to be interviewed when the book came out, or sign autographs.

"When I'm in England, I feel like everybody else. But in Canada I try not to mention my last name."

Patsy became a candidate for the illustration job on New Year's Eve, 1973, when publisher Jack McClelland saw a calendar she had made and illustrated as a Christmas gift to her mother.

Drawings on the calendar depicted members of the Berton family and were exactly the kind of illustrations wanted for her father's book.

Other illustrators tried out for the job but Patsy was chosen as the most suitable because she "was there when it all happened."

Og is an imaginary tale about five of Janet and Pierre's children — they now haye seven. So, Patsy, then five years old, is one of the main characters in the book, first published in 1962.

"Some said I'd be chosen for the job anyway," Patsy said. "But I don't think that's fair. After all, I know the book so well and I also knew that my father wanted wacky pictures."

Scientists think that at present there are more red foxes in North America than ever before. This is not too surprising because a pair of foxes is able to breed for six years and to produce seven cubs in every litter. However, most of the fox cubs don't survive.

This is some of the fascinating information gleaned from the four-page leaflet "Red Fox" ("Le renard roux").

The red fox can be found in all of Canada's provinces and territories but is absent from the Arctic Archipelago, the coast of British Columbia and Vancouver Island.

The red fox is comparatively small. A typical male weighs only about 12 pounds and stands 14 inches high. A vixen is even smaller. Its distinguishing characteristic is a coat of long, lustrous fur and a large bushy brush (or tail) and ruff (or collar).

The leaflet also describes the family life of the red fox. This agile carnivore is loyal to its mate and cubs; he and his vixen are pairing for life.

Then they look out for a den. The parents fix it up to suit your needs and those of the expected litter. Usually they line it with dry grass and leaves to protect their cubs from dampness and cold. In the fall the cubs are ready to leave their parents and to go their individual ways. If they survive the winter, they are able to produce a litter next March.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Recently, while visiting the exhibits at a huge meeting of the American Medical Association in Chicago in June, I talked with a group of fine people who are courageously and idealistically trying to educate people about the terrible Tay-Sachs disease, which they call "the preventable disease."

This disease is particularly tragic because, although a baby may seem normal at birth, after four or six months he begins to show signs of failing in health; he stops crawling and turning over, and he no longer reaches out to take hold of his toys. Later, he loses his sight, his ability to eat, and to smile, and then by the age of three or five years, he dies.

Unfortunately, there is as yet no cure for Tay-Sachs disease, but it is known to be hereditary, and although it can appear in persons of any ancestry, it is 100 times more frequent in Jewish infants, especially those of Eastern European ancestry. Also, one of every 30 such children is a "carrier" of the Tay-Sachs gene, by which we mean that although he himself is healthy and never develops the disease, when he becomes adult he will be capable of passing the gene and the disease on to a child.

If both parents are carriers of the awful gene, they have a one-in-four chance in each pregnancy of having an infant with Tay-Sachs disease, and a one-in-four chance of having a child with no Tay-Sachs gene at all.

If only one parent is a carrier of a Tay-Sachs gene, the couple will not have a child with the disease, but any child they have will have a 50 per cent chance of being a carrier.

The disease is preventable, and today there is a blood test that can be done to show a person whether or not he or she is a carrier. Also a fetus can be tested with a technique called anmiocentesis, in which a hollow needle is passed through the abdomen into the womb of the pregnant woman, and some of the amniotic fluid which surrounds the fetus is withdrawn and studied microsopically.

In this way the parents can learn whether or not the developing child will be healthy or will have Tay-Sachs disease. If it is diseased, the parents may choose not to bring into the world a child that will live only a few years, most of the time very ill and suffering, mentally retarded, and blind, and whose medical care will be extremely expensive. However, if the parents receive the good news that their developing child is normal and healthy they will have much joy and a great sense of relief.

The dedicated people I met at the AMA meeting were from Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia, Pa. They have there a Tay-Sachs Prevention Program, which was established through the efforts of the Delaware Valley Chapter of the National Tay-Sachs and Allied Diseases Association, for the purpose of screening many persons to find carriers and to provide counsel for them. Specially trained persons go around to community groups and religious organizations and give people the simple blood test.

They prefer to test a woman when she is not pregnant. People who think there might be a chance that they could be carriers should be tested, even if they have healthy children, and have completed their family. This can be very important, because the results of the test can have implications for their children and other close relatives.

I much admire the people who have the courage to talk honestly about the possibility of their bearing a child with a terrible hereditary disease such as Tay-Sachs, and who are willing to face the facts about the disease. As the people from the Prevention Program say, "Today, only uninformed couples need ever suffer the anguish of learning that their beautiful, seemingly healthy child is doomed because of Tay-Sachs disease."

People wanting information about the disease or about the screening program can write either the Thomas Jefferson University -Tay Sachs Program, 1025 Walnut St., Room 323, Philadelphia, Pa., 19107, or the National Tay-Sachs and Allied Diseases Association, Delaware Valley Chapter, P.O. ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis is on creative money management. Find out what it is you actually desire — then begin program to obtain it. Leo, Aquarius might be in picture. Key is to get to heart of matters. Don't fool yourself. See situation as it exists. Cycle is high — and you will win.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lunar cycle promotes fresh starts, overcoming of doubts, fears. Light as well as heat will be generated; you see in areas previously obscured. Hunch could prove startlingly accurate. Be confident!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A closed-door meeting could be featured. Key now is to be versatile — and discreet. Another Gemini — and a Sagittarian — figure in picture. You may be visiting home, institution, hospital. Do favor for one temporarily incapacitated.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent is on friends, desires, income derived through professional endeavors. Member of opposite sex wants reassurances. Be truthful, specific. If this you do, your life could take on greater glow of happiness. Start now!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Spotlight is on hurdling obstacles, making necessary revisions, opening lines of communication with "one at the top." Gemini, Sagittarius and Virgo individuals could figure prominently. A special call could be link to ultimate promotion. Know it and have facts at the ready.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Good Moon aspect coincides now with long trips, language, ability to gauge pulse of public. Long-range plans could crystallize. Taurus, Scorpio and Libra persons figure in picture. Spiritual insight is achieved to greater degree than in immediate past.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Money situation, as it related to co-operative effort, marriage, partnership, legal agreement, is emphasized. Someone wants something for nothing—from you and at your expense. Know it—protect yourself in clinches. You will get all the facts—in surprising manner.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov. 21): Push for "real" agreement. Means get promises in writing. One who says you are not grateful is covering something. Know it and beware. Strive now to understand thinking of opposition. Take nothing for granted. Capricorn, Cancer persons play significant roles.

SAGGITARIUS Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Now you reach more people more of the time. Aries, Libra figure prominently. You complete project. You are down to the basics and more in control of your own actions, even "destiny." Individual who shares your interests wants to help you over difficult situation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Harmonious lunar aspect coincides now with creativity, intensified relationship, children, change, variety. You get to heart of matters. Can you take it? Means be willing to comprehend truth when it is encountered.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What might appear a trap is actually a slow-down warning. Know it and do something about it. Be specific about meanings, statements. Price of rebuilding, adding to, reinforcing, soundproofing — this could be very much in your personal spotlight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Ideas click. You see people and go places. You have little time for details. You make contacts which could prove meaningful — at a future date. Gemini, Sagitarius persons figure in picture. A neighbor tells delightful story. Don't take it too seriously!

JELLY SIDE DOWN

nancy stahl

Every morning after we are hit with a particularly severe snowstorm, the children huddle around the radio hoping to hear that their school is closed.

The announcer invariably sounds happy to report that school is cancelled. He can afford to be happy; he is all alone in a sound-proof studio. He isn't at home facing a semi-housetrained puppy, a washing machine struck on the "spin" cycle, and, unexpectedly, two children as well.

Children, unfortunately, have difficulty coping with an unforeseen holiday. Rather than allowing them to engage in idle mischief, I offer the following: "What to do all day when school is closed."

1. Wash your hair six times.
2. Watch "As the World Turns" and make retching noises.
3. Say "What's great about today is that I don't have to see that stupid Michael Freebish."
4. Paint your shoes.
5. Write "I hate Michael Freebish" on your hand with red ink.
6. Hold an Alice Cooper Rock Festival.
7. Begin cooking something exotic for supper without first reading the recipe, and discovering, too late, that the average larder doesn't include rose water and cardamom seeds.
8. Say "I'm sure glad I'm not in school so I don't have to sit next to that creepy Michael Freebish."
9. Stage a wandering minstrel act, following mother around the house, strumming your guitar, and bellowing "Bridge Over Troubled Waters" into her ear.
10. Put two carrot sticks under your upper lip, cross your eyes, and say "I'm Michael Frebish."
11. Ask questions like "How does a vacuum cleaner work?" "How much will you pay me to pick all the Christmas tree needles out of the shag carpet?" and "Do you know that your have wiggly red lines in the back of your knees?"
12. Phone your old buddy Michael Freebish.

DEAR READERS: A reader asked if I knew the official rules for the kissing game kids played years ago, called "post office."

I didn't, so I asked my readers, and what a variety of answers I received! Since there is nothing in the literature to authenticate the rules, and I know of no living authority (does anyone?), here is one of the responses.

DEAR ABBY: When I was a teen-ager, no party was complete unless we played post office. One person was chosen to be the postmaster, and another was chosen to go into a dark room (usually closet) which we called "the post office." The postmaster was the go-between.

The person in the closet would whisper a message to the postmaster who came out and announced that there was a postcard for Nancy. Nancy would then go into the closet and what went on in there nobody knew but Nancy and the guy in the closet.

Then the guy came out and Nancy stayed in and told the postmaster that there was a letter for Jimmy. Jimmy went into the closet, and what went on there nobody knew but Nancy and Jimmy. A postcard was a quick kiss, a letter was a longer kiss. And a special delivery must have been a really passionate kiss because the guy (or girl) would come out of the closet with his hair mussed up, red in the face and all flustered.

We played this game until everybody in the room got kissed. — DENVER.

DEAR DENVER: That's the way I remember it. Today the kids are a little more sophisticated. They play a game called "pony express." It's just like post office, only there's a little more horsing around.

Are You Burn-Prone?

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors have put together what they say is the first extensive profile of adults who are "burn prone" and likely to become victims of fire.

The person most likely to be burned is a middle-aged woman with a history of smoking, alcoholism or drug abuse whose clothes or hair catch fire as she sits in an overstuffed easy-chair or lies in bed, the doctors indicate.

In a study published in this week's Journal of the American Medical Association, Drs. John MacArthur and Francis Moore report on 155 adult patients they have treated for burns at Boston's Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in almost a decade.

The study showed that about half of these patients showed a predisposition to burning. And in the cases of more-severe burns, this figure was 57 per cent.

The study found that women, whether predisposed to burns or normal, were more likely to get burned than men in their same group. And also women were more likely than men to have severe, extensive burns that caused death.

Burn-prone persons should not be permitted to use a flame-type stove, light a fire or to smoke unattended since these routine functions might be dangerous to them, the study said.

Milk, Beer Linked In Danger

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Beer and milk may be contaminated with potentially dangerous chemicals picked up from plastic tubes during processing, scientists at Iowa State University report. A team of chemists says tests on purified water run through plastic tubing such as that used in food and beverage plants shows contamination becomes more dense as the flow is increased.

One of the researchers, Dr. Gregor Junk, said indications are that beer, wine and milk would reach even higher levels of contamination because the plastic chemicals are more soluble in those compounds.

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Ten men have been sentenced to death for opposing a new law giving women equal rights with men. The convicted men were accused of spreading propaganda against the law at religious ceremonies in mosques. They were charged by the National Security Court with subverting state authority and creating national disunity.

Four were sentenced Sunday. The other six were told Saturday night they would die by the firing squad.

Religious officials previously held that men had more rights than women, including a 2-1 ratio in their favor in inheritance settlements. Last Sunday, President Siad Barre announced the decision of the Supreme Revolutionary Council and the Council of Ministers to equalize rights.

Gourmet Cantering, Not Galloping . . .

OTTAWA (CP) — Times and food prices have changed since Graham Kerr did his Galloping Gourmet television shows in 1970.

His new series, Take Kerr, produced here, will reflect everyone's growing concern with eating economical and nutritious meals.

"There is no comparison between this series and the other one," said the show's producer, Treena Kerr, who is also Graham's wife.

"The Galloping Gourmet shows were for fun and entertainment, we spared no expense in the dishes we made," she said.

The new series has a different format. There are no silly jokes, wine-sipping or live audiences. The four-minute shows will be sold to television stations to be included in early news programs, talk shows and afternoon features.

"When we all start driving big cars again and don't have to worry about how much the gas costs I'll start jumping over chairs again," said Graham, "but until then, frivolity as far as food goes, would be an obscenity."

He said he will deal with one specific topic in each show—how to decant wine, why left-over meat is a waste of money, how a working couple can organize their time and budget to eat better, or what gourmet cooking gadgets you would never use.

Graham said a day-and-a-half worth of production had been lost through technical oversights. No one was looking forward to the overtime required to finish shooting on time.

Language Taking Its Lumps

LONDON (UPI) — Even at home, the Kwean's Inglish is not what it used to be. It's getting a mangling from those who should know it best — British-schooled candidates for universities.

That's the opinion of examiners who grade papers submitted by 16-year-old high school students at the first academic hurdle in qualifying for a university education.

"Far too many seemingly intelligent candidates misspell even familiar words in common use," the report says.

There is frequent failure to distinguish between "there" and "their" and between "whether" and "weather," the report says.

Misspellings such as "seperation" for "separation," "concievable" instead of "conceivable" and "undoubtably" rather than "undoubtedly" turn up year after year.

And one student, in a comment on a poem by Shakespeare, said, "this poem is good because he wrote it down good."

NO CURE FOR GAS

STONEWALL, Man. (CP) — When Mary Raflant says she has gas, she means it literally.

One of the large gasoline storage tanks owned by Gulf Oil situated near her home in this community about 16 miles northwest of Winnipeg ruptured recently, spewing several thousand gallons of the fuel onto the ground in the immediate vicinity.

Raflant is certain some of the gasoline has contaminated the well that provides water for her and her husband.

"It's so contaminated with gasoline that the only thing I can do with it is wash the floors."

Most of the gasoline was recovered, but Raflant is concerned the estimated 900 gallons that eluded clean-up efforts seeped into the ground and may ignite.

"My life is in danger and I want those things out of here. Until they're gone, we're living on top of a time bomb."

Mom Found Guilty In Boy's Death

VANCOUVER — Cecelia Kerr, 24, charged with murder in the death of six-year-old Michael Taylor, was found guilty of manslaughter Monday and remanded to Feb. 12 for sentence.

She was charged after Michael died in hospital last Aug. 20 following a beating at the home she shared with the boy's father.

The court was told that Taylor had financial difficulties at the time of the boy's death, that Taylor's work as a musician had left the bringing-up of their two children mainly to Kerr, that the boy's defiant disobedience and lack of co-operation with her had its strains and frustrations which led her to near-hysteria which was at a peak about the time of the beating.

Taylor told the court he had been a poor father.

Kerr, in statements to police, is alleged to have said that on the night of Aug. 20 she and Taylor were having difficulty getting Michael to do his spelling lessons, that Taylor strapped the boy, left for work and that the accused tried in vain three times to get him to do what he was told.

She was alleged to have told police that after the third time she slapped the boy and banged his head twice on the floor.

Kerr told the court she has no recollection of talking to police and had no recollection of what happened after Taylor left for work until she became aware of the boy lying injured on her bed. She said she did not intend to kill him or unduly harm him.

Psychiatrist Dr. John Duffy told the court that as a result of interviews he had with the accused while she was in Riverview Hospital for observation he believed strains to which she had been subjected brought her to the point where she was subject to explosive outbursts of temper.

Dr. Duffy said that just at the time when she thought she was making headway with the boy, his grandfather — who she claimed was responsible for the boy's difficulties through his having been spoiled by him for four years — arrived and any good that she felt she had accomplished began to be lost.

PAINTED POST, N.Y. — English historian Sydney Wignall believes Sir Francis Drake may have been a psychopath who was poisoned by a relative — and he's going looking for the explorer's body to prove it. Wignall said Monday he will dive off the coast of Panama later this year and dig up Drake's body. Drake is believed by many historians to have died in 1596 of dysentery and was buried at sea. But Wignall said his research indicates the 16th century admiral may have been poisoned by an unidentified relative who supposedly had forced Drake to sign a will naming him the beneficiary. Wignall also said he had reason to believe Drake as "a psychopath," but declined to elaborate.

LONDON — Sex followed soup and steak on the menu at the Le Bistro restaurant with male diners invited to make love to three striptease dancers, a court was told Monday. Two off-duty policemen were among patrons at the restaurant when two of the girls undressed a customer and another had intercourse with him. In what was believed to be the first prosecution of its kind in Britain, restaurant owner Peter Dulieu, 32, was fined $1,380 after admitting that he staged an indecent exhibition. The dancers were given suspended sentence and the customers were fined.

LOS ANGELES — John Dean has sold the publishing rights for an account of his involvement in Watergate for about $300,000, the Los Angeles Times reported today. The Times quoted an executive of Simon and Schuster Inc., in New York as saying the publishing house signed a contract during the weekend with the former White House lawyer.

CHILLIWACK — Four junior high school students teetered and tottered their way to a Canadian teeter-totter marathon record during the weekend. Sharon McKinnon, 16, Kathy Cook and Steve Magee, both 15 and Ken Popove, 14, all of Chilliwack, started teetering Thursday. They finished Monday after 104 hours, beating the old record of 72 hours. They did it in two- to three-hour shifts, non-stop. The world record is 16 days. "We didn't have time for that," Miss McKinnon said.

NAIROBI — Ugandan finance minister Emmanuel Wakhweya has fled into exile in Britain after saying the African country was on the verge of economic collapse, according to Uganda Radio. The radio accused the minister of being an agent for "imperialist masters" and said his charges were "ridiculous." Wakhweya flew to London Saturday from Tanzania and was quoted by a London newspaper as saying "It's hell to be in Uganda. I can't imagine how the ordinary people are still able to carry on. Uganda is facing economic catastrophe."

LOS ANGELES — A Superior Court judge Monday overturned a jury verdict that accused "Alphabet Bomber" Murharem Kurbegovic, 31, is sane enough to stand trial, paving the way for him to be sent to a mental institution. While the Yugoslav immigrant alternatively laughed, cried and whistled a tune, Judge William Keene ruled that to make him stand trial for murder would be a "mockery of justice."

TEL AVIV — Two teenage sisters in the Israeli-occupied town of Nablus on the west bank of the Jordan River have become brothers following change-of-sex operations.

Sources said 18-year-old Hadara became Hadar three months ago while a similar operation was carried out on her 16-year-old sister, Amina, this week, changing her to Amin. The family name of the siblings was not disclosed.

It's No. 6 For Zsa-Zsa

HOLLYWOOD — Zsa Zsa Gabor will take her sixth husband Wednesday — the fun-loving millionaire with the treehouse next door, who used to keep her awake at night playing with his fire engine.

"I feel as if Jack will only be my second husband," said Miss Gabor, announcing her engagement to Jack Ryan, inventor and businessman.

According to available data, Miss Gabor will be 52 on Feb. 6. The wedding will be held at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas.

Vintage Broadway is expressed by the cast of George M!, a musical biography of the great showman, George M. Cohan. The stage show presented by UBC's Musical Theatre Society will be seen at McPherson Playhouse Wednesday through Saturday at 8 p.m. There will be a matinee Saturday at 2 p.m.

ROLLING STONE

Huddie (Leadbelly) Ledbetter will finally get an historical marker over his Louisiana gravesite. Leadbelly, who died in New York City in 1949, was buried in the Shiloh Baptist Church graveyard in Caddo Parish, La., under an ordinary marker.

An effort first was made to persuade Paramount pictures, which recently filmed a feature biography of the singer, to finance an historical marker for the grave. But no dice. Finally, the Harrison County, Texas, historical survey committee made a bid to move Leadbelly's remains into their state and tell his story "in stone."

This got the lazy Caddo Parish police jury (same as a county commissioners' board) off their duffs and they voted 14 to 3 to honor Leadbelly with a monument.

The nearby Shreveport Journal scolded the three holdouts in an editorial saying: "... just because they hadn't heard of him (Leadbelly) is no reason to oppose the preservation of local history."

It was opening night for Flo and Eddie (Mark Volman and Howard Kaylan of the defunct Turtles) at Los Angeles's Troubadour. It also happened to be — cazart! — Christmas Eve. The crowd of music industry biggies, press and rock stars were blessed with a bonus show.

Seems James Taylor, Carly Simon, Joni Mitchell and companion John Guerin, and Linda Ronstadt with beau Albert Brooks all leaped onto the stage and commenced singing Christmas carols.

Before that, the sextet had wandered around from house to house in the Hollywood Hills crooning carols to startled neighbors. Well, it beats Charlie Manson.

FM Changes Stressed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) called on FM broadcasting stations Monday to make substantial changes in ther program policies, bringing radio back into the foreground of listeners' enjoyment.

The commission, which has been cogitating on the policy tor more than a year, called a hearing starting March 11 to consider ways of implementing the plan in a three-year period starting next year.

Pierre Juneau, CRTC chairman, told a news conference the commission will show flexibility in applying the new policy, concentrating mainly on the big cities which now have a number of FM stations with little difference in their programs.

The CRTC originally intended that FM stations devote at least 20 per cent of their broadcast time to the arts, letters and sciences.

Instead, it will require all stations to devote a substantial amount of their time to "foreground" programs.

The CRTC said FM programs should deal with a topic or subject with more care and through preparation than is common in AM programs.

As examples of "foreground" programs for FM, the commission suggested:

—Theme programs, which would present recordings by a particular artist or composer with a substantial amount of comment and explanation, or news supplements on specific subject matter using wireservice copy.

—Event coverage, transmitting live or recorded meetings of city councils, seminars or symposiums, public discussions of controversial issues, or local sports events with descriptive commentary.

—Staged presentations of musical concerts—symphonic, folk, country or rock—or drama intended for radio or adapted for the stage, or a community festival, fair or celebration.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

It is not too often that the word, "brilliant" is properly used to describe an opening lead, but, in my opinion, that adjective is applicable in today's deal. The hand arose in a tournament back in 1943, and the West defender was the late Harry Merkle, of San Francisco.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
3 ♠	4 ♣	4 ♠	5 ♣
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♠.

Both sides vulnerable. East deals.

South's four-club bid is not a typographical error. The bid was the initiation of the Fishbein Convention, commanding partner to bid his longest suit. A "double" by South would have been a penalty double; and a three notrump overcall would have expressed a desire to play the hand at that contract. A bid of the next-ranking suit (four clubs, in this case) was the equivalent of the standard take-out double.

Merkle, on lead against South's five-club contract, felt that the best chance of defeating the contract lay in the hope that East had a singleton in either hearts or diamonds. If such were the setup, then if he could correctly guess which red suit to lead, upon regaining the lead with the trump ace, he could return the original red suit led for partner to trump.

Obviously, it was a guess as to which red suit to lead. But Merkle didn't indulge in guesswork. He transferred the decision to his partner, who was more equipped to make the winning decision.

Since East had made a vulnerable three-spade opening bid, it was almost certain that he held the spade king. So Merkle led the spade nine at trick one, underleading his ace! East rose to the occasion by overtaking the nine with his ten. He then shifted to his singleton diamond, dummy's ace taking the trick.

A low trump was then led, South's jack falling to West's ace. West now followed through as he had planned, based on the hope that East had been dealt a singleton in one of the red suits. He assumed that East's singleton was the diamond he had led. So West returned a diamond, which East ruffed for the setting trick.

I think the reader will agree that the discription of West's opening lead of the nine of spades as being "brilliant," is most fitting. In the vernacular, it was a "heck of a lead."

Each distinct letter in this addition alphametic stands for a particular but different digit.

Of course it all adds up to that LAMP, but what do you make of it?

9 IN MEMORIAM

NEUFELDT—In loving memory of a dear friend "Aunty Lydia" who passed away Jan. 21, 1974.
For the happiness you brought us,
For the lessons that you taught us,
For the way you always cared,
For the things we always shared.
For your wisdom and your good advice.
Your willingness to sacrifice.
We both miss and love you so,
More than anyone could know.
Sadly missed by Jo and Corinne.
Always remembered by Marty, Jo and family.

RENTON—Catherine Mary. In loving memory of our dear Mother and Grandmother.
Dear Mother, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more.
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
—June, Allen, Karen-Ann and Clayton.

RENTON, Catherine, Mary —In loving memory of Mother.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just, to the end of her days;
Sincere and true, in her heart and mind.
Beautiful memories, she left behind.
—Hector.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR HE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

The Difficulty With Cabbage

The actual growing of cabbage is far easier than trying to select a suitable strain from a seed list. Head cabbage listings alone are appalling to the beginner.

We find Extra Early strains, Early Hybrids, Second Early Hybrids, Main Crop Hybrids, Mid-season Cabbage, Late Cabbage, Late storage Green Cabbage, Red Cabbage listed under Early, Hybrid, and Storage, and Savoy Cabbage under the same headings.

To complicate matters there are 46 varieties listed under these headings, and these do not include various types of Broccoli, Brussels Sprouts, so-called Novelty Cabbage, Chinese Cabbage, and the Kales (Borecole).

This vast array indicates the importance of "greens" as a food crop, and results from breeding hybrids to suit different types of soils, different climates, different seasons, and different uses.

Without a seed catalogue for guidance the home gardener has no way of knowing whether Early Marvel, Stonehead, Green Acre, or Evergreen Ballhead will grow in his particular soil, produce well in the local climate, or suit the family tastes.

Variety names give no clue as to the correct times for sowing seed, transplanting, or harvesting. An example is the popular variety "Flowers-of-Spring". The seed is sown here in late August, the plants set out in September. In March the following year they produce usable loose headed greens, in April tight heads are formed, and as the temperatures rise in May they rapidly bolt to seed. The crop is a complete failure if sown in the spring.

The green storage types are relatively new to this continent, being introduced in the early 1960s. They remain green in storage instead of bleaching white like other late cabbage.

The heads are cut in late fall, stored for winter and graded for market in April. Large heads are used by manufacturers of sauerkraut, medium heads for coleslaw, and small heads for retail sales. The plants do not bleed like fresh cabbage and the juices tend to coagulate when the leaves are shredded, thus providing a crisp juicy coleslaw for home use.

Most varieties of head cabbage are geared to commercial requirement, such as different forms of processing, eye appeal for marketing, and the ability to withstand shipping long distances and rough handling. Jumbo, for example, is considered the only cabbage with leaf structure suitable for making cabbage rolls.

But tucked away in the listings we find one or two varieties having "small heads, very tender, good flavor, suitable for home garden only, not for marketing". These are the ones for the home gardener to grow, the kind that cannot be purchased no matter how much money we would be willing to offer.

Unfortunately, commercial growers of cabbage plants stay with the highly rated commercial varieties with their large heads and coarse fibres, probably because these are the only varieties known in the average home nad therefore asked for when purchasing.

To obtain a cabbage that needs tender loving care to preserve its delicacy the gardener has to grow from seed. Fortuantely, the seed is viable for several years so there need be no waste.

Other types of "greens" will be covered in later columns, together with advice on buying plants, seed sowing, transplanting, and cultural requirements for success.

More important right now is to study your seed catalogue so as to become familiar with the strains, selections, and hybrids that are available.

SAVING DEPOSITS UP RECORD 21%

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians continue to save at a near-record pace, says the Canadian Bankers' Association (CBA).

CBA figures showed personal savings deposits, the largest category of deposits with the chartered banks, were up more than 21 per cent in 1974 to a year-end record $29.4 billion.

The increase was the second-largest of the post-war period, exceeded only by the 23-per-cent rise in 1973.

Fixed-term deposits, offering the highest rates of interest, grew at a pace almost double the growth of personal savings deposits, the CBA said. At $12 billion, these were up nearly 12 per cent.

Personal non-chequing deposits, with somewhat lower interest rates, rose more than 23 per cent to $11.2 billion.

Since 1964, personal savings deposits at the chartered banks, the country's major savings institutions through almost 6,900 branches, had more than tripled.

Breakthrough In Rhodesia?

SALISBURY (WA) — A delegation of five African Nationalist leaders met Monday with three high-ranking Rhodesian government officials to discuss the holding of a constitutional conference to settle the Rhodesia dispute.

It was the first sign of a possible breakthrough in the deadlock now existing over the conference, which was initially agreed to by the two sides during secret talks in Lusaka, Zambia, last month.

A spokesman for the African National Council, the main black nationalist organization here, said the two parties discussed "certain matters" pertaining to the conference but refused to elaborate any further on the talks.

He did say that a date for the conference was not among the issues taken up at the meeting, which was held at the prime minister's offices.

The meeting took place shortly after acting council president Elliott Gabelland and its secretary-general Gordon Chavunouka, flew back from Zambia where they had a three-hour talk Sunday with Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda, Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere and Samora Machel, who is head of the Mozambique Liberation Front.

Their discussions, like those held here Monday, were understood to centre upon the two issues of a ceasefire in the guerrilla war under way inside Rhodesia and the release of African political prisoners by Prime Minister Ian Smith's government.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An Esquimalt man pleaded guilty in provincial court Monday to breaking into a grocery store and sitting down to a meal of beans and bread about midnight Jan. 8.

Dennis MacKenna, 702 Esquimalt, told police he broke into Canada Safeway, 1590 Fairfield, because he was "cold and hungry."

He spent the evening in a nearby laundromat waiting until the grocery store was vacated by two male employees.

About 12:30 p.m., he threw a packing box through a plate glass window and entered.

A 20-year-old man was sentenced to six months in jail for "making his way to Victoria breaking and entering as he went."

Ostler said Brian Layland, of no fixed address, had conducted "somewhat of a spree across a good portion of the province."

Ostler also ordered an indefinite jail term of up to six months for a total of nine counts of breaking, entering and theft.

Read in court Monday were five counts from the Kamloops area.

Layland admitted breaking into five residences and, in each case taking money; two piggy banks, one cash box and two sets of coins.

He stressed, however, that all he took "was cash, never any other items."

Ostler noted Layland, in an earlier court appearance, had admitted to one similar count in Victoria and five in West Vancouver.

Layland was still serving a two months' probation sentence ordered in Quebec before the incidents took place.

Sentenced to one month in jail for stealing a steak knife, carrying a concealed weapon and obtaining food by fraud was Russell W. Griese.

He was later stopped by police and charged for having the knife concealed under his jacket.

Ostler noted Griese had abstained from criminal activities for more than four years.

James D. Williams, 212-866 Goldstream, was noticed by police standing outside Belmont-Fisher High School Jan. 16. When approached, Williams bolted through the school.

The youth told court he ran because he was "scared". He said he was not a student at the school.

Ostler, however, said Williams' action "leads to some pretty ugly conclusions."

For vandalizing the fire-fighting apparatus at a local motor inn by stealing the fire hose nozzle, a 19-year-old was fined $200.

Lorne M. Hagen, 2875 Gorge View, told court he wanted the nozzle as a "decoration."

For possession of the drug he was fined an additional $75.

Two women and one man were fined $75 each for possession of marijuana: Betty L. Armstrong, 29, of 1720 Newton; Maureen E. McAllister, 17, of 1261 MacKenzie, and George D. Hunt, 22 of Hilda Street.

Lakhvir Singh Dhillon, address not known, admitted travelling up to 70 miles an hour before skidding through a stop light and colliding with another vehicle.

Man Held In Double Shooting

STETTLER, Alta. (CP) — A man charged with two counts of non-capital murder in the shooting deaths of a Stettler farm couple was held in custody Monday night pending his appearance in provincial court.

An RCMP spokesman said Russell John O'Shea, 31, of Stettler, Alta., would be held in jail in Red Deer.

O'Shea was arrested at his home after the bodies of Stettler district farmer Kenneth Leroy Welty and his wife, Betty Margaret, both 45, were found in their home Saturday.

They were ambushed about 1 a.m. Saturday by a gunman as they returned to their home after an evening of snow-mobiling, RCMP said.

The spokesman said the killer stood outside the house and fired at least five shots from a high-powered rifle through windows and walls.

Welty was shot as she stood at the front window and her husband was wounded by subsequent shots. Before he was killed, he managed to call a neighbor, saying his wife had been shot down and he was wounded.

A group of armed neighbors arrived at the house, but the gunman had fled the scene.

Residents of the town of 4,000 located 125 miles southeast of Edmonton banded together for protection after the killings, fearing that the killer may strike again.

20% NEW AUTOS FAIL THE TEST

Almost one out of every five new cars purchased in B.C. is unsafe, according to figures released today by the provincial government.

A sampling of 348 new vehicles tested at motor vechicle branch inspection stations around the provicne showed 66 or 18.9 per cnet were rejected on their first inspection.

The major causes of rejection were brakes, steering, and headlight defects.

Transport Minister Bob Strachan warned all new car buyers to have safety checks made as soon as possible after taking delivery.

"Some defects are such that they can suddenly change a four-wheeled car into a four-wheeled coffin," said the minister.

In two of the cases surveyed, the new cars were missing brake shoes entirely and in cars with double brake systems, often only one system was operating.

In other instances, here were mismatched brake linings, holes admitting brake fluid to the system had not been drilled, and calipers which move the brake shoes against the brake drums had not been installed.

Inspectors found some new cars with cracked frames and said steering defects included cases where power steering units were not bolted to the frame.

Strachan said flaws in brakes and steering systems can result in cars going out of control and are a danger not only to the driver but to every other car on the highway.
way.

The sampling shows the need for expanded inspection facilities throughout B.C., said the minister.

No Hikes In Home Gas Cost

The new federal-provincial agreement on natural gas taxation will not result in any price increases for domestic users of gas, Premier Barrett said Monday.

Industrial consumers of gas in B.C. can expect price increases in the future, said Barrett, but the province has no intention of increasing the price to homeowners.

But the premier hinted that gas companies in B.C. may receive a higher price from the government-owned B.C. Petroleum Corporation which buys and markets all gas produced in the province.

Included in the agreement is a recognition by Ottawa that the export price of natural gas will be increased this year and Barrett said gas companies "may or may not get a compensating increase" in the price they are originally paid for the gas by the BCPC.

There will be no "substantial" increase to producers, he said, but the precedent has been established in the past when the export price rose, the price to producers was voluntarily increased by the

13 Montrealers Die In Gangland Massacre

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirteen persons, including three women, died early today in a fire-charred, padlocked nightclub closet in what police speculated was a gangland rubout although most of the victims apparently were "innocent bystanders.

One police officer described the killings as the worst "premediatated" mass murder in the history of Montral, and it was generally regarded as one of the worst crimes of its kind in Canadian history.

Police speculated the victims were herded into the six-by-eight-foot beer-storage closet and the fire set with the aim of eliminating witnesses to an Oct. 30 double murder at the same nightclub in the city's north-east district.

But Constable Jean Gauthier, 25, the first police officer at the scene, said it appeared most of the victims had simply dropped into the club for a drink.

Asked whether there was something "in common" among the victims, Constable Gautheir replied:

"I think two or three of them have had something in common but the rest were bypassers."

Asked whether the others were innocent bystanders, Gauthier replied.

"Most definitely. One of the victims was a father of four who had stopped in for a beer after his shift."

Police listed Rejean Fortin, 44, manager of the night-club, which features top-less dancers among the victims. They said Fortin was the only fictim shot — he had been shot in the back.

A picture emerged of the victims dying from asphyxiation as smoke seeped around the padlocked door into the small closet where the bodies were found piled on top of one another.

The fire started at 12:27 a.m. and firemen said it took them three hours to get it under control. Shortly afterwards they found the bodies in the locked storage closet, used to store cases of beer. A juke box had been pulled across in front of the door.

Besides the club manager, police identified nine other victims. They gave their names as Pierre Lamarche, Augustin Carbonneau, Perre Lesiege, Gaetan Caron, Michel Viscardi, Denis Lauze, Ghislain Briere, Jacques Lamarche and Yves Pigeon.

A police spokesman said. "We have no doubt that some of the victims were merely patrons of the club. At this time we have not yet established whether or not any of the victims had any criminal records."

LAND RIGHTS UP TO COURT

VERNON (CP) — Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Monday the provincial government intends to introduce a new expropriation bill at the spring session which will strengthen the rights of property owners.

Macdonald said that under present legislation, government agencies can arbitrarily expropriate land, but under new legislation final decision will come through the courts.

Barrett Won't Interfere

Premier Barrett said Monday he has no intention of interfering in the dismissal of education department research director Dr. Stanley Knight.

"It's a public service commission matter and there's no way I'll interfere in a public service matter," he said.

"I have full confidence in the minister and she has full confidence in her staff and the matter ends there."

Knight has written the premier a letter asking him to intervene in the case and has also filed an official grievance with the public service commission.

Knight was left without a job last week when deputy education minister Jack Fleming recommended his dismissal at the end of his standard six-month probationary period.

He was hired last July to head up a new 12-member research and development division of the education department assigned to draw up a blueprint for educational change in the province, based on Education Minister Eileen Dailly's white paper on education.

Knight said he decided to appeal to the premier for support because his educational philosophy "happens to follow the white paper and the NDP's educational policy."

"I support the government and their educational policy and the bureaucracy of the department of education is not supportive of the government," he said.

He agreed his appointment through the public service commission was not a political one but said his dismissal was political, because it was based on his support for the government's stated policy.

The other members of the new research division do not know what will happen to them now, said Knight.

U.S. Inflation Easing Off

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — U.S. prices rose in 1974 at the highest rate since wage and price controls were lifted after the Second World War but the increase in the last three months of the year showed an easing of inflation, the government said today.

The December increase in the consumer price index of 0.7 per cent was the lowest in five months.

In a development aimed at attacking recession, the federal reserve board Monday pumped $1.1 billion into the economy to permit more and easier credit for business expansion and to ease unemployment.

The bureau of labor statistics said the inflation rate for 1974 was 12.2 per cent higher than 1973. It is the highest rate of price growth since 1946 when prices rose 18.1 per cent and the second highest since the index skyrocketed 20.5 per cent in 1918 following the First World War.

Based on 1967 prices, the increase means goods and service that cost $100 then cost $155.40 last month.

At the same time, the bureau of labor statistics said the purchasing power of workers increased for the first time in six months.

Meanwhile, in Congress, Speaker Carl Albert attacked Monday night the $12 billion anti-recession tax rebate proposed last week by President Ford, saying 43 per cent of the money would go to "the richest 17 per cent of the population."

By contrast, Albert said in a Democratic response to the president's State of the Union message, "the Democratic leadership has asked the House to pass a substantial tax reduction bill for middle and lower-income persons only by the end of March."

The speaker also attacked the president's complicated proposals to cut back fuel consumption, which he said would have "an astounding inflationary impact" and would end up taking more away from the average family than it would return.

President Ford today again rejected gasoline rationing to end the energy crisis, saying it would have to be in effect at least five years to work and would limit every motorist to fewer than nine gallons per week.

NEWS BRIEFS

Pickets Arrested

HULL, Que. (CP) — Three union members were arrested today as striking mint workers demonstrated in front of the Hull numismatic division of the Royal Canadian Mint. The three members of the Public Service Alliance, which represents the 550 workers, were arrested because they blocked entry of trucks and cars to the building, police said. (See Picture on Page 3)

Woman Shot

VANCOUVER (CP) — A woman clerk was shot Monday in an attempted hold-up at a restaurant. Police said two men, armed with a handgun, shot the woman and fled without any money in the hold-up attempt. The woman was in satisfactory condition after being taken to hospital.

Hijackers Give Up in Iraq

Times News Services

BAGHDAD — Three Arab guerrillas who terrorized Paris' Orly airport last weekend surrendered to a reluctant Iraqi government in Baghdad today and a volunteer Air France crew flew back to France aboard the jet liner that had taken them and the terrorists on a daylong Middle East odyssey.

Iraq immediately denounced the three and said they had been placed under arrest.

A statement issued by the Iraqui Embassy in Paris said the French jetliner that flew them out of France in exchange for the hostages' lives had been permitted to land in Baghdad only because it was low on fuel and the crew was exhausted by more than 17 hours of flying.

In Cairo, the three Egyptian government-run dailies — Al Ahram, Al Akhbar and Al Gomhouriya — also condemned the Orly siege and called for unified Arab action to prevent such incidents from recurring.

In Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization said it would demand extradition of the gunmen and put them on trial "for their crimes."

Threat of Strike Could Stall Mall

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Cancellation or postponement of Victoria's Government Street Mall project became a possibility today, as city aldermen learned that a lengthy strike by municipal employees could add up to $301,000 — or more than 30 per cent — to the total costs.

Ald. Sam Bawlf, responsible for mall planning, told the Central Area development committee today it would be "unwise" for the city to award the contract and let the work start until the current negotiations with city employees are successfully concluded and a strike averted.

"Obviously this places the project in some jeopardy," he added.

His comments followed an explanation from city manager Jim Bramley that $301,261 of the total estimated cost of the work, $902,426, could be recovered by the city as "labor forgiveness" costs under Ottawa's winter capital projects fund.

But Bramley said the federal program only covers the period from Dec. 31, 1974, to May 31, 1975. And then, with a series of "ifs" Bramley outlined the risks to the city:

—If the contract is awarded and the work starts soon, as it was scheduled to do;

—If the threatened strike of city employees then takes place within a few days;

—And if the strike last three or four months . . .

Then, said Bramley, the city would have passed the time limit set for the federal program, lost the $301,000 for labor costs and run into a whole series of other problems — including traffic control and difficulties for merchants if the work has to be undertaken during the summer months.

Bramley stressed he was not implying that a strike would necessarily take place, but merely outlining the repercussions on financing the project if that did happen.

Ald. Mike Young said in any case he had been viewing "with singular skepticism" the city's ability to meet even its basic costs commitment, and he was loath to see council commit itself still further under current labor uncertainties.

City engineer John Sansom told aldermen that assuming there is no strike of city employees, and therefore no stoppage of the work on the mall, the contractor should be able to complete the job comfortably by May 31.

The committee had been due to consider today five tenders submitted last week, and to recommend the contractor for the job.

But no decision was reached because the committee felt the implications were such that the matter should be referred to the regular meeting of council's caucus this afternoon.

Liquor Tops Hard Drugs in Schools—Survey

VANCOUVER (CP) — A survey of Vancouver high school students shows they are steering somewhat away from harder drugs but turning more and more to liquor.

TThe survey, made by John Russell and Marcus Hollander of the Narcotic Addiction Foundation of British Columbia, was presented Monday to the Vancouver School Toard.

Trustees will meet later with medical officials and others working with drugs and alcohol.

"Millions" of dollars have been spent on drug education all over North America and not a single program has been successful," Russell said.

The two researchers selected about 10 per cent of the students at random and are satisfied their findings apply to the 28,000 secondary students here.

The survey shows that 71 per cent of students now are using alcohol compared with 61 per cent in 1970.

The use of tobacco is also up — to 64 per cent of the students in 1974 from 42 per cent in 1970.

The use of cannabis, which includes both marijuana and hashish, does not appear to have changed appreciably, according to the researchers. They found 39 per cent of the students had used it in 1970 and 42 per cent in 1974.

Use of LSD is down to 15 from 22 per cent. Fourteen per cent of the students said they used MDA in 1974 but were not questioned about this hallucinogen in 1970.

In 1974, 19 per cent of the students had used LSD, MDA or both and the researchers say the use of hallucinogens appears to have declined slightly.

The sniffing of glue and other solvents has not changed with nine per cent use in both surveys.

The non-prescription use of tranquillizers was up to nine from eight per cent but the use of non-prescription barbiturates was down to five from 10 per cent.

The survey shows the use of heroin is down to 1.5 from two per cent but the researchers say this estimate may be unreliable because the proportion of users is so small.

The 1974 survey shows there is little difference in general in the use of drugs by sex. Males used more alcohol, tobacco, cannabis, LSD and MDA while females used more amphetamines and barbiturates.

The use of most drugs increases as the students get older while the use of solvents, amphetamines, barbiturates, tranquilizers and heroin appears to peak in the 15-to-16 age group.

Tobacco, alcohol and cannabis are the only drugs being used at least once a week by a sizable proportion of the students.

The majority of those who had used LSD, MDA, solvents, amphetamines, barbiturates, tranquillizers and heroin had done so less than five times in the six months preceding the survey.

town talk

Second edition of British Columbia Government News, the "information" sheet started by the Socreds and last month resurrected by the NDP, makes it clear that no one is going to forget the names and faces of B.C. cabinet ministers if the editors can help it.

No fewer than eight of them get their mugs attached to "news" stories in the January issue of BCGN — "news" being announcements of the wonderful things the government is doing for us, items that were printed in the daily press weeks ago.

The lucky eight are Lorimer of municipal affairs, Williams of resources, Nicolson of housing, Nunweiler of land and forests, Radford of conservation, Cocke of health, Stupich of agriculture and Strachan . . . of everything. But not a genuine news story in the lot.

BCGN is, however, enlivened by a B.C. Crossword Puzzle, for heaven's sakes. And it's a tough one too.

Jim Hilborn, the Victoria surfer who survived a night in the frigid waters off Jordan River, says sorry folks but the television people switched times on him.

Jim was flown to Toronto to be interviewed for the Front Page Challenge show and says he was told he would appear on tonight's program. Jim told a teacher of his at Camosun College, Dickson Falconer, and Dickson, thinking Victorians would be interested in watching, informed the Times Monday.

But Jim phoned the TV people to check and was told he will now appear in the show at 9:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 28.

HILBORN
. . . sorry about that

Town Talk called Channel 2 in Vancouver but, as Front Page Challenge is a quiz show, the spokeswoman there wouldn't say anything. And, she says, phoning Toronto "won't get you anywhere, either" as they would only tell the contestants themselves when they are to appear.

And does the panel guess the front-page news story surrounding our courageous surfer Jim? Well now, we couldn't tell you that could we? That would only be spoiling things.

If, as a Vancouver columnist suggests, Mayor Peter Pollen is destined for the board of the B.C. Telephone Company, to represent the share-owning B.C. government, he'll have at least something in common with two other directors.

Businessmen sat down to salad at 12:05 p.m. and began the main course at 12:15 p.m. They finished at 12:30 and Poyen launched into his speech. Then, just as the crowd was getting up to leave at 1:30 p.m., the waitresses began serving the dessert.

It seems Poyen was such a fascinating speaker they didn't want to disturb him. The result: lunch ended at 1:40, a one-hour-and-35-minute event. Usual eating time is under 45 minutes.

Memories of the day Victorians panicked when they thought enemy submarines were entering the Inner Harbor during the First World War were revived recently when Cmdr. Burrard Archibald Smith RN (Rtd.) died at Long Beach near Nelson. He was 99.

Smith joined the Royal Navy in 1889 when he was 14 and was on loan to the Royal Canadian Navy during the First World War, serving in ships guarding this coast.

In those days the west coast had two submarines under its command.

Built in the United States, the submarines CC1 and CC2 were slated for the Chilean navy but an astute Canadian defence department snapped them up.

Apparently, news of the purchase hadn't reached the general populace on this coast because old newspaper reports relate general consternation when the two submarines entered harbor Aug. 5, 1914. Citizens had to be assured they were friendly!

The strength of lobbying groups is accelerating as the clout of the Canadian armed forces is whittled down, says Ltd.-Cmdr. Alan Heater, president of the Naval Officers Association of Vancouver Island.

His group had a 100 per cent increase in members in 1974, he said.

NOA member Ltd.-Cmdr. Jack Koyl said:

"The organization nearly went under following Hellyer's unification of the navy, army and air force," he said, "but now we have a navy, things have changed. People are becoming concerned and we expect even more rapid growth this year."

It had to happen.

When Ask The Times was asked last week how many letters the longest word in modern usage has, our answer was 94 and the word was —

"sparvagsnaktiebolagsskensmutsskjutarefackforensperngspersonalbeklarefackforenitsfdgotbslpstrnzisonalbekladnadsmagasinsmagasinsinsinsforradsforvaltaren."

It means, in Sweden, "the manager of the depot for the supply of uniforms to the personnel of the track cleaners' union of the street railway company."

Now, Mrs. R. Norlund of 1198 Munro St. has written to say — you guessed it — we mispelled it.

She says it should be — "sparvagnsaktiebolagsskensmutsskjutarefackforeningspersonalbekladnadsmagasinsforradsforvaltaren."

Who are we to argue?

Before anyone else takes issue with this spelling, we should tell you that the men and women who set these words in type are patient and kindly people — but they do have their limits.

CUPE Set to Charge Oak Bay

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

The Canadian Union of Public Employees will lay charges before the B.C. Labor Relations Board this week accusing Oak Bay municipality of interfering in the administration of a trade union, a CUPE spokesman said Monday night.

Union staff representative Tom Smith said the B.C. Division of CUPE, with which Oak Bay CUPE Local 511 is affiliated, has decided to lay charges "against Oak Bay municipality, management and council, over what we feel is interference with the administration of a trade union and a number of violations of the Labor Code."

Smith said the charges will involve the "contacting of members individually and inducing them to accept an agreement already rejected by the members."

He said he engaged a lawyer Monday and the charges will be laid "sometime this week and we will seek a ruling from the board that the employer cease and desist."

Smith said Local 511 holds two certifications and two contracts, one for inside employees and one for outside employees. But, he said, the entire local was made a wage offer of 15.75 per cent increase for 1975 and this was rejected at a membership meeting last month.

"There is a group of inside staff attempting to reach a collective agreement outside the authority of the union," he said.

"Some employees must have had some dialogue with management and management is inducing and influencing them to do this."

Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith commented today that the inside employees, who he said are outnumbered 45 to 24 by the outside employees, are being prevented from making a separate agreement with the municipality to accept last month's offer.

He said the union spokesman has "got to be kidding" if it is alleged that talking directly to employees to inform them of a wage offer and that if there is a strike there won't be any wages constitute interference with a trade union.

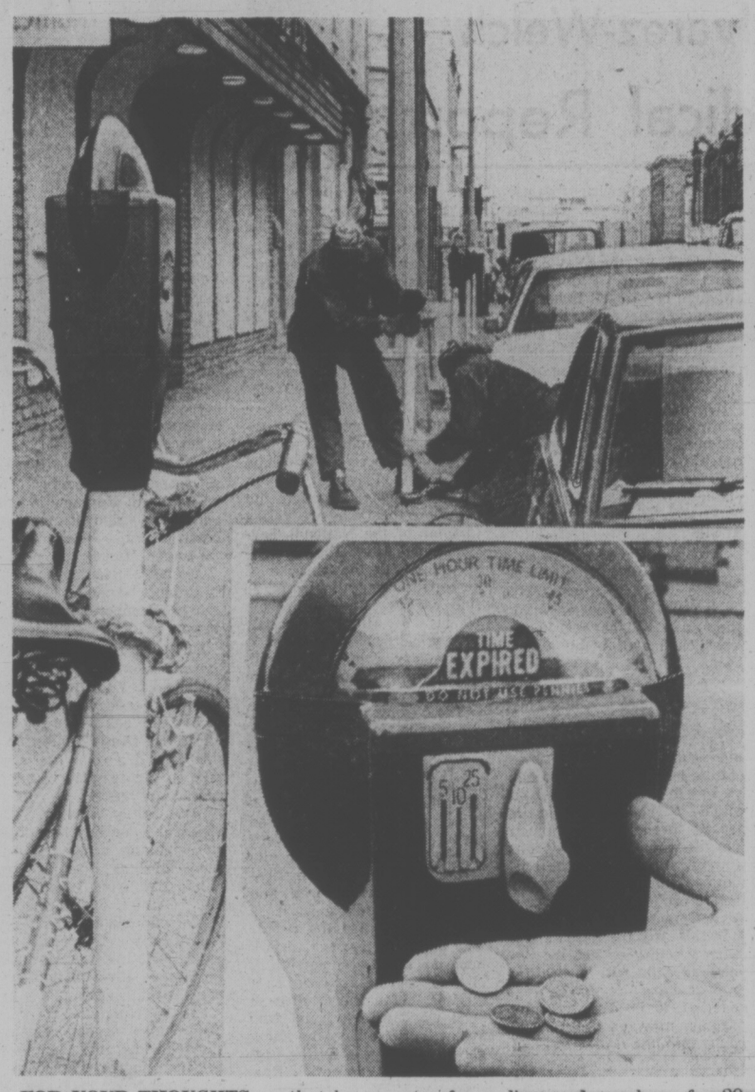
The mayor said there has been no coercion by the municipality but rather the municipality received a petition from 20 of the 24 inside employees "which we didn't circulate" saying they wanted to bargain separately from the outside employees "and they were prepared to accept the offer made."

He said "that seemed entirely proper to me" and was permitted under the union's constitution.

"We then prepared a contract and forwarded it to the inside people . . . but the officers of the local refused to sign because it is the over-all local that decides these things," he said.

"The union leadership has made every attempt to prevent a separate agreement and won't sign any agreement. The right to bargain separately in the union constitution is either being violated or is meaningless.

"The union has a duty of fair representation of the people in the unit under the law. I haven't been going around and the (municipal) officials have not been going around twisting arms but this petition came to us. It is the inside people who are being prevented from signing."



FOR YOUR THOUGHTS — that became one of the last remaining uses for the penny in downtown Victoria Monday, as city crews began installing 1,600 new parking meters which will double on-street parking rates and banish the penny. The new-look meter (shown inset) will give motorists 15 minutes' parking for a nickel, 30 minutes for a dime and one hour for 20 cents. If you have no nickels it will give an hour's parking for a quarter — but no five cents change. The new rates become effective as the meters are progressively installed by city are installed by city employees like Alan Dand and Tom Rose.

Visitors' Centre Hogging Cash, Lane Charges

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau chairman Sam Lane today charged that the Visitors Information Centre has violated an informal agreement to support the bureau with financial grants.

Lane said the Vancouver Island bureau has held back from soliciting funds from local merchants on the understanding it would receive a grant from the local information centre, which does solicit funds in the community.

The Visitors Information Centre was formed last March. Its predecessor, the Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau, made a grant of $12,000, Lane said.

"If no grant is forthcoming, we will have to solicit funds from local merchants. We have not wanted to do this because it overlaps the fund drive by the Visitors Information Centre."

In reply, Visitors Information Centre president Terry Farmer said there was no way his group could make a grant to the Vancouver Island body.

"If they wish to solicit funds in the community they are welcome to do so," Farmer said.

The Vancouer Island Publicity Bureau handles promotion to bring tourists to the Island and the Visitors Information Centre provides services after the tourists arrive.

The tourist debate began Jan. 14 when Ed Norman, provincial director of travel information services, charged that Victoria was going to lose out on tourists this year because of a fat-cat attitude and a decline in the amount spent on promoting Victoria in other provinces and countries.

On Jan .15, Farmer replied that money was being spent but it was being directed at serving tourists once they got here. In addition, about $450,000 was being spent by directors of the information centre on a private basis to promote Victoria.

Today, Lane said if that kind of money is being spent on external advertising, some of it should be channelled into the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau where matching government grants are available.

Lane said it was shortsighted for local mercants to spend all their funds individually when government grants were available in a joint effort.

The provincial government offers $67,000 per year to publicize Vancouver Island on a 60-40 basis. This means the Island bureau has to raise $44,667 to get the maximum grant.

In tse current fiscal year the Island bureau faces a shortfall of $18,000 in local funds and therefore will miss out on $29,000 in provincial government grants.

"This is where the problem is," Lane said. "Victoria is the only area of the Island where businesses are not contributing to the bureau either through direct grants or through chambers of commerce."

The only funds generated locally, he said, is a $10,000 grant from local municipalities. Elsewhere on the Island, funds come from merchants, chambers of commerce and municipal governments.

Lane said he agreed 100 per cent with Norman who said Victoria was not spending enough on external publicity. The problem, however, was lack of support from the local Visitors Information Centre, he said.

A grant from the local tourist organization would avoid the necessity of overlapping fund drives for tourist promotion, he said.

Chop, Chop, Chop!

Saanich representatives will be ready with axes raised at the next meeting on the Capital Regional District's proposed budget.

As Al. John McDonald said at Monday's council meeting:

"It will be chop, chop, chop."

Council agreed with Mayor Ed Lum that the CRD board's proposed 68 per cent increase in Saanich's contribution is far too high.

"What concerned me," Lum said, "There was relatively little opposition when it (the budget) was presented."

Ald. William Campbell wanted rejection of the proposed budget.

"I feel if we approve this budget our members (Saanich representatives on the CRD board) will stand no chance,' he said.

Most council members agreed with him but Campbell withdrew his motion to reject the budget after municipal clerk Gordon Hayward pointed out council has no power over the regional budget.

Aldermen May Cut Own Pay

"The total amount in really minimal," Mayor Jean Butler said today. "It's more the principle of the thing."

At Monday's meeting, Ald. Don MacLaurin served notice that he will introduce a motion at the next meeting Feb. 3 to cut council salaries by five per cent.

Aldermen now receive $1,700 per year remuneration and the mayor receives $4,000. A five per cent cut would mean a saving of $710 for the municipality.

"I think what Ald. MacLaurin wanted to do is stop the escalation of the remuneration," Butler said.

Elected Camosun Urged

An elected council of nine members should govern Camosun College and other community colleges, Greater Victoria school board agreed Monday.

The board will write to Education Minister recommending an elected college council, and opposing the largely government - appointed council recommended in the provincial task force report on colleges.

The task force, which submitted its report last fall, recommends a 15-member council, with 10 members appointed by the provincial government and five elected by college students and staff.

Five of the 10 appointed members would be chosen upon the recommendation of a nominating committee on which school boards would be represented.

The school board wants direct election of councillors by local voters, with terms lasting two years.

Camosun College council, a nine-member body with four appointed members and five school trustees, has recommended a partly-appointed, partly-elected council with a majority of councillors directly elected.

The school board also agreed to oppose a recommendation by the task force that colleges assume responsibility for adult and continuing education.

Community schools as well as colleges should play a part in this field, they said.

The trustees will ask Dailly to defer action on a task force recommendation that colleges play a central role in distribution of educational media in their areas.

The Victoria board has ambitions itself in the media field, and plans this spring to build a two-storey media centre which it hopes will serve smaller school districts around Vancouver Island, as well as possibly Camosun College.

The board rejected a recommendation by Trustee Hal Knight, who is chairman of Camosun College council, that would ask Dailly to maintain a small local tax base in the financing of colleges.

The task force recommends 100 per cent of college operating costs be paid by the provincial governmetn.

Having a local tax base could make college councillors more responsive to the local people, Knight argued.

Other trustees were unconvinced, and all voted against it.

However, they agreed to write Dailly protesting the present system by which college councils must compile their budgets.

Councils must submit their final operating budgets in December without knowing how much money the provincial government has available for colleges.

As a result, Camosun council submitted a 1975 budget 58 per cent higher than last year's without cutting a cent out of it.

30 ON HAND—ALL SILENT

About 30 people turned out Monday night for a public hearing on a North Saanich bylaw to restrict marina construction — but nobody said a word.

In accordance with rules for a public hearing, council called once, twice and then a final time for comments from the public, but all was quiet.

Council then went into regular session and adopted the bylaw which restricts construction of floats, wharves, docks and boat sheds to within 10 feet of the water lease boundaries of marinas in the municipality.

Municipal clerk Ted Fairs said today he figures each of the 30 people must have come to the public hearing to hear what "comments the other guy had."

Gov't 'Ignores' Evicted Elderly

Relocation problems for Chinese tenants being evicted from a PandoraAvenue block demonstrate a housing problem being largely ignored by the provincial government, Victoria developer Sam Bawlf said Monday.

The tenants were given a month's notice to vacate by Dec. 31 so the courtyard behind the Government St. liquor store could be renovated.

About 12 elderly men and one large family still cling to their homes. None wants to move from Chinatown, say people involved in their relocation, but no empty apartments exist in the area.

Bawlf said his development company has spent about $10,000 in attempts to find them housing.

"Money isn't material to the situation," he said.

But relocating ousted tenants simply isn't the job of a developer.

The provincial government must concentrate more effort on providing housing in the city core by both renovation and new construction, he said.

"The provincial government has to do something about the downtown core. The housing in city centres is the problem."

Many of Victoria's Chinatown buildings are owned by organizations such as the Chinese Benevolent Association, and Bawlf has offered to help fix up space that might be suitable for apartments.

"We said we would provide the manpower and expertise at no profit," he said.

Empty space does exist in some Chinatown buildings, says Victoria child care worker Becky Allen who lives in the 500-block Fisgard.

She said the land-owning associations can receive low-interest money for renovation from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation even if they refuse Bawlf's offer.

The associations "are the ones that are holding back," she said, adding they're not known for swift action in any matters.

"We're already talked it over," said a spokesman for the benevolent association.

He declined to say whether any conclusions had been drawn from discussion but said a meeting may be called within a week.

"But you've got to look beyond renovating a few offices," said Bawlf.

The province should be out "hustling" for the tenants, finding them accommodation and ensuring the city core has adequate housing in the future, he said.

Meanwhile, in a letter to the tenants in Cantonese, "we said we demand possession of the premises," said Bawlf.

He wants to retain his eviction right but still allow them additional time to find homes. No more rent will be asked.

Legal action may be taken at some point since the eviction notice was unquestionably legal, he said, but he hopes all will have new accommodation within 30 days.

Assisting the tenants are both the company and members of the human resources department's downtown-Blanshard advisory group.

18.9% NEW CARS FAIL THE TEST

Almost one out of every five new cars purchased in B.C. is unsafe, according to figures released today by the provincial government.

A sampling of 348 new vehicles tested at motor vechicle branch inspection stations around the province showed 66 or 18.9 per cent were rejected on their first inspection.

The major causes of rejection were brakes, steering, and headlight defects.

Transport Minister Bob Strachan warned all new car buyers to have safety checks made as soon as possible after taking delivery.

"Some defects are such that they can suddenly change a four-wheeled car into a four-wheeled coffin," said the minister.

In two of the cases surveyed, the new cars were missing brake shoes entirely and in cars with double brake systems, often only one system was operating.

In other instances, there were mismatched brake linings, holes admitting brake fluid to the system had not been drilled, and calipers which move the brake shoes against the brake drums had not been installed.

Inspectors found some new cars with cracked frames and said steering defects included cases where power steering units were not bolted to the frame.

Strachan said flaws in brakes and steering systems can result in cars going out of control and are a danger not only to the driver but to every other car on the highway.
way.

The sampling shows the need for expanded inspection facilities throughout B.C., said the minister.

No Hikes In Home Gas Cost

The new federal-provincial agreement on natural gas taxation will not result in any price increases for domestic users of gas, Premier Barrett said Monday.

Industrial consumers of gas in B.C. can expect price increases in the future, said Barrett, but the province has no intention of increasing the price to homeowners.

But the premier hinted that gas companies in B.C. may receive a higher price from the government-owned B.C. Petroleum Corporation which buys and markets all gas produced in the province.

Included in the agreement is a recognition by Ottawa that the export price of natural gas will be increased this year and Barrett said gas companies "may or may not get a compensating increase" in the price they are originally paid for the gas by the BCPC.

There will be no "substantial" increase to producers, he said, but the precedent has been established in the past when the export price rose, the price to producers was voluntarily increased by the

13 Montrealers Die In Gangland Massacre

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirteen persons, including three women, died early today in a fire-charred, padlocked night-club closet in what police speculated was a gangland rub-out although most of the victims apparently were innocent bystanders.

One police officer described the killings as the worst "premeditated" mass murder in the history of Montreal, and it was generally regarded as one of the worst crimes of its kind in Canadian history.

Police speculated the victims were herded into the six-by-eight-foot beer-storage closet and the fire set with the aim of eliminating witnesses to an Oct. 30 double murder at the same nightclub in the city's north-east district.

But Constable Jean Gauthier, 25, the first police officer at the scene, said it appeared most of the victims had simply dropped into the club for a drink.

Asked whether there was something "in common" among the victims, Constable Gauthier replied:

"I think two or three of them have had something in common but the rest were bypassers."

Asked whether the others were innocent bystanders, Gauthier replied.

"Most definitely. One of the victims was a father of four who had stopped in for a beer after his shift."

Police listed Rejean Fortin, 44, manager of the night-club, which features top-less dancers among the victims. They said Fortin was the only victim shot — he had been shot in the back.

A picture emerged of the victims dying from asphyxiation as smoke seeped around the padlocked door into the small closet where the bodies were found piled on top of one another.

The fire started at 12:27 a.m. and firemen said it took them three hours to get it under control. Shortly afterwards they found the bodies in the locked storage closet, used to store cases of beer. A juke box had been pulled across in front of the door.

Besides the club manager, police identified nine other victims. They gave their names as Pierre Lamarche, Augustin Carbonneau, Pierre Lesiege, Gaetan Caron, Michel Viscardi, Denis Lauze, Ghislain Briere, Jacques Lamarche and Yves Pigeon.

A police spokesman said, "We have no doubt that some of the victims were merely patrons of the club. At this time we have not yet established whether or not any of the victims had any criminal records."

9 HOMELESS IN BLAZE

Only Samuel Mack, his wife, and two children Effie, 23, and Jessie, 5, were at home at the time. The other children were in school.

Mack said he smelled smoke at about 11:45 a.m. and went upstairs to investigate. He opened the door to one bedroom and smoke billowed out. He said he shut the door and went to the next room where he roused Effie who was sleeping.

Effie said shortly before she lay down she had seen Jessie playing with a candle and an electric heater in the bedroom.

Barrett Won't Interfere

Premier Barrett said Monday he has no intention of interfering in the dismissal of education department research director Dr. Stanley Knight.

"It's a public service commission matter and there's no way I'll interfere in a public service matter," he said.

"I have full confidence in the minister and she has full confidence in her staff and the matter ends there."

Knight has written the premier a letter asking him to intervene in the case and has also filed an official grievance with the public service commission.

Knight was left without a job last week when deputy education minister Jack Fleming recommended his dismissal at the end of his standard six-month probationary period.

He was hired last July to head up a new 12-member research and development division of the education department assigned to draw up a blueprint for educational change in the province, based on Education Minister Eileen Dailly's white paper on education.

Knight said he decided to appeal to the premier for support because his educational philosophy "happens to follow the white paper and the NDP's educational policy."

"I support the government and their educational policy and the bureaucracy of the department of education is not supportive of the government," he said.

U.S. Inflation Easing Off

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — U.S. prices rose in 1974 at the highest rate since wage and price controls were lifted after the Second World War but the increase in the last three months of the year showed an easing of inflation, the government said today.

The December increase in the consumer price index of 0.7 per cent was the lowest in five months.

In a development aimed at attacking recession, the federal reserve board Monday pumped $1.1 billion into the economy to permit more and easier credit for business expansion and to ease unemployment.

The bureau of labor statistics said the inflation rate for 1974 was 12.2 per cent higher than 1973. It is the highest rate of price growth since 1946 when prices rose 18.1 per cent and the second highest since the index skyrocketed 20.5 per cent in 1918 following the First World War.

Based on 1967 prices, the increase means goods and service that cost $100 then cost $155.40 last month.

At the same time, the bureau of labor statistics said the purchasing power of workers increased for the first time in six months.

Meanwhile, in Congress, Speaker Carl Albert attacked Monday night the $12 billion anti-recession tax rebate proposed last week by President Ford, saying 43 per cent of the money would go to "the richest 17 per cent of the population."

By contrast, Albert said in a Democratic response to the president's State of the Union message, "the Democratic leadership has asked the House to pass a substantial tax reduction bill for middle and lower-income persons only by the end of March."

The speaker also attacked the president's complicated proposals to cut back fuel consumption, which he said would have "an astounding inflationary impact" and would end up taking more away from the average family than it would return.

President Ford today again rejected gasoline rationing to end the energy crisis, saying it would have to be in effect at least five years to work and would limit every motorist to fewer than nine gallons per week.

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar fell sharply in European money markets today and touched a 14-month low in Paris.

In Paris, the dollar opened at 4.3475 French francs down from 4.3675 francs late Monday. In Zurich, the dollar traded at 2.508 Swiss francs, down from 2.5300 Swiss francs late Monday.

EEC in Sugar Deal

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — The European Common Market was to formally decide today to buy up to 361,000 tons of sugar from world markets to sell to consumers mainly in Britain and Italy at about one-third its cost price.

OIL-LADEN TANKER EXPLODES, 2 DIE

MIAMI (UPI) — Two crewmen were killed and three injured early today when the 550-foot Cypriot tanker "Lucky Era" ran aground on a Bahamian reef, exploded and burst into flames. The tanker was laden with oil.

The U.S. Coast Guard in Miami said the Russian merchant ship Aleksandr Kollontay rushed to the stricken tanker's aid, lowered small boats and removed 34 of the Cypriot ship's 37 crewmen.

"The master of the Cypriot ship refuses to abandon the vessel," the coast guard said.

Threat of Strike Could Stall Mall

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Cancellation or postponement of Victoria's Government Street Mall project became a possibility today, as city aldermen learned that a lengthy strike by municipal employees could add up to $301,000 — or more than 30 per cent — to the total costs.

Ald. Sam Bawlf, responsible for mall planning, told the Central Area development committee today it would be "unwise" for the city to award the contract and let the work start until the current negotiations with city employees are successfully concluded and a strike averted.

"Obviously this places the project in some jeopardy," he added.

His comments followed an explanation from city manager Jim Bramley that $301,261 of the total estimated cost of the work, $902,426, could be recovered by the city as "labor forgiveness" costs under Ottawa's winter capital projects fund.

But Bramley said the federal program only covers the period from Dec. 31, 1974, to May 31, 1975. And then, with a series of "ifs" Bramley outlined the risks to the city:

—If the contract is awarded and the work starts soon, as it was scheduled to do;

—If the threatened strike of city employees then takes place within a few days;

—And if the strike last three or four months . . .

Then, said Bramley, the city would have passed the time limit set for the federal program, lost the $301,000 for labor costs and run into a whole series of other problems — including traffic control and difficulties for merchants if the work has to be undertaken during the summer months.

Bramley stressed he was not implying that a strike would necessarily take place, but merely outlining the repercussions on financing the project if that did happen.

Ald. Mike Young said in any case he had been viewing "with singular skepticism" the city's ability to meet even its basic costs commitment, and he was loath to see council commit itself still further under current labor uncertainties.

City engineer John Sansom told aldermen that assuming there is no strike of city employees, and therefore no stoppage of the work on the mall, the contractor should be able to complete the job comfortably by May 31.

The committee had been due to consider today five tenders submitted last week, and to recommend the contractor for the job.

But no decision was reached because the committee felt the implications were such that the matter should be referred to the regular meeting of council's caucus this afternoon.

Hijackers Give Up in Iraq

Times News Services

BAGHDAD — Three Arab guerrillas who terrorized Paris's Orly airport last weekend surrendered to a reluctant Iraqi government in Baghdad today and a volunteer Air France crew flew back to France aboard the jet liner that had taken them and the terrorists on a daylong Middle East odyssey.

Iraq immediately denounced the three and said they had been placed under arrest.

A statement issued by the Iraqui Embassy in Paris said the French jetliner that flew them out of France in exchange for the hostages' lives had been permitted to land in Baghdad only because it was low on fuel and the crew was exhausted by more than 17 hours of flying.

In Cairo, the three Egyptian government-run dailies — Al Ahram, Al Akhbar and Al Gomhouriya — also condemned the Orly siege and called for unified Arab action to prevent such incidents from recurring.

In Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization said it would demand extradition of the gunmen and put them on trial "for their crimes."

Liquor Tops Hard Drugs in Schools—Survey

VANCOUVER (CP) — A survey of Vancouver high school students shows they are steering somewhat away from harder drugs but turning more and more to liquor.

The survey, made by John Russell and Marcus Hollander of the Narcotic Addiction Foundation of British Columbia, was presented Monday to the Vancouver School Board.

Trustees will meet later with medical officials and others working with drugs and alcohol.

"Millions of dollars have been spent on drug education all over North America and not a single program has been successful," Russell said.

The two researchers selected about 10 per cent of the students at random and are satisfied their findings apply to the 28,000 secondary students here.

The survey shows that 71 per cent of students now are using alcohol compared with 61 per cent in 1970.

The use of tobacco is also up — to 64 per cent of the students in 1974 from 42 per cent in 1970.

The use of cannabis, which includes both marijuana and hashish, does not appear to have changed appreciably, according to the researchers. They found 39 per cent of the students had used it in 1970 and 42 per cent in 1974.

Use of LSD is down to 15 from 22 per cent. Fourteen per cent of the students said they used MDA in 1974 but were not questioned about this hallucinogen in 1970.

In 1974, 19 per cent of the students had used LSD, MDA or both and the researchers say the use of hallucinogens appears to have declined slightly.

The sniffing of glue and other solvents has not changed with nine per cent use in both surveys.

The non-prescription use of tranquillizers was up to nine from eight per cent but the use of non-prescription barbiturates was down to five from 10 per cent.

The survey shows the use of heroin is down to 1.5 from two per cent but the researchers say this estimate may be unreliable because the proportion of users is so small.

The 1974 survey shows there is little difference in general in the use of drugs by sex. Males used more alcohol, tobacco, cannabis, LSD and MDA while females used more amphetamines and barbiturates.

The use of most drugs increases as the students get older while the use of solvents, amphetamines, barbiturates, tranquilizers and heroin appears to peak in the 15-to-16 age group.

Tobacco, alcohol and cannabis are the only drugs being used at least once a week by a sizable proportion of the students.

The majority of those who had used LSD, MDA, solvents, amphetamines, barbiturates, tranquillizers and heroin had done so less than five times in the six months preceding the survey.

Memories of the day Victorians panicked when they thought enemy submarines were entering the Inner Harbor during the First World War were revived recently when Cmdr. Burrard Archibald Smith RN (Rtd.) died at Long Beach near Nelson. He was 99.

Smith joined the Royal Navy in 1889 when he was 14 and was on loan to the Royal Canadian Navy during the First World War, serving in ships guarding this coast.

In those days the west coast had two submarines under its command.

Built in the United States, the submarines CC1 and CC2 were slated for the Chilean navy but an astute Canadian defence department snapped them up.

Apparently, news of the purchase hadn't reached the general populace on this coast because old newspaper reports relate general consternation when the two submarines entered harbor Aug. 5, 1914. Citizens had to be assured they were friendly!

CUPE Set to Charge Oak Bay

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

The Canadian Union of Public Employees will lay charges before the B.C. Labor Relations Board this week accusing Oak Bay municipality of interfering in the administration of a trade union, a CUPE spokesman said Monday night.

Union staff representative Tom Smith said the B.C. Division of CUPE, with which Oak Bay CUPE Local 511 is affiliated, has decided to lay charges "against Oak Bay municipality, management and council, over what we feel is interference with the administration of a trade union and a number of violations of the Labor Code."

Smith said the charges will involve the "contacting of members individually and inducing them to accept an agreement already rejected by the members."

He said he engaged a lawyer Monday and the charges will be laid "sometime this week and we will seek a ruling from the board that the employer cease and desist."

Smith said Local 511 holds two certifications and two contracts, one for inside employees and one for outside employees. But, he said, the entire local was made a wage offer of 15.75 per cent increase for 1975 and this was rejected at a membership meeting last month.

"There is a group of inside staff attempting to reach a collective agreement outside the authority of the union," he said.

"Some employees must have had some dialogue with management and management is inducing and influencing them to do this."

Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith commented today that the inside employees, who he said are outnumbered 45 to 24 by the outside employees, are being prevented from making a separate agreement with the municipality to accept last month's offer.

He said the union spokesman has "got to be kidding" if it is alleged that talking directly to employees to inform them of a wage offer and that if there is a strike there won't be any wages constitute interference with a trade union.

The mayor said there has been no coercion by the municipality but rather the municipality received a petition from 20 of the 24 inside employees "which we didn't circulate" saying they wanted to bargain separately from the outside employees "and they were prepared to accept the offer made."

He said "that seemed entirely proper to me" and was permitted under the union's constitution.

"We then prepared a contract and forwarded it to the inside people . . . but the officers of the local refused to sign because it is the over-all local that decides these things," he said.

"The union leadership has made every attempt to prevent a separate agreement and won't sign any agreement. The right to bargain separately in the union constition is either being violated or is meaningless.

"The union has a duty of fair representation of the people in the unit under the law. I haven't been going around and the (municipal) officials have not been going around twisting arms but this petition came to us. It is the inside people who are being prevented from signing."

FOR YOUR THOUGHTS — that became one of the last remaining uses for the penny in downtown Victoria Monday, as city crews began installing 1,600 new parking meters which will double on-street parking rates and banish the penny. The new-look meter (shown inset) will give motorists 15 minutes' parking for a nickel, 30 minutes for a dime and one hour for 20 cents. If you have no nickels it will give an hour's parking for a quarter — but no five cents change. The new rates become effective as the meters are installed by city employees like Alan Dand and Tom Rose.

Visitors' Centre Hogging Cash, Lane Charges

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau chairman Sam Lane today charged that the Visitors Information Centre has violated an informal agreement to support the bureau with financial grants.

Lane said the Vancouver Island bureau has held back from soliciting funds from local merchants on the understanding it would receive a grant from the local information centre, which does solicit funds in the community.

The Visitors Information Centre was formed last March. Its predecessor, the Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau, made a grant of $12,000, Lane said.

"If no grant is forthcoming, we will have to solicit funds from local merchants. We have not wanted to do this because it overlaps the fund drive by the Visitors Information Centre."

In reply, Visitors Information Centre president Terry Farmer said there was no way his group could make a grant to the Vancouver Island body.

"If they wish to solicit funds in the community they are welcome to do so," Farmer said.

The Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau handles promotion to bring tourists to the Island and the Visitors Information Centre provides services after the tourists arrive.

The tourist debate began Jan. 14 when Ed Norman, provincial director of travel information services, charged that Victoria was going to lose out on tourists this year because of a fat-cat attitude and a decline in the amount spent on promoting Victoria in other provinces and countries.

On Jan. 15, Farmer replied that money was being spent but it was being directed at serving tourists once they got here. In addition, about $450,000 was being spent by directors of the information centre on a private basis to promote Victoria.

Today, Lane said if that kind of money is being spent on external advertising, some of it should be channelled into the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau where matching government grants are available.

Lane said it was shortsighted for local mercants to spend all their funds individually when government grants were available in a joint effort.

The provincial government offers $67,000 per year to publicize Vancouver Island on a 60-40 basis. This means the Island bureau has to raise $44,667 to get the maximum grant.

In the current fiscal year the Island bureau faces a shortfall of $18,000 in local funds and therefore will miss out on $27,000 in provincial government grants.

"This is where the problem is," Lane said. "Victoria is the only area of the Island where businesses are not contributing to the bureau either through direct grants or through chambers of commerce."

The only funds generated locally, he said, is a $10,000 grant from local municipalities. Elsewhere on the Island, funds come from merchants, chambers of commerce and municipal governments.

Lane said he agreed 100 per cent with Norman who said Victoria was not spending enough on external publicity. The problem, however, was lack of support from the local Visitors Information Centre, Lane said.

A grant from the local tourist organization would avoid the necessity of overlapping fund drives for tourist promotion, he said.

Elected Camosun Urged

An elected council of nine members should govern Camosun College and other community colleges, Greater Victoria school board agreed Monday.

The board will write to Education Minister recommending an elected college council, and opposing the largely government - appointed council recommended in the provincial task force report on colleges.

The task force, which submitted its report last fall, recommends a 15-member council, with 10 members appointed by the provincial government and five elected by college students and staff.

Five of the 10 appointed members would be chosen upon the recommendation of a nominating committee on which school boards would be represented.

The school board wants direct election of councillors by local voters, with terms lasting two years.

Camosun College council, a nine-member body with four appointed members and five school trustees, has recommended a partly-appointed, partly-elected council with a majority of councillors directly elected.

The school board also agreed to oppose a recommendation by the task force that colleges assume responsibility for adult and continuing education.

Community schools as well as colleges should play a part in this field, they said.

The trustees will ask Dailly to defer action on a task force recommendation that colleges play a central role in distribution of educational media in their areas.

The Victoria board has ambitions itself in the media field, and plans this spring to build a two-storey media centre which it hopes will serve smaller school districts around Vancouver Island, as well as possibly Camosun College.

The board rejected a recommendation by Trustee Hal Knight, who is chairman of Camosun College council, that would ask Dailly to maintain a small local tax base in the financing of colleges.

The task force recommends 100 per cent of college operating costs be paid by the provincial government.

Having a local tax base could make college councillors more responsive to the local people, Knight argued.

Other trustees were unconvinced, and all voted against it.

However, they agreed to write Dailly protesting the present system by which college councils must compile their budgets.

Councils must submit their final operating budgets in December without knowing how much money the provincial government has available for colleges.

As a result, Camosun council submitted a 1975 budget 58 per cent higher than last year's without cutting a cent out of it.

30 ON HAND—ALL SILENT

About 30 people turned out Monday night for a public hearing on a North Saanich bylaw to restrict marina construction — but nobody said a word.

In accordance with rules for a public hearing, council called once, twice and then a final time for comments from the public, but all was quiet.

Council then went into regular session and adopted the bylaw which restricts construction of floats, wharves, docks and boat sheds to within 10 feet of the water lease boundaries of marinas in the municipality.

Municipal clerk Ted Fairs said today he figures each of the 30 people must have come to the public hearing to hear what "comments the other guy had."

Chop, Chop, Chop!

Saanich representatives will be ready with axes raised at the next meeting on the Capital Regional District's proposed budget.

As Ald. John McDonald said at Monday's council meeting:

"It will be chop, chop, chop."

Council agreed with Mayor Ed Lum that the CRD board's proposed 68 per cent increase in Saanich's contribution is far too high.

He said he was concerned because there was relatively little opposition when the budget was presented.

Ald. William Campbell wanted rejection of the proposed budget.

"I feel if we approve this budget our members (Saanich representatives on the CRD board) will stand no chance,' he said.

Most council members agreed with him but Campbell withdrew his motion to reject the budget after municipal clerk Gordon Hayward pointed out council has no power over the regional budget.

Aldermen May Cut Own Pay

"The total amount in really minimal," Mayor Jean Butler said today. "It's more the principle of the thing."

At Monday's meeting, Ald. Don MacLaurin served notice that he will introduce a motion at the next meeting Feb. 3 to cut council salaries by five per cent.

Aldermen now receive $1,700 per year remuneration and the mayor receives $4,000. A five per cent cut would mean a saving of $710 for the municipality.

"I think what Ald. MacLaurin wanted to do is stop the escalation of the remuneration," Butler said.

Gov't 'Ignores' Evicted Elderly

The tenants were given notice to vacate by Dec. 31 so the courtyard behind the Government St. liquor store could be renovated.

About 12 elderly men and one large family still cling to their homes. None wants to move from Chinatown, say people involved in their relocation, but no empty apartments exist in the area.

Bawlf said his development company has spent about $10,000 in attempts to find them housing.

"Money isn't material to the situation," he said.

The provincial government must concentrate more effort on providing housing in the city core by both renovation and new construction, he said.

"The provincial government has to do something about the downtown core. The housing in city centres is the problem."

Many of Victoria's Chinatown buildings are owned by organizations such as the Chinese Benevolent Association, and Bawlf has offered to help fix up space that might be suitable for apartments.

"We said we would provide the manpower and expertise at no profit," he said.

Empty space does exist in some Chinatown buildings, says Victoria child care worker Becky Allen who lives in the 500-block Fisgard.

She said the land-owning associations can receive low-interest money for renovation from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation even if they refuse Bawlf's offer.

The associations "are the ones that are holding back," she said, adding they're not known for swift action in any matters.

"We're already talked it over," said a spokesman for the benevolent association.

He declined to say whether any conclusions had been drawn from discussion but said a meeting may be called within a week.

"But you've got to look beyond renovating a few offices," said Bawlf.

The province should be out "hustling" for the tenants, finding them accommodation and ensuring the city core has adequate housing in the future, he said.

Meanwhile, in a letter to the tenants in Cantonese, "we said we demand possession of the premises," said Bawlf.

He wants to retain his eviction right but still allow them additional time to find homes. No more rent will be asked.

Legal action may be taken at some point since the eviction notice was unquestionably legal, he said, but he hopes all will have new accommodation within 30 days.

Assisting the tenants are both the company and members of the human resources department's downtown-Blanshard advisory group.
